PREFACE

Two articles in the Journal of Theological Studies may be said to have paved the way for the present publication. The first of these, by Dr. William Axon, appeared in April, 1902 ; the second, by one of the present editors, exactly three years later.

The translation of the Arabic glosses was begun by Major Marriott, D.S.O., and has been completed by Professor Margoliouth (to whose valuable Note on p. xlviii we desire here to call attention) : that of the Italian text, together with the general editing of the MS., is the work of Lonsdale and Laura Ragg. The translators have endeavoured to preserve the archaic form and something even of the crudeness of the original. Where the text follows that of the Bible exactly, they have adopted the language of the Revised Version, from which also has been adapted, with slight modifications, the form into which the Scripture references are cast. The more obvious important parallels from the Qorân will be found either cited or referred to in the footnotes, which, for the rest, have been reduced perforce to the smallest possible dimensions.

Appended to the Introduction will be found the most important passages bearing on the 'Barnabas controversy' from the eighteenth-century writers, while the text itself is followed by a full (and, it is hoped, accurate) index of Scripture references, with such subject-index as was practicable.

The translators have encountered many unforeseen difficulties during the four years in which the work has been in their hands; much of the translation has been hewn out on pilgrimage, or in small hotel rooms, and far from books of reference.

But the hindrances have been more than matched by the generous and ungrudging help that they have received, especially from Italian savants, whose courtesy is, indeed, proverbial throughout Europe. Among those to whom they desire to acknowledge their debt are Padre Minocchi of Florence, Professors Guidi and Monaci of Rome, Professors Nallino and Cesareo of Palermo, Professor Crescini of Padua, and Commendatore Malagola of the Venetian Archivio.

Outside Italy their acknowledgements are due first and foremost to Prof. J. Ritter von Karabacek, Director of the Imperial Library at Vienna, and to his learned and amiable colleague Dr. Rudolph Beer, whose kindness has not limited itself to a laborious collation of the entire MS. To M. Briquet of Geneva thanks are due for an opinion on the subject which he has made his own.

Among English friends they would recognize with gratitude the services rendered by Dr. Paget Toynbee, whose friendly criticism of their earlier chapters was of no small value ; by the Rev. H. G. Grey, of whose learning they would fain have made a fuller use ; and by Prof. F. C. Burkitt, to whom they owe several valuable suggestions. The authorities of the Clarendon Press have shown no small kindness and patience ; and to Dr. Sanday the editors are particularly grateful, since to him they owe their connexion with a task which, whatever the character of its results, has been to them one of remarkable interest. The long period over which the work has been spread and the difficulties under which it has been carried out must be held responsible for some of the anomalies and inequalities which disfigure it ; but the editors are all too conscious of many blemishes and shortcomings in a task which none but an expert in two or three different lines could hope to achieve to perfection.

IV. EXTRACTS FROM DOCUMENTS RELATIVE TO BARNABAS.I. CODICES OF BARNABAS.

(i) Barnabas in the eighteenth century: Italian and Spanish MSS.

(i) Towards the beginning of the eighteenth century the Gospel of Barnabas aroused considerable interest among the learned in England, to whom two different copies of the document were known and, to a certain extent, accessible. One of these was the Italian text, which we now publish for the first time in the ensuing pages; the other, a Spanish version, professedly translated from the Italian, which has since unfortunately disappeared from view.

Story of the Italian MS.

Our Italian MS. was acquired in Amsterdam by J. F. Cramer, and lent by him to John Toland in 1709<sup>1</sup>. Four years later, in 1713 (as the dedicatory preface observes<sup>2</sup>), Cramer presented his prize to the illustrious connoisseur Prince Eugène of Savoy: and eventually it found its way, in 1738, in company with the rest of that prince’s library, into the Hofbibliothek at Vienna, where it now reposes.

Further back than the beginning of the eighteenth century we have no certain traces of the Codex, though an ambiguous reference in the preface to the (now lost) copy of the Spanish version, seen and described by Sale in 1734, may possibly indicate that our Italian MS. was once in the library of Pope Sixtus V (1585-9).

<sup>1</sup> ‘The learned gentleman,’ says Toland, ‘who has been so kind as to communicate it to me (viz. Mr. Cramer, Counsellor to the King of Prussia, but residing at Amsterdam), had it out of the library of a person of great name and authority in the said city; who during his life was often heard to put a high value on this piece. Whether as a rarity, or as the model of his religion, I know not.’ (Nazarenus, chap. v. Cf. below, p. lxxvii.)

The Spanish MS. was lent to Sale by Dr. Holme, Rector of Hedley, in Hampshire. It passed subsequently into the hands of Dr. Thomas Monkhouse, Fellow of Queen's College, Oxford, by whom both the text and a translation were communicated to Dr. White, Bampton Lecturer in 1784. Story of
Spanish

Dr. White refers to this MS. in the eighth of his lectures, and appends several extracts from the English translation: these, and the four short passages of the original cited by Sale, together with Sale's notice in the Preface 'To the Reader' of his edition of the Qorân, represent the sum of our present knowledge of the Spanish version<sup>1</sup>.

It will be worth while to quote in full what Sale says about the Spanish Preface, especially since it has a bearing on the history of the Italian also.

'The book,' he says,<sup>2</sup> 'is a moderate quarto . . . written in a very legible hand, but a little damaged towards the latter end. It contains two hundred and twenty-two chapters of unequal length, and four hundred and twenty pages; and is said, in the front, to be translated from the Italian, by an Arragonian Moslem, named Mostafa de Aranda. There is a preface prefixed to it, wherein the discoverer of the original MS., who was a Christian monk, called Fra Marino<sup>3</sup>, tells us, that having accidentally met with a writing of Irenaeus (among others), wherein he speaks against St. Paul, alleging,

<sup>1</sup> The will of Dr. Monkhouse, dated July 23, 1792, contains no mention of this codex, which he is thought to have presented to his college library. All attempts to discover it in Queen's College Library have, however, been so far unsuccessful; and equally fruitless have been our inquiries addressed to the authorities of the principal libraries in England and on the Continent.

<sup>3</sup> The name Marino, Marini, figures very frequently in Venetian annals: but the only contemporary friar of that name whom we have noted is a certain Maestro Marino dell' ordine di S. Francesco, who was responsible for an Index of prohibited books published in 1549. It were tempting, did chronology permit, to identify our Marino with the notorious Fra Vincenzo Marini, who after a series of adventurous frauds was claimed, when already condemned to the galleys, by the Inquisitor in Venice, on a charge of apostasy. But he was not born until 1573.

for his authority, the Gospel of St. Barnabas, he became exceeding desirous to find this Gospel; and that God, of His mercy, having made him very intimate with Pope Sixtus V, one day, as they were together in that Pope's library, his Holiness fell asleep, and he, to employ himself, reaching down a book to read, the first he laid his hand on proved to be the very gospel he wanted. Overjoyed at the discovery, he scrupled not to hide his prize in his sleeve; and, on the Pope's awaking, took leave of him, carrying with him that celestial treasure, by reading of which he became a convert to Mohammedanism.'

Testimony of the Spanish
to the
MS.

The little we can gather from this descriptive notice is not without interest. The Spanish copy clearly did not correspond exactly, page for page and chapter for chapter, with our Vienna MS., though the differences are very slight indeed<sup>1</sup>. Moreover, it was clearly believed by whoever wrote the Preface—or rather the Title-page—to the Spanish copy, that his version was a translation of an earlier Italian MS.<sup>2</sup> Further, it will be observed that he has nothing to say about an 'original Arabic': and that he places a copy—whether Italian or Spanish is not clear, but probably Italian—in the library of Sixtus V (prior, therefore, to 1590).

Until the Spanish Codex be found again we cannot form a judgement as to its date; Sale's account of its script—'a very legible hand'—is too vague, and White has not described it particularly. It remains to consider whether our Italian Codex might conceivably be the book so piously filched (or fabricated) by Fra Marino. The critics of the eighteenth century dated it about 1470–80, or a little earlier<sup>3</sup>; a modern expert would, however, relegate it without hesitation to the following century, on the simple testimony of the script and of the paper on which it is written.

about the middle of the fifteenth century, and copy'd a little while after.' (White, ap. Toland, Nazarenus, Appendix II, p. 9.) 'The orthography as well as the character plainly shew it to be at least three hundred years old,' writes Toland, 1718: this would mean the first half of the fifteenth century (Nazarenus, ch. v). Cramer, whose rôle was to emphasize the importance of the wares he had to dispose of, dated it 'many centuries earlier' (see i*, p. lxxix).

<sup>1</sup> Formerly (as in Denis's Catalogue) No. 1000. The book itself is enclosed in an elaborate case ornamented on the sides with the arms of Prince Eugène, and lettered on the back: L'EVANGELIO DI GIESV | CHRISTO DA S. BARNABA.

<sup>2</sup> There are two blank leaves at the beginning, and three at the end; all the rest have a ruled red margin enclosing a space about  $4\frac{1}{2} \times 3$  ins. Of the ruled pages, the first two are occupied with Cramer's Dedictory Preface; then follow seventeen leaves not written upon, then the 'Gospel', the first folio of which is numbered 1 in the original (Arabic) numeration, 8 in that of the Vienna librarian Denis, whose numbering we have followed in the printed text, noting, however, the mistaken duplication of fol. 138. Fol. 138 bis = our fol. 139.

<sup>3</sup> 'The books are profusely bound in Turkey leather, and two of the most famous bookbinders of Paris were expressly sent for to do this work,' writes Lady Mary Wortley-Montague in 1717.

There is no lettering on the back, the width of which is  $1\frac{5}{8}$  in.; the measurement of the pages is  $6\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{3}{8}$  in.<sup>1</sup>

The paper is described by Toland as 'Turkish,' and Denis follows him<sup>2</sup>; but a careful examination scarcely bears out this judgement. There are, in fact, two leaves (ff. 107 and 108) that might be described as 'delicately gumm'd and polish'd'; but these are entirely different in character from the rest—yellow, thin and smooth. All the remaining pages are of a somewhat coarse and stout 'cotton-paper,' and a close inspection reveals a water-mark such as no oriental paper ever bore. The anchor within a circle, says M. Briquet, is distinctively Italian; and the form which that sign assumes in the present case belongs, according to the same distinguished expert, to the second half of the sixteenth century<sup>3</sup>.

The handwriting cannot, of course, be of greater antiquity than the paper on which it is written, and probability is in favour of its being not very much later. The specimen photograph which we give of the first page, together with one from the middle of the book, will offer fairly adequate material for a positive judgement as to the date of the script. Its general style will be seen to be that of the latter half of the fifteenth century. A fairly close resemblance to it can be found in certain Venetian MSS. of 1543, 1563, and 1564 in the Archivio di Stato, and of 1550, 1562, and 1567 in the Archives of St. Mark's. The most exact parallel that we have seen—remarkable for the reproduction of the characteristic p and h of our codex—is, however, a document in the latter collection, which bears the signature 'Franc°

Vianello, Segretario Ducale,' and the date April 15, 1584<sup>1</sup>. Still, there remain certain puzzling peculiarities in the script of Barnabas which might conceivably point to a literary fraud<sup>2</sup>.

This leads us to wonder who was the 'person of great name and authority'<sup>3</sup> in Amsterdam from whose library Cramer, according to Toland, obtained the book, sometime before 1709<sup>4</sup>. Possibly the peculiarities may have some other explanation: but, even if the theory sketched above should prove the true one, it still implies a sixteenth-century prototype for our codex.

Thus, the Spanish Title-page vouches for an earlier Italian original, and the Spanish Preface throws that original back at least 120 years beyond the date when Toland came across our codex at Amsterdam. That is as far as the external evidence will strictly take us. As regards internal evidence, the handwriting of our MS. and the paper on which it is written carry us back a little further, though scarcely to the middle of the sixteenth century, while its style and diction, as we shall see later on, would seem (unless they are marks of an elaborate literary hoax) to presuppose a still earlier prototype.

(ii) Behind the Italian, the eighteenth-century writers held that there lurked an Arabic original.

'The Arabic original,' writes Dr. White in 1784, 'still exists in the East.' But White's statement is confessedly based on the authority of Sale's Preliminary Discourse, published fifty years earlier. 'The Mohammedans,' says Sale,<sup>5</sup> 'have also a Gospel in Arabic, attributed to St. Barnabas, have examined, by kind permission of the Director, Comm. Malagola, the Archives of the Venetian Senate and Council of Ten for the years 1540-1600, but the exact counterpart is not to be found there. The examples most closely resembling ours are of 1543, 1563, and 1564 in the Archivio di Stato, and 1550, 1562, and 1567 in the Archiv. Fabbr. S. Marco.

wherein the history of Jesus Christ is related in a manner very different from what we find in the true Gospels, and correspondent to those traditions which Mohammed has followed in his Koran.'

But when we turn to Sale's own Preface we find him thus confessing: 'I had not seen "the Gospel of St. Barnabas" when the little I have said of it in the Preliminary Discourse, and the extract I had borrowed from M. de la Monnoye and M. Toland, were printed off.' Sale's knowledge, then, of the 'Arabic original,' as of all else save what appears in his Preface 'To the Reader,' is, after all, secondhand, and based on the publications of La Monnoye in 1716<sup>1</sup>, and Toland in 1718<sup>2</sup>. And neither La Monnoye nor Toland had seen an Arabic copy, though the latter initiated that series of challenges to the Moslems to produce one<sup>3</sup> which has been carried on ever since, and always without effect: a circumstance which tends to confirm the general suspicion that the Moslems themselves who boast, under the title of Barnabas, the possession of the only true and authentic Gospel, derive their knowledge of the existence of the 'Gospel of Barnabas' solely from Sale's Preface and Preliminary Discourse, of which they are known to possess a translation.

And so we find that the external authority for an Arabic original melts away into the conjecture of Cramer, expressed on his dedication-page: 'Sive Arabice, sive alia lingua, et si quis coniecturae locus est, a Sergio Monacho Nestoriano, uno e tribus illis Alcorani architectis, compositum' . . . 'in Italicum sermonem . . . conversum.'

With the internal evidence<sup>4</sup>, such as it is, we deal below; as also with the negative argument to be drawn from Arabic writers. Suffice it here to suggest that that document itself offers no independent corroboration to the very natural and obvious a priori conjecture of our eighteenth-century critics. And we venture to say that if now, at the eleventh hour, Mohammedan controversialists should produce an Arabic

Barnabas, it would be necessary to test it thoroughly, by linguistic and literary as well as by archaeological tests, lest that should be hastily assumed as original which might prove after all to be a version made from the Italian.

II. SUBJECT-MATTER OF BARNABAS.

When we turn from the outward form and history of the document to consider its material content, we can distinguish at once (i) an obvious and primary dependence upon the Christian Bible, and especially upon the four Canonical Gospels; (ii) frequent and voluminous insertions of Jewish and Mohammedan matter; and (iii) traces of hagiological and other mediaeval material. It will be convenient to make a few remarks upon each of these in turn.

(i) The very obvious dependence of Barnabas upon our Canonical Scriptures, more especially upon the four Canonical Gospels, disposes once for all of its claim to be, as it stands, an authentic and independent 'evangelium.'

(1) Dependence on the Christian Bible.

Of the thirty-nine books commonly enumerated in our Canon of the Old Testament, no fewer than twenty-two are quoted or referred to by Barnabas, many of them by name. In one or two cases our author's memory plays him false, and he cites Proverbs as 'David' and Isaiah as 'Ezekiel,' or vice versa. But on the whole his knowledge of the Old Testament is remarkably full and accurate, showing none of the vagueness and egregious blundering of the Scripture allusions in the Qorân<sup>1</sup>.

Use of the Canonical Books in Barnabas.

His favourite books are 'David' (i.e. the Psalter), to which he refers more than thirty times, and Isaiah, quoted twenty-five times or more. Next come Genesis and Exodus: the former as containing the record of the 'origines mundi'; the latter congenial in virtue of its miracles of judgement. The books of the Pentateuch are constantly quoted as 'Moses'. The earlier historical books—the 'Former Prophets'—are cited with some frequency, Kings being apparently ascribed to Daniel: the later group is practically ignored, being represented by a single reference to Chronicles.

The Apocryphal Books—reckoned, no doubt, with the Canon of the Old Testament by the writer of Barnabas<sup>1</sup>—appear sparingly. Citations from Ecclesiasticus and Wisdom are attributed to ‘Solomon’; a reminiscence of Tobit is combined in one place with a quotation from Deuteronomy<sup>2</sup>; and there is a reference to the false judgement passed upon Susanna.

Of the twenty-seven books comprised in our New Testament, references direct or indirect may be found to at least nineteen; and these include not only the Gospels—which, as we shall see, form the fundamental substratum of the whole document—but also the Acts and the Apocalypse, the Epistle to the Hebrews, and the Epistles of St. James, St. Peter, and St. John. And, what is in some ways more important still, there is a fairly frequent dependence upon the writings of that Apostle of the Gentiles whose ‘erroneous teaching’ it is ‘Barnabas’ professed purpose to combat<sup>3</sup>. We have found traces of a majority of the Pauline Epistles<sup>4</sup>. Perhaps the most significant instance is that in 182<sup>b</sup>, where ‘Barnabas,’ while ostensibly quoting from the original passage in Exodus, has really the Epistle to the Romans in his mind<sup>5</sup>.

The comparatively frequent references to the Epistles of the New Testament constitute another of the many conclusive arguments against the Barnaban authorship of this ‘Gospel’. It is not merely that the phenomena of Barnabas presuppose common material—the use, e.g., of an oral tradition used also by our Canonical New Testament writers; a more intimate relation to St. Paul’s writings and to the Catholic Epistles, including 2 St. Peter, is implied by the recurrence of verbal coincidences.

‘Barnabas’
‘Harmony
Gospels.’

But the central document for Barnabas is that represented by our four Gospels. And though about one third of the bulk is derived from other sources, yet the four Canonical Gospels may be shown to form the fundamental substratum of the entire document. The distinctively Mohammedan and Talmudic matter is introduced as it were parenthetically, and mostly into discourses put into the mouth of Christ. The Gospels supply the framework of the narrative and a large proportion also of the discourses<sup>1</sup>. Thus, the story begins with a combination of the opening narratives of the first and third Gospels—the Annunciation, Nativity, Circumcision, Visit of the Magi, Flight into Egypt, Massacre of the Innocents, and the Finding in the Temple<sup>2</sup>. Its central portion deals with the ‘prophetic ministry’ initiated ‘when Jesus was thirty years old’<sup>3</sup>, and is occupied with journeyings, miracles, parables, and ethical and eschatological discourses; in which, though a very unscientific harmony of the Gospels is implied<sup>4</sup>, yet the general outline of the canonical narrative can be discerned. Finally, the last pages record a Paschal Supper, a Betrayal, a Trial and a Crucifixion<sup>5</sup>, to which each of the four Gospels has contributed its quota, though the sequence is perhaps mainly that of the fourth<sup>6</sup>: and the ‘Gospel’ concludes with a reappearance of Christ to His intimate followers and His Ascension into heaven<sup>7</sup>.

So much for the general outline. It may now be worth while to consider one or two passages in detail, in order to make clear the author’s manner of employing his Gospel-material: premising that he uses each Gospel impartially, having no animus, e. g., against the fourth as the record par excellence of Christ’s Divinity. In the res primae, as we have seen, he follows very closely the accounts of St. Matthew and St. Luke. In other places, as, e. g., the feeding of the five thousand and the story of the Passion, he seems to have the fourth Gospel chiefly in mind, while not a few passages have St. Mark as their immediate basis.

‘Barnabas’ betrays his dependence in various ways. Sometimes when he is ostensibly quoting from the Old Testament, we observe that he really has a Gospel passage in mind, as when a citation from 'Isaiah' is found to include also the evangelist's commentary on the prophet's words<sup>1</sup>. Sometimes a narrative, like that of the Samaritan Woman, or of the Man born blind, while diverging from the Gospel original in characteristic details, follows its outline almost slavishly, even to the position of parentheses<sup>2</sup>. Again, the dependence of 'Barnabas' on the four Gospels is testified by a series of passages in which, quoting from memory, he combines incidents which in the Gospel records are distinct, or confuses together two narratives which have but a superficial resemblance.

Thus he groups together the language used at the first Cleansing of the Temple (St. John ii) and that of the second (St. Matt. xxi)<sup>3</sup>. He combines features of the story of the bowed woman in the synagogue (St. Luke xiii) with others derived from that of the dropsical man at the feast (St. Luke xiv)<sup>4</sup>; he identifies St. Matthew's centurion (St. Matt. viii) with St. John's nobleman (St. John iv)<sup>5</sup>. He apparently confounds Simon Peter with Simon the Leper and Simon the Pharisee, and so combines the narrative of St. Matthew xxvi with that of St. Luke iv<sup>6</sup>. His account of the demoniac and the swine is apparently based on St. Mark or St. Luke (for there is one madman, not two); but the phrase 'before the time' is introduced from the corresponding passage in St. Matthew<sup>7</sup>.

In short, no candid reader of Barnabas, furnished with even elementary critical acumen, can fail to recognize that our document is dependent for the bulk of its matter on the four Canonical Gospels of Christendom<sup>8</sup>.

'Barnabas' harmony of the evangelistic narratives is a poor one, as we have already hinted. Not only does he combine and identify similar miracles which in his originals are quite distinct, but he mixes up, as we might expect, the Galilean and Judæan ministries, and further adds gratuitously apocryphal expeditions to Damascus<sup>1</sup> and to Mount Sinai<sup>2</sup>. And though, here and there, it pleases him to flaunt before us seemingly exact notes of time—implying a definite duration of three years for the entire ministry<sup>3</sup>—yet the general impression is vague in the extreme, and the general sequence and chronological scheme of the Gospels are very largely ignored.

Further, his geographical ignorance matches his chronological vagueness. This 'Apostle,' who had wandered up and down with his Master through the whole length of Palestine, from Damascus and Caesarea Philippi to Mount Sinai, is apparently of opinion that one can sail by boat to Nazareth<sup>4</sup>, and his narrative suggests such a voyage even from Nazareth to Jerusalem<sup>5</sup>! Evidently he possesses no first-hand knowledge of Palestine, still less of Palestine in the first century of our era. His horizon, as would be natural in a mediaeval writer, is largely occupied with kings and potentates and their courts<sup>6</sup>. He has much to say about Herod and the 'Pontiff', about Pilate and the Roman Senate: but his enlargements upon Scripture are for the most part inappropriate, if not actually compromising. Herod, Pilate, and Caiaphas are found frequently hobnobbing together<sup>7</sup>; Caiaphas begs Pilate to procure a decree from the Roman Senate making it a capital offence to call Jesus God or Son of God; and this decree is posted up in the Temple, engraved upon copper<sup>8</sup>! Mary, Martha, and Lazarus are proprietors of whole villages, like mediaeval 'signori'<sup>9</sup>, and we have, in general, an atmosphere of the Middle Ages rather than of the first century.

'Barnabas' ignorance of first-century Palestine.

<sup>6</sup> The references to Herod are numerous, and appear also in parables and similes. 'Barnabas' attitude towards kings is well represented by the capital R with which the MS. always dignifies the word 'Re'—an honour not granted even to 'dio'.

But if 'Barnabas' is ignorant of Palestine and of the first century, he at any rate possesses, unlike the author of the Qorân, a first-hand knowledge of the Christian Scriptures. No one can read many pages of his work without being impressed with this. His occasional inaccuracies are outweighed by a very general and intelligent knowledge alike of the Old Testament and of the New. Whence did he derive this familiarity? What version had he studied? The writer of our Italian document (whether it be the original or no) might naturally have availed himself of any existing vernacular version. But a comparison of his text with the earliest Italian versions seems to show it independent of them all. We give two specimens of such comparison below: the first from the Magnificat; the second from the Parable of the Prodigal.

Here it will be seen at once how very free is 'Barnabas' rendering when compared with the other Italian versions, all of which follow the Vulgate more or less closely, alike in order and in choice of words. But, since in so familiar a passage the scribe or translator might be expected to take his own line more irresponsibly, writing on from memory without constant reference to his original, it will be better to subjoin a short narrative passage. The following table (taken, except for 'Barnabas' version, from M. Berger) shows the opening of the parable of the Prodigal Son:—

THE PRODIGAL SON.

Barnabas, 160 <sup>a</sup> .	Vulgate, St. Luke xv. 11-13.	Italian vers., xiv. cent. (MS. Riccardi, 1252a.)	Provençal vers., xiii. cēnt. (ap. Berger).

Egli fu uno padre di famiglia il quale haueua dui figlioli he il piu giouine disse . padre dami la mia portione di roba il che li dete il padre suo il quale riceuta la portione sua . si parti he andete in paesse lontanoondeconsumo tutta la fachulta sua chon meretrice uiuendo lussuriosamente.

Homo quidam habuit duos filios; et dixit adolescentior ex illis patri: Pater, da mihi portionem substantiae quae me contingit. Et diuisit illis substantiam. Et non post multos dies, congregatis omnibus, adolescentior filius peregre profectus est in regionem longinquam, et ibi dissipauit substantiam uiuendo luxuriose.

Uno huomo ebbe dui figliuoli et disse lo piu giovane di quelli padre dami la parte mia della nostra sustantia et non dopo molti die raghuno tutte le parti delle cose sue lo piu giovane figliuolo et andoue malandrinando in un paese alungi et là distrusse et sciaacquò la sustantia sua uiuendo lussuriosamente.

Un homo era lo qual aveva ij fioj e llo plu çovene disse so pare pare dame la mia parte de lo chastello che mi tocha, e lo pare parti la sustancia e dè a queluy la soa parte, e dentro brieve termine tute cose asemblade insembre lo plu çovene fyo andè fuore de lo paese e spendi là tuta la soa sustancia uiuendo luxuriosamente.

Here Barnabas has a couple of verbal coincidences with the Vulgate—portione, which is obvious, though the rest have parte, and uiuendo lussuriosamente, which is almost inevitable. But he characteristically introduces chon meretrice from v. 30, and is in every way independent of the other vernacular versions: all of which, according to Prof. Berger, are ultimately related to the Provençal type<sup>1</sup>.

From the specimen verses of the Magnificat one might almost be tempted to go further and claim for Barnabas an independence also of the Vulgate, from which the other vernacular versions are translated. But a wider comparison disposes at once of such an idea. The coincidences with the actual language of the Vulgate, and that often in passages where it is particularly obscure, are too frequent and too precise to leave room for doubt that it was from the familiar version of St. Jerome that our writer drew his knowledge of the Christian Scriptures. In the footnotes to the text we have collected some fifteen instances from the Old Testament and seven from the Gospels, in which the coincidences would seem too striking to be accidental; and it is perhaps scarcely hazardous to infer that a more exhaustive comparison than it has been in our power to institute would corroborate the results so far obtained. The most remarkable instances are from the Psalter and Lamentations:—

Io ascendere nello chor suo dispone nella ualle delle lachrime.

Vulgate, Ps. lxxxiv (lxxxiii). 6, 7.

ascensiones in corde suo disposuit

Barnabas, 11<sup>a</sup>.

Auanti lucifero . . . ti o chreato.

Barnabas, 126<sup>b</sup>.

Io hochio mio he uno ladro il
qualle roba la anima mia.

Vulgate, Lam. iii. 51.

oculus meus deprædatus est

Exodus, Job, Ecclesiastes, and Isaiah contribute other striking instances; but the phenomenon is by no means confined to the Old Testament. The praeses of St. Luke ii. 2 is rendered by preside (5<sup>a</sup>), the hydria of St. John iv. 28 by idria (86<sup>a</sup>), the probatica piscina of St. John v. 2 by probatica piscina (67<sup>b</sup>), and St. Luke's videamus hoc verbum (ii. 15) by uediamo la parola (6<sup>b</sup>); and so on.

In fine, the version of 'Barnabas' is generally free, and his quotations are sometimes inexact, through carelessness or lapsus memoriae, but ever and again he so faithfully reproduces the Vulgate word for word that we may be justified in attributing to him a real and immediate familiarity with that version.

Bearing
question
ship.

The bearing of this on the question of authorship is not unimportant. It is too soon to dogmatize; yet the results so far obtained seem to point to an author (or translator) for our Italian Barnabas nurtured in Latin Christianity of the Middle Ages or the Renaissance, and having a special familiarity with the Psalter, suggestive of that constant use of the breviary offices not unknown indeed among the devout laity, but more characteristic of priest or monk.

(ii) The Qorân is full of mangled and half-understood Jewish and Christian stories. The generally accepted explanation of this phenomenon is that Mohammed in the earlier stages of his mission was largely dependent for inspiration on what he overheard in streets and bazaars from the lips of the 'People of the Book' <sup>(ii) Jewish and Mohammedan material.</sup> <sup>'Barnabas' and the Qorân.</sup> <sup>1</sup>. The theory that he employed documentary sources—that he had access, e.g., to the Bible or a part of it—is prohibited by the stupendous inaccuracies of which he is guilty in very simple matters, of which a typical instance is the identification of Moses' sister Miriam with the Blessed Virgin <sup>2</sup>.

Mohammed's early intercourse with eastern Christians and with Jews has however left its mark upon his book, alike on the ascetic and on the doctrinal side; and, though he knows little or nothing of the Canonical Scriptures, the Qorân bears a strong impress of Rabbinical lore, as also of heretical Christian teaching of the type of the 'Protevangelium', from which Mohammed reproduces certain touches in connexion with the Lord's Mother and His infancy. <sup>Use of apocryphal gospels.</sup>

'Barnabas', on the other hand, is remarkably free from traces of pseudo-evangelistic influence, at least as regards his record of the Saviour's birth and babyhood.

The one extra-canonical touch—the Birth without pain (5<sup>b</sup>), in which, as we shall see, he contradicts the Qorân—may indeed constitute such a trace <sup>3</sup>; but on the other hand it was a part of the accepted tradition of Latin mediaeval Christianity. The Rabbinic element in Barnabas is far more obvious. In the measurement of the heavens, in which each is said to be distant from the next 500 years' journey (III<sup>a</sup>), we have an exact reproduction of the tradition given in the Jerusalem Talmud <sup>4</sup>. In the attribution to Solomon of <sup>Use of Rabbinic legends.</sup> magical powers (76<sup>a</sup>), and the ascription to him of the later Jewish formulae of exorcism (71<sup>b</sup>), Barnabas, like the Qorân, is following the Talmud: and a similar instance is exhibited in the narrative of the somewhat grotesque miracle effected by the utterance of the formula ADDONAI SABAOT! (167<sup>b</sup>). Some also of the puerile legends grouped round the Creation and the fall of Satan and of Adam have doubtless a parentage partly Jewish. But that the author of Barnabas had direct access to Rabbinical literature would perhaps be difficult to prove. The filterings supplied by Mohammedan tradition from the Qorân onwards would be, in all probability, sufficient to account for the facts.

Barnabas
tizes and

Qorân.

Specific

The relation of Barnabas to the Qorân is a matter of considerable interest as regards both similarity and divergence. A dozen points of contact have been pointed out in the notes <sup>1</sup>, and an exhaustive study would probably furnish at least as many again. These points of contact yield varying results. Sometimes Barnabas simply repeats with emphasis the characteristic teaching of the Qorân, putting it into the mouth of the Nazarene prophet: as in the passage which corresponds to the 'Sermon on the Mount,' where the doctrine of Surah cxii is preached <sup>2</sup>. Sometimes the parallel is of a rather different kind, consisting, for example, in the important rôle played by Gabriel, mentor of Christ in this 'Gospel' as of Mohammed in the Qorân <sup>3</sup>, or in the similar description found in each book of the way in which the 'Revelation' or 'Gospel' descends <sup>4</sup>.

Not seldom, Barnabas gives a more expanded, consistent, and definite story, of which the Qorân contains but the germs. A typical instance is the story of Abraham's childhood and call. In the Qorân, Abraham, by a slight variation from the Jewish legend <sup>5</sup>, is represented as mocking his father's idolatry and indulging in energetic measures of iconoclasm, and as escaping the summary vengeance of the idolaters by a miracle, God forbidding the fire to burn <sup>6</sup>. So also here: but in

Similarly in the legend of the fall of Satan: Eblis, in the Qorân, is condemned for his refusal to do reverence to Adam<sup>2</sup>: Barnabas repeats the story more circumstantially, and moreover makes it clear that the call to do homage is anticipatory, its object being the 'massa di terra' out of which man is to be created<sup>3</sup>. Again, in the Qorân's account of the sacrifice of Abraham the name of the intended victim is not given<sup>4</sup>. The commentators interpret—'Ishmael'; but 'Barnabas', in whom the Ishmael legend is constantly to the fore, has Ishmael in the text of his passage<sup>5</sup>.

In his angelology, again, 'Barnabas' is more definite and developed. In both Barnabas and the Qorân angels are the recorders of men's good and evil deeds<sup>6</sup>; in both they receive departing souls into their keeping<sup>7</sup>; in both the archangel Gabriel is a prominent figure. But, whereas in the Qorân no angels but Michael (Surah ii. 92) and Gabriel are named, and it is reserved for the commentators to specify further Azrael and Israfil, 'Barnabas' has his list of 'four favourite angels of God,' Gabriel, Michael, Rafael, and Uriel<sup>8</sup>, to each of whom a definite office is assigned<sup>9</sup>.

The magic transformation of Judas, and his arrest, trial, and crucifixion in his Master's place<sup>10</sup>, are also, in a sense, a development of hints in the Qorân. But in the Qorân itself, though a 'docetic' Passion is more than once alluded to<sup>11</sup>, no substitute, as, e. g., Simon the Cyrenian, or 'Titian', or Judas, is named. Here, again, 'Barnabas' performs the part of a commentator—unless indeed he has been working up a separate document now lost to us<sup>12</sup>.

In eschatological matters Barnabas represents partly an expansion, partly a purification of the conceptions of the Qorân. The two are alike, for instance, in the immense stress laid upon the Judgement to come—one of Mohammed's favourite themes<sup>1</sup>—and in the graphic portrayal of its terrors; but Barnabas is unquestionably more dignified and more convincing. The dramatic period of forty years in which 'nothing is alive but God' finds a modified parallel in the accepted Muslim tradition<sup>2</sup>, but 'Barnabas' description is throughout far more powerful. As regards Hell and Paradise there is a considerable divergence. 'Barnabas' Hell<sup>3</sup> is arranged on a scheme of the Seven Capital Sins, the list of which had scarcely attained its final stereotyped form in Mohammed's day<sup>4</sup>; and his Paradise, though he pleads earnestly and sensibly for a place therein for the body, is a far less sensuous garden of delights than that of the Qorân<sup>5</sup>.

The record of the Annunciation and Nativity supplies another point of comparison between the Qorân and our 'Gospel,' in which 'Barnabas' triumphs in virtue of his superior knowledge of Scripture. In the confused accounts of Surah iii and xix, Mary the mother of Jesus is 'daughter of Imram' (Amram) and 'sister of Aaron'; and the apocryphal story of her nurture within the Temple and betrothal by drawing of rods, which, filtered through the pages of Jacobus de Voragine, furnished so fruitful a subject for the painters of the fourteenth and following centuries, is combined with the miraculous help of a palm-tree in her hour of need, that suggests the Latona of classical mythology. 'Barnabas' adds indeed to his account of Our Lord's annunciation touches from the story of St. John the Baptist (whose name and personality, for some mysterious reason, he sees fit to suppress), and a few touches also from the similar record of the Annunciation of Samson<sup>6</sup>. But his narrative, unlike that of the Qorân, is based entirely on the text of St. Matthew and St. Luke, from which the only positive divergence of any importance is the statement already alluded to, that the Virgin brought forth her Son 'senza dolore'; whereas in the Qorân<sup>1</sup> it is distinctly affirmed that the 'pangs of childbirth came upon her'. Here, then, Barnabas diverges at once from the Qorân and from the Canonical Gospels (which are silent on the subject); and here, if anywhere, we may perhaps see a vestige of the lost Gnostic 'Evangelium Barnabæ'<sup>2</sup>.

With this exception, it is worthy of note that our writer, though indeed he lacks any sense of artistic fitness and proportion in the matter of miracles<sup>3</sup>, has steered clear of those childish marvels of the Protevangelium and its kind<sup>4</sup> which have left their mark on Surah xix of the Qorân.

A more crucial point of divergence is that of the doctrine of the Messiah. If there is any Messiah in the Qorân, it is 'Christ (al-Masîh) Jesus, Son of Mary,' 'the Word proceeding from God.'<sup>5</sup> In Barnabas, on the contrary, Jesus is made to deny most solemnly all claim to Messiahship<sup>6</sup>, and to confer upon Mohammed that title<sup>7</sup>, which he never claims for himself in the Qorân.

This phenomenon has been accounted for by the hypothesis that our 'Gospel' must have been prepared for the use of Islam by an ex-Christian still imperfectly instructed in his new faith<sup>8</sup>. But though 'Barnabas' certainly knows his Bible better than his Qorân, that can hardly be his reason for divergence here. The transference of the Messianic title is not an isolated slip of pen or memory, but of a piece with his elimination of St. John the Baptist. We have observed how his account of the Annunciation, obviously taken from Luke i. 26 sqq., is enriched with touches taken from the story of the Forerunner's birth in the earlier part of that same chapter. In the Qorân we have an echo of those earlier verses; one of Mohammed's characteristically muddled 'hearsay' accounts, in which the angel of the Lord announces to His aged servant Zacharias the birth of a son to be named John<sup>1</sup>; in Barnabas neither Zacharias nor John is once mentioned, in spite of the fact that the verses in question seem to have been used by our author or his sources. Whether the writer of our document found a 'Gospel' ready to his hand which, though it used St. Luke freely, for some reason eliminated the Forerunner—and, finding this, felt at liberty to assign the Forerunner's place and words to Christ<sup>2</sup>; or whether, having himself determined to identify Mohammed with the Messiah (who is for him always of the seed of Ishmael<sup>3</sup>), he deliberately assigned the place of forerunner to Jesus, and hence was constrained to eliminate the Baptist—in either case the two phenomena would seem to be related<sup>4</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> See below, p. xlv sqq. The idea occurs in the Pseudo-Matthew apocryphal gospel (fifth century), chap. xiii, 'But as there is no defilement of blood on the child, so there is no pain in the mother' (Eng. Tr. by B. H. Cowper, Williams and Norgate, 1870).

'Barnabas' certainly makes Mohammed to be the Messiah: does he also, as has been asserted, accord to him the title of Paraclete? No more, we would reply, and no less than does the Qorân itself. In a celebrated passage in the middle of the short Surah entitled 'Battle Array'<sup>5</sup>, Mohammed, having possibly in his mind a reminiscence of John xiv. 26, xv. 26, xvi. 7, &c., had put into the mouth of 'Jesus, Son of Mary' a prediction of himself, in the following terms: 'Verily I am the apostle of God sent unto you, confirming the law which was delivered before me, and bringing good tidings of an apostle who shall come after me, and whose name shall be

Ahmed.' The Persian paraphrast directly refers to the verses in St. John as supporting the text, and the Muslim commentators are unanimous in a confusion—perhaps intentional—of περικλυτὸς ('Periclyte' = famous, praised = Ahmed<sup>1</sup> = Mohammed) with the παράκλητος of our Lord's prediction<sup>2</sup>: and hence the persistent Mohammedan tradition in India which asserts that the Prophet of Islam is the promised Comforter of the Gospel. In the Italian text of Barnabas the reference is no clearer than that in the text of the Qorân—so vague, in fact, as to be unrecognizable. In one place, when about to reveal the name 'Machometo' to the High Priest, Jesus is made to say 'il nome del messia he admirabile'<sup>3</sup>; but in the passage where the Arabic glossator has seen a reference to the Paraclete<sup>4</sup> the phrase is 'uno splendore'. The gloss in question is sufficiently confused. It makes 'splendore' equivalent to the Arabic 'Ahmed', but also to the Hebrew 'Messiah', the Latin 'Consolator', and the Greek παράκλητος<sup>5</sup>. It is presumably to this passage and the gloss upon it that Sale is alluding—unless he too, for once, is quoting from hearsay<sup>6</sup>—when he says: 'instead of the Paraclete or Comforter they have in this apocryphal Gospel inserted the word Periclyte, that is famous or illustrious, by which they pretend their prophet was foretold by name'<sup>7</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> The fullest discussion of this word is to be found in Ibn Taimiyyah, loc. citando, iv. 6-8: 'Of this word Paraclete in their language several accounts are given. Some say it = حَمَاد "greatly praising"; some حامد "praising", some معز "strengthenener" (perhaps المعزي "consoler"): some say it means "praise". The last is preferred by some, who aver that it is proved by the words of Joshua, "whoso does well shall have a good Paraclete", i. e. "good praise".—(These words seem to be those quoted from Aboth by Buxtorf and Levy: הַצֶּדֶק מַצֵּחַ אַחַת קִרְיָה לֹא פִרְקִישׁ אֶחָד)—and also by their well-known phrase in accosting . . . (the following words are corrupt). Those who say it means "Saviour" urge that it is Syriac, and derived from pārak, "to save", with ū a Syriac expletive particle. Those who interpret it "fortifier" say it is Greek.'—I should regard the statement in the Qorân as a deliberate fiction, to which no importance need be attached.—D. S. M.

‘EPITHET OF THE APOSTLE OF GOD FOUND IN THE GOSPEL.

I have heard with reference to the revelation made by Jesus the Son of Mary in the Gospel unto the Christians, about an epithet given to the Apostle of God, in what St. John wrote in his Gospel about the testimony of Jesus the Son of Mary to the Apostle of God, that he said as follows :—

“He that hath hated me hath hated the Lord; and if I had not done in their presence deeds which none had done before me, they had had no sin. But now they have been petulant and have thought that they were stronger than me and the Lord also. But the word in the Law must be fulfilled, ‘They hated me in vain,’ i. e. without cause. And if the Manḥamanna had come, he that God shall send unto you from the Lord, and the Spirit of Equity from the Lord had gone forth, he would be a witness for me, and ye too that have been with me from of old (would be witnesses). This I have said to you that ye should not doubt.”

Now the Manḥamanna in Syriac means “praised” (i. e. muḥammad in Arabic) and in Greek it is Baragliŋtis.<sup>2</sup>

Barnabas, like the Qorân, contains much beautiful teaching on the subject of prayer. The hours of prayer mentioned and enjoined in our ‘Gospel’ seem to correspond with those of Surah xvii. But where Mohammed is vague—his ‘declension of the sun’ is made by commentators to represent two distinct hours, (1) just after noon, and (2) before sunset—‘Barnabas’ is explicit. He enumerates the five traditional hours, if not also a sixth<sup>3</sup>.

Pater Noster to be used (as no doubt its prototype was used by the prophet's Christian neighbours) as a sort of charm or incantation against trouble. With characteristic Muslim severity this prayer lacks the key-word 'Our Father'.

A later form—expanding the Ne nos inducas somewhat after the manner of the early liturgies—has obscure allusions to the errors of certain people who are presumably Jews and Christians. 'Barnabas' gives a much closer parallel to the original prayer, and gives it in its true place after the disciples' request 'Signore, insegna ci ha fare horatione'.<sup>1</sup> His version, however, still lacks 'Our Father', though its 'Lead us not' is not farced, and it concludes with the traditional doxology<sup>2</sup>.

Like prayer, almsgiving and fasting are prominent alike in the Qorân and in Barnabas, but though the Christ of this 'Gospel' in his rules on fasting, which are characterized by a remarkable degree of common sense, elaborates and makes explicit the germ-suggestions of Surah ii, he is not described as observing, even prophetically, the formal fast of Islam. The fast of Ramadân, ordained in the Qorân<sup>3</sup> as a memorial of the season in which the Qorân itself was sent down from heaven, is a lunar month of twenty-eight days; it is in no sense a 'Quadragesima'.<sup>4</sup> Jesus and his disciples are in fact described as observing the Christian Lent.

On some points Barnabas exhibits quite unmistakable marks of Muslim controversy subsequent to the age of Mohammed, and shows itself, in such sense, antagonistic to the letter of the Qorân. The uncompromising determinism of Surah xvii<sup>5</sup>, which teaches that 'every man's fate is' irrevocably 'bound about his neck', is here replaced by a remarkably philosophical pleading for the rights of free will<sup>6</sup> on which, together with the law of God, the true doctrine of Predestination is declared to be based—'la predestinatione ha per fondamento la legie di DIO chon il libero arbitrio humano.' Here we may see, if we will, Kadarian or Motazilite doctrine<sup>1</sup>—or the influence of mediaeval Christian speculation.

Mysticism. Similar traces of later doctrinal development, combined also, probably, with Christian sentiment, may be discerned in the mysticism of Barnabas, as in its universalistic and ascetic tendencies. The mystical tendency, so contrary to the stern, hard view of the Almighty prevalent in the Qorân, is exemplified in the history of Islam by an almost Neoplatonic school which appeared comparatively early in Palestine<sup>2</sup>, whose disciples held that all things were to be sacrificed for the sake of union with God, the supreme object of love. And from this followed naturally the ascetic tendency to a hermit's life of solitary contemplation, so characteristic of Barnabas. In Persia and India this mystical tendency took the form of Şûfism, and verged in the direction of Pantheism. In Barnabas, without any observable leanings towards Pantheism, there is a succession of noble and beautiful thoughts concerning love of God, union with God, and God as Himself the final reward of faithful service, which it would be difficult to match in any literature<sup>3</sup>.

Universalistic teaching.

Once more, our 'Gospel' exhibits a latitudinarian charity which gives a place side by side with the faithful to virtuous Gentiles who have 'acted up to their lights'. On this point the Qorân may be said to give an uncertain sound. In Surah ii and iv, representing, presumably, more lenient moments in the prophet's career, it is suggested that there is hope not only for the faithful, but also for Jews, Christians, and Sabaeans—for those, that is, who believe in God and the last day<sup>4</sup>—provided they do right: but in Surah iii we are faced by the uncompromising statement that 'whosoever followeth any other religion than Islam, it shall not be accepted of him, and at the last day he shall be of those that perish.' This latter is the doctrine on which Mohammed's immediate followers acted. But Barnabas declares unhesitatingly that God's saving message is for all<sup>1</sup>; that man as man has an impulse to serve God, an impulse which, though obscured, is not extinguished by sin, and that the virtuous heathen are objects of God's mercy, and will be enlightened at death if not earlier<sup>2</sup>—a doctrine illustrated and enforced by one of the most beautiful and original of the apocryphal parables in the book<sup>3</sup>.

Finally, there is the ascetic strain in the 'Gospel', which is in strong contrast with Mohammed's own teaching. In his early days, and again in the Meccan period, the founder of Islam deliberately restrained his followers from ascetic ideals, being 'resolved to have no monkery in Islam'.<sup>4</sup> He speaks indeed, in one place<sup>5</sup>, of wife and children as inimical to the religious life, but he has no more intention of inculcating compulsory celibacy than had Saint Paul, when he penned the seventh chapter of his first epistle to Corinth<sup>6</sup>.

Yet the monastic and eremitic example of the neighbouring Oriental Christians had its effect upon Islam, and Sūfism, with its ideal of mystic contemplation, soon developed a tendency towards the hermit life<sup>7</sup>. 'Barnabas' idea is much more unmitigated. Ascetic teaching comes out in searching severity of precepts about penitence and humility, about fasting, almsgiving, and prayer<sup>8</sup>; an ascetic rule of life is enunciated in the 'Libreto di hellia'<sup>9</sup>; but the tendency bursts forth in joyous exuberance in the stories of the 'true Pharisees', hermits of Elijah's day, and the anchorite-prophets Haggai and Hosea. We are here at once in the atmosphere of mediaeval hagiology. The naïve and quaintly humorous pietism of these scenes, with their delightfully extravagant dialogues, transports us now into the solitude of the Egyptian desert, where we recognize in St. Anthony and St. Paul the first-cousins of 'Barnabas' 'old and young Pharisee'<sup>1</sup>; now again we are carried to the hills and valleys of Umbria and Central Italy, where we rejoice in the pious extravagances of the heroes of the Fioretti. The 'Hosea' of Barnabas has Frate Ginepro's reckless abandon, while his master, 'Haggai', bears a still closer resemblance to the more celebrated Fra Jacopone da Todi. The terrible self-depreciatory prayer put into Haggai's mouth<sup>2</sup> breathes the very spirit of Jacopone's weird rime, in which he first calls down upon himself every imaginable disease—

O signor per cortesia
 Mandami la malsania
 A me la freve quartana
 La continua e la terzana
 La doppia cottidiana
 Colla grande idropesia

 E 'n cannon la squimanzia . . .

and finally entreats the Lord of His mercy to impose on him not only 'all evils in this life,' but in the next 'all the pains that are owing, both for my own sins and those of the souls in Purgatory, and also, if possible, for those of the eternally damned . . . and that without the thanks of those for whom I suffer.'<sup>3</sup>

Similarly, but with even more simplicity and freedom from self-consciousness, prays Haggai, the 'poverello' of Barnabas: 'Pero, Signore, quando tu uoi dare una infermita ad uno tuo seruo, arechordati di me seruo tuo per gloria tua!' Whatever his date, the author of the Italian Barnabas moves sympathetically in a mediaeval environment; in the atmosphere of the thirteenth century. It may be worth while to consider somewhat more particularly this mediaeval colouring of the 'Gospel'.

(iii) Our MS. dates, as we have seen, from the latter half of the sixteenth century; and La Monnoye (who regards it as about a century earlier) expressly warns us against looking upon its orthographic and other solecisms as a mark of antiquity<sup>1</sup>. Our Muslim friends, on the other hand, would claim for the document, in its primitive form, an apostolic origin in the first century of our era. The true date lies, we imagine, nearer to the sixteenth century than to the first.

The external evidence for the supposed 'Arabic original' we have seen to be of the slenderest order; but before we deal directly with the external evidence on that point it may not be amiss to consider what can be said for the hypothesis of an earlier Italian document, of which the Vienna MS. would be a copy.

The alternative before us would seem to be simple. Either there was such an Italian archetype, or else our codex is a deliberate forgery of the latter half of the sixteenth century (say 1565-90), possibly by the hand of 'Fra Marino' himself. In this case the lost Spanish version will be a translation made from the actual Vienna MS., or else a twin-sister, part of the same elaborate literary hoax.

The hypothesis of an earlier original of the fourteenth or fifteenth century has, at first sight, much to be said for it. There is an originality, a naïveté, a mediaeval Italian tone and atmosphere about the document; and there are, besides, certain definite indications which make for an early date.

Oriental colouring there was bound to be, from the nature of the subject-matter and the plan of the work. Holy Scripture—itself, from one point of view, a collection of Semitic literature—supplies the ground-work of the book and contributes nearly two-thirds of its bulk; rabbinic and Arabian legend—again Semitic, Oriental—occupies most of the remaining space; and, finally, the whole purpose and tendency of the 'Gospel' is Mohammedan. That in spite of all this the style of the book and the atmosphere which it breathes should have in them so much of the Occident, and of Italy, is the more surprising; and bespeaks—if not a purely Italian and mediæval or renaissance origin for Barnabas—at least a rare originality and individuality in him who first put its contents into their present form<sup>1</sup>.

His picturesque eulogy of the 'bellezza' of the summer season of fruits<sup>2</sup> voices an experience that is almost world-wide; and familiar parallels from the Old Testament will at once present themselves<sup>3</sup>. But the passage itself, with its 'chontadino inebriato di allegrezza' for the harvest that is come, making the 'hills and valleys resound with his singing,' 'somamente ammando le suoi fatiche,' might be written to-day as a realistic description of the vendemmia in Tuscany or the Veneto. The scene in which the story is laid, and the exigencies of his subject, leave the author comparatively few opportunities for the introduction of local colouring; yet there are not wanting in Barnabas illustrations of contemporary manners and customs—introduced by way of simile or metaphor for the most part. And these, though mostly inconclusive as evidence, are at any rate not incompatible with the conditions of mediæval or renaissance Italy. The expert stone-quarriers<sup>4</sup> and the references to solid stone buildings<sup>5</sup> are more suggestive of a nation of born muratori than of tent-loving Arabs. Then there are frequent though (it must be owned) not very technical references to sailors and shipping<sup>6</sup>; soldiers' drill and tiro a segno in time of peace<sup>7</sup>; there is the slave laden with bread for the labourers in his master's vineyard<sup>8</sup>; the energetic treading out of the grapes<sup>9</sup>; the captive bird on a string<sup>10</sup>; the heavily laden pack-horse<sup>11</sup>; the peasant who owes a proportion of the fruits to his 'padrone'<sup>12</sup>. Some of these are more, some less suggestive of mediaeval Italy, but all are compatible with it. Then there are sketches more elaborately drawn, and in some cases more characteristic. There are the large wooden wine-casks being rolled about to clean them<sup>1</sup>; there is the king giving orders to his stable-boy, while the stallero's humble friend looks on in awe<sup>2</sup>; there is a contempt for barley bread as ascetic fare<sup>3</sup>; there are the ladri well kept down by the soldiers and hanged at sight if they show themselves<sup>4</sup>; there is a distinction between capital punishments—hanging for robbery and decapitation for murder<sup>5</sup>; the arrested prisoner questioned by a magistrate, while a notary—to the detriment of the prisoner's nerves—jots down memoranda of the evidence<sup>6</sup>; finally, there is the proprietorship of whole villages vested in private persons like Mary, Martha, and Lazarus, more mediaeval than levitical, more natural in fourteenth- or fifteenth-century Italy than in first-century Palestine<sup>7</sup>.

Other possible data for judgement may be found perhaps in the mention of the name (Venerdì<sup>8</sup>) of the sixth day of the week, in the reference to sugar<sup>9</sup> as a prized article of commerce, and in certain specifications of coinage<sup>10</sup>; or again in the exegetical, theological, and philosophical groundwork of the book. The doctrine of the painless birth<sup>11</sup>, already mentioned; the identifications of Gospel characters—of the Maries<sup>12</sup>, of Salome<sup>13</sup>, of the man in the linen cloth<sup>14</sup>; Aristotelian allusions—the doctrine of the mean—the tripartite psychology<sup>15</sup>—the form of Ptolemaic astronomy affected by Barnabas<sup>16</sup>: if these do not evince a western origin for the book (seeing that Aristotle came back to us through the Arabs), they bespeak it, at any rate, mediaeval or later.

of the Divina Commedia; and it becomes natural to ask whether Barnabas bears any signs of indebtedness to Dante—or vice versa.

Dante.

Now there is certainly one striking—though perhaps not conclusive—verbal coincidence, in the recurring phrase ‘dei falsi e bugiardi’, which reproduces a cadence of the first canto of the Inferno<sup>1</sup>; not to mention the ‘rabbiosa fame’ of the same canto<sup>2</sup>, which is possibly too little distinctive to count. So much, however, justifies us in looking more closely. The description of the pains and cries of the damned is strongly reminiscent of Dante’s account in the third canto of the Inferno<sup>3</sup>; and the more detailed and classified picture of Hell which appears later on in the book<sup>4</sup> is extremely Dantesque, with its series of ‘circles’, its tormenting devils, its harpies, its biting serpents, its Tantalus-pains and Sisypheus labours, its burning filth . . . and its general principle ‘per quae peccat quis, per haec et torquetur.’

The ‘neui he giazì intollerabili’ of yet another passage bring us back to the thirty-second canto of the Inferno<sup>5</sup>; while the idea of all pollutions of human sin—especially repented sin—streaming back eventually to Satan is the conception which underlies the system of Dante’s rivers of Hell, including the ruscelletto that trickles down from Purgatory<sup>6</sup>. The ‘harrowing of Hell’ at the coming of God’s Messenger, vividly described by ‘Barnabas’, recalls a famous and beautiful passage of Dante<sup>7</sup>. Again, in a quite different context, there is the counsel ‘habandonare il perche’ which suggests Dante’s and, more important still, the statement of the impossibility of absolution to one who is, at the moment, meditating fresh sin—so suggestive of Guido da Montefeltro’s words :

and the explanation—as old as Augustine, but characteristically emphasized by Dante—of the possibility of different grades of glory in Paradise, without envy among the beatified : does not ‘ogniuno si chontentera perche hiui non he inuidia’ at once recall Piccarda’s beautiful lines in the third canto of the Paradiso<sup>2</sup>?

Much, but not all, surely, of the foregoing may be due to par materia. And the same may be said of the ‘geography’, so to speak, of Hell and Heaven. The Qorân recognizes seven Heavens in all, of which ‘Paradise’ is the seventh; Barnabas has nine Heavens, with Paradise—like Dante’s Empyrean—for the tenth<sup>3</sup>. Again, just as Dante’s Purgatory is arranged according to the scheme of the seven capital sins, so is the Hell of ‘Barnabas’ (whose system has no place for Purgatory)<sup>4</sup>. And though the order of the sins in Barnabas differs from Dante’s arrangement—as indeed from that of every known list—it comes nearer to that of Aquinas<sup>5</sup>.

Now if all these details together—and they are the fruits of a casual examination—fail to prove any direct connexion between Dante and Barnabas, they, at any rate, make some such connexion extremely probable. If they are reminiscences of Dante, they are very subtle ones, ‘avoiding the obvious’; if they are not reminiscences, they would seem to point to a common atmosphere for Dante and Barnabas, and to carry back the original Italian Barnabas into the fourteenth century. And this superficially attractive theory is corroborated by an incidental reference to the Jubilee, which, if it could be pressed, would give us a definite date for the origin of Barnabas in its present form. Christ, in a prediction of The Mohammed’s advent, is made to speak of a ‘iubileo . . . che hundred hours uiene ogni cento hanni’.<sup>6</sup> This cannot be the Hebrew years’ Jubilee.

Jubilee, which recurred every fiftieth year<sup>1</sup>; and the Qorân is innocent of Jubilees. There remains, then, the Jubilee of Western Christendom: and there was only one period, so far as we know, when this celebration could have been spoken of as 'recurring every 100 years'. The first recorded Jubilee is that of Boniface VIII in 1300<sup>2</sup>, the second, that of Clement VI in 1350. The first Jubilee had been so brilliant a financial success that it was decided to shorten the interval! This would give us precisely the first half of the fourteenth century as the period in which the passage in question must have been written, and would make the writer of Barnabas (i. e. of the first Italian Barnabas) a contemporary of Dante Alighieri.

The internal evidence of the subject-matter would point, then, to an Italian original of 1300-50 A. D.: unless, indeed, the 'Jubilee' passage is capable of another explanation. What have the language, style, and orthography to say? Their verdict, so far as we are able to understand it, is not quite conclusive. The scribe of the Vienna MS. was certainly a Venetian of the sixteenth or early seventeenth century: to him, apparently, are due the Venetian spelling<sup>3</sup>, and the frequent grammatical deviations from classical Italian usage<sup>4</sup>. To him also may be due the profusion of initial and other gratuitous h's after the manner of Catullus' Arrius:

Chommoda dicebat, si quando commoda vellet
Dicere, et hinsidias Arrius insidias;

but this latter characteristic is not distinctive of any dialect so much as of a period, being found pretty generally, though not quite so intensely as here, in Italian MSS. of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

These solecisms of orthography and grammar apart, the general style and language of the book resemble Tuscan rather than Venetian<sup>1</sup>; and would so far support the evidence already drawn from the subject-matter, making our Vienna MS. a rather careless sixteenth-century copy, made by a Venetian scribe, of an earlier and apparently Tuscan document.

But the question at once arises, is the toscanità which underlies the quaint and curious orthography the language of a true Tuscan, or is it literary Tuscan—the style affected by later Italian writers of whatever district, and fostered most conspicuously in the Cinquecento by the illustrious Venetian Pietro Bembo: the homage paid by later centuries to the genius of Dante and Petrarch?<sup>2</sup> If the hypothesis of an early Tuscan original seems warranted, equally possible is that of a Venetian of the sixteenth century toscanizzante.

In short, some one about 1575—possibly the Fra Marino of the Spanish Preface—either copied out or invented this ‘Gospel of Barnabas’. If he invented it, the more puzzling solecisms may, after all, be a clumsy attempt at archaism, and the main interest for us will lie not so much in the style and orthography of the MS. as in the motives which inspired it, and the materials out of which it was fabricated.

Thus much we may say with confidence. The Italian Barnabas is, to all intents and purposes, an original work. It is the work of one who, whether priest or layman, monk <sup>1</sup> There is a general consensus of opinion, among the learned Italian experts whom we have been privileged to consult, both as to the date of the word-forms and style (fifteenth or sixteenth century), and also as to the mingling or stratification of Tuscan and North-Italian characteristics. Prof. Monaci, of Rome, inclines to a Tuscan original, copied later by a scribe possibly of the Emilia. Prof. Cesareo, of Palermo, ‘ritiene certo che la lingua originale sia il toscano, e che il MS. di Vienna (o il suo archetipo) sia stato copiato da un amanuente lombardo-veneto il quale introdusse qualche forma propria del suo dialetto.’ Prof. Crescini, of Padua, narrows down the dialectical area to the Veneto, assigning certain other characteristics, such as the h’s, to the period rather than to any particular district. His provisional conclusions, after a careful study of the text, are as follows: (1) The language is apparently Tuscan or literary Italian, but the scribe Venetian: the text, therefore, may have been originally Tuscan, copied out by a Venetian. But (2) it is just possible that a text originally Venetian was afterwards modified in a Tuscan sense (toscanizzato).

or secular, has a remarkable knowledge of the Latin Bible—as remarkable, perhaps, as Dante's<sup>1</sup>—and, like Dante, a special familiarity with the Psalter. It is the work of one whose knowledge of the Christian Scriptures is considerably in advance of his familiarity with the Scriptures of Islam: presumably, therefore, of a renegade from Christianity. If an Arabic prototype should eventually be discovered, it could but serve, we may dare to say, to emphasize the originality and individuality of the first Italian translator. But as a matter of fact the evidence for an Arabic original is vague and fugitive. Experts say that the Italian of our MS. by no means suggests or warrants it<sup>2</sup>; and the external evidence is all derived either from the mere conjecture of Christian scholars<sup>3</sup>, or from the probably disingenuous assertions of Muslim controversialists, who, though challenged again and again during nearly two centuries, have never yet produced <sup>1</sup> His knowledge of Scripture if less discerning than Dante's is equally extensive. Dante, it is true, has references to a few books from which Barnabas draws nothing, viz.: Esther, Canticles, Zechariah, Judith, Maccabees, 2 Corinthians, Ephesians, and Jude; but against these we may place in the other scale Barnabas's references to Amos, Haggai, Malachi, and Susanna, and, apparently, the First Epistle of St. John.

<sup>2</sup> On this subject Prof. C. A. Nallino, of the University of Palermo, writes: 'Non vi trovo affatto tracce di arabismi.' Prof. Ignazio Guidi, of Rome, is of a similar opinion, and points out the frequency of such participial phrases as 'partiti gli angeli', 'detto questo', 'essendo nato iessu', &c., 'le quali non possono esser tradotte a parola dall' arabo, mentre rispondono benissimo al greco'. The linguistic evidence, however, as Prof. Nallino suggests, is not conclusive one way or the other, because, while mediaeval translators from Arabic into Latin give us a text full of arabisms, so that their versions 'divengono d'una barbarie incredibile, e permettono quasi di ricostruire dovunque l'originale arabo', those who translated into 'idiomi volgari', 'adoperando una lingua viva, non osavano farle violenza e procedevano quindi con molta libertà di frase nella loro versione'. He instances the treatise of az-Zargālī on the Astrolabe, with its word-for-word Latin version, so different from the free Spanish translation made from the same Arabic text under the auspices of Alphonso X of Castile.

a copy of Barnabas in Arabic, and are believed to owe their knowledge of the 'Gospel's' existence to the writings of George Sale, which they certainly possess.

III. THE QUESTION OF THE LOST GNOSTIC GOSPEL.

(i) The question of a possible Arabic original will always retain a certain degree of interest, however remote that possibility may seem. But there is another problem connected with the sources and antecedents of our document which is of far deeper and more permanent interest. Does the Italian Barnabas enshrine within its covers the lost Gnostic Gospel which bore that name? (i) Historical notices of the lost Gospel.

There is a legend that when the relics of St. Barnabas were discovered in Cyprus in the fifth century there was found lying on his breast a copy of the Gospel of St. Matthew written by his own hand<sup>1</sup>. Our Barnabas, though the opening section of its narrative is drawn from St. Luke<sup>2</sup>, uses St. Matthew preponderatingly in its earlier chapters, and possibly, also, in those that follow. The legend of St. Barnabas.

The so-called 'Gelasian Decree' mentions an Evangelium Barnabe in its index of prohibited and heretical books<sup>3</sup>: and it is perhaps important for our purpose to note that if the Decretum Gelasii is to be dated, as generally supposed, in the century after Gelasius, we have testimony here to the survival of such an apocryphal Gospel practically in the age of Mohammed. The Decretum Gelasii.

(ii) It is quite conceivable, then, that some of the apocryphal stories in the Qorân<sup>4</sup> may be indirectly borrowed from this Gospel. If this be so, then a Christian student of the Qorân would at once be attracted by the Gnostic Gospel of Barnabas if it chanced to fall into his hands. (ii) Possibility of its use here.

Assuming, then, for the sake of argument, that an original Gnostic Barnabas, or a Latin version of the same, fell into the hands of a Christian renegade of the fourteenth or fifteenth century—just as the Spanish translation (?) of our present ‘Gospel’ fell into Fra Marino’s hands in the last quarter of the sixteenth—it would give him at once a title for his great missionary pamphlet, and a vast amount of material to work upon.

To begin with, if Fra Marino’s story has any value<sup>1</sup>, the Gnostic Gospel would contain the substance of the prefatory and valedictory denunciations of St. Paul. What else our MS. may be supposed to have preserved of that interesting document, may well be left to experts to decide, now that they have the text of Barnabas before them. It may, however, be worth while to collect together a few suggestions, some of which may possibly prove useful in view of a more searching and scientific investigation than we have found practicable hitherto.

drawn from
Barnabas.

First, then, for the solitary fragment of the original Barnabas that remains to us. Βαρνάβας ὁ ἀπόστολος ἔφη· ἐν ἀμίλλαις πονηραῖς ἀθλιώτερος ὁ νικήσας, διότι ἀπέρχεται πλέον ἔχων τῆς ἀμαρτίας<sup>2</sup>.

This is quite in the manner of our Italian ‘Barnabas’, who is full of sententious ethical maxims with a spice of epigrammatic hyperbole: and it is in line with his constant enforcement of the duty of humility, and his strictures on the sins of the tongue. We have not, however, succeeded in discovering its exact counterpart in the text. Perhaps another will be more fortunate.

For the rest, apart from the matter clearly derived from the Canonical Gospels, an indefinite amount of which would inevitably be incorporated in any apocryphal life of Christ, we may perhaps see traces of the Gnostic Barnabas in the ‘painless Birth’ and ‘brilliant light’ already referred to, and in details, perhaps, of the Angelology and of the Eschatology. Some of the apocryphal miracles, and of the apocryphal parables (several of which are of great beauty), may perhaps be due to the same source; which may be responsible also for the otherwise inexplicable elimination of St. John the Baptist<sup>1</sup>, and for the prominence throughout the narrative of Pilate, Herod, and Caiaphas. The substitution of Barnabas for Thomas (or for Simon Zelotes) in the list of the Twelve<sup>2</sup> would be a credible expedient in a comparatively late pseudo-evangelium, while the non-identification of Judas and Thaddaeus is paralleled in early Syrian tradition. The acceptance of the Jewish story mentioned by St. Matthew as an explanation of the empty tomb<sup>3</sup> would come natural to one whose purpose was to combat the 'orthodox' New Testament teaching about Christ. But the most striking element of all in this connexion is the 'docetic Passion', in which Judas is arrested, tried, and crucified in his Master's place. Of this there are but vague suggestions in the Qorân—derived, it may be, by Mohammed from some snatches of the Gnostic Barnabas overheard and scarcely comprehended: in our Barnabas the episode is drawn out with great fullness and remarkable dramatic power.

With these suggestions we prefer to leave the matter in the hands of those more competent to deal with it: confident, as we have already observed elsewhere<sup>4</sup>, that Barnabas will be found to raise problems of considerable importance—if not to the student of early Gnostic literature, at any rate to the student of mediaeval thought, and to those interested, whether academically or practically, in the relations between Islam and Christianity.

<sup>1</sup> St. John being eliminated and his rôle apportioned to Jesus as forerunner of Mohammed, it becomes natural, as we have already suggested, to call Mohammed the Messiah. Moreover, the constant stress laid on the descent of the Messiah from Ishmael and not from Isaac shows that the identification of Mohammed and Messiah is not due, as has been supposed, to mere ignorance of the Qorân.

NOTE BY PROFESSOR MARGOLIOUTH

Against the supposition that the Gospel of Barnabas ever existed in Arabic we must set the argument from silence about such a Gospel in the polemical literature of the Moslems. This has been admirably catalogued by Steinschneider in his monograph on the subject in the Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, 1877. Of the works enumerated by him, three, belonging to very different periods, are accessible in printed editions. To the writers of all these treatises the Gospel of Barnabas would have been very welcome, but the fame of it had not reached their ears.

The earliest of them is Ibn Hazm (obit. 456 A. H.), whose Fīṣal fi-l-milal wal-ahwā wal-niḥal was printed in Cairo a few years ago (part i., 1317 A. H.) He condemns the four Evangelists with much vehemence, and declares that the names of the Apostles are quite unknown.

The treatise of Ibn Taimiyyah (obit. 728 A. H.) was published in Cairo last year: it is called Al-Jawāb al Ṣaḥīḥ liṃan baddala dīn al-Masiḥ. He is far less virulent than his predecessor, and assigns a certain amount of genuineness to our four Gospels. But he has no suspicion of the existence of a Gospel favouring the Prophet as does the Gospel of Barnabas.

The treatise of Abu 'l-Faḍl al-Su'ūdī (composed 942 A. H., and based on the earlier work of Abu 'l-Bakā Ṣāliḥ al-Ja'farī) was published at Leyden, 1877-92, with the title Disputatio pro religione Muhammedana adversus Christianos. The author deals with the Four Gospels, the genuineness of which he appears to assume, though he regards the Christian interpretation as erroneous.

A work in which we might certainly have expected to find some allusion to an Arabic Gospel of Barnabas, if such existed, is the Bibliography of Ḥājji Khalīfah (obit. A. H. 1067, 1656-7 A. D.). Under the heading Injil he gives the names of the four Evangelists, and asserts, as many others assert, that the Gospel of 'Isā Ibn Maryam must have been quite different. But he knows of no Barnabas.

The conjecture that any knowledge which the Indian

Moslems may possess of the Gospel of Barnabas is due to Sale's Koran seems to me highly probable, if not certain. I am unfortunately not acquainted with any Arabic or Persian work which makes any allusion to it.

The notion of conjecturally restoring the Gospel which the Christians were supposed to have altered must have occurred to many a Moslem, since conjectural restorations exist in Arabic of the Book of Abraham and the Psalms. A Moslem who was well acquainted with his own religion would not, however, have reconstructed it in the form of a Gospel of Barnabas, but in the form of a direct address from the Deity to 'Isā. It is curious that the author of the remarkable Ṣūfī work called 'The Perfect Man' (about 1400 A.D.), whose purpose is to show that the Christians will through the intercession of 'Isā be saved, declares that their Gospel begins 'In the name of the Father, the Mother, and the Son'. From the rest of his discussion he appears to know the Gospel only from the Qorān.

The Arabic glosses to the Gospel of Barnabas cannot have been composed by any one whose native language was a form of Arabic; the mistakes both of orthography and of grammar being such as betray the foreigner<sup>1</sup>. It is possible that the wrong order of the words is in many cases due to their being written on the margin of the MS., and not therefore intended by the writer. In the notes corrections are suggested where the writer's meaning has to be divined, and sometimes elsewhere: but it has not been thought necessary to correct the glosses systematically. The inde at the end of many of the glosses implies that the author is quoting from some book, possibly from memory: and that book seems occasionally to be the Qorān, of which the glossator had some, though no very profound, knowledge.

Entonces dixo Jesus ; Adam, el primer hombre aviendo comido por engaño del demonio la comida prohibida por Dios en el parayso, se le rebelò su carne à su espiritu ; por lo qual jurò diziendo, Por Dios que yo te quiero cortar ; y rompiendo una piedra tomò su carne para cortarla con el corte de la piedra . Por lo qual fue reprehendido del angel Gabriel, y el le dixo ; Yo he jurado por Dios que lo he de cortar, y mentiroso no lo serè jamàs . Ala hora el angel le enseñò la superfluidad de su carne y a quella cortò . De manera que ansi como todo hombre toma carne de Adam, ansi esta obligado a cumplir aquello que con juramento prometìò.

And when Jesus had ended his prayer the High Priest cried with a loud voice, 'Stay, Jesus, we want to know who thou art, for the quiet of our people.' He answered, 'I am Jesus of Nazareth, born of Mary, of the stock of David, a mortal man, and fear God, and seek his honour and glory.' The High Priest said, 'It is written in the book of Moses that God is to send the Messiah, who will come and declare the truth, and will bring mercy with him, and therefore we desire thee to tell us, if thou art the Messiah whom we expect?' Jesus said, 'It is true that God has so promised, but I am not he: for he was created before me.' The High Priest said, 'By thy words and signs we know that thou art a prophet and a saint of God; and therefore I entreat thee, in his name and for his sake, that thou tell us how the Messiah will come.' ## 5. THE TRANSFORMATION OF JUDAS.

Judas came near to the people with whom Jesus was ; and when he heard the noise he entered into the house where the disciples slept. And God, seeing the fear and danger of his servant, ordered Gabriel and Michael and Rafael and Azrael to carry him out of the world. And they came in all haste, and bare him out of the window which looks towards the south, and they placed him in the third heaven, where he will remain blessing God, in the company of angels, till near the end of the world.

And Judas the traitor entered before the rest into the place from which Jesus had just been taken up. And the disciples were sleeping. And the wonderful God acted wonderfully, changing Judas into the same figure and speech with Jesus. We, believing that it was he, said to him, ' Master, whom seekest thou ? ' And he said to them, smiling, ' Ye have forgotten yourselves since ye do not know Judas Iscariot.' At this time the soldiery entered ; and seeing Judas so like in every respect

I say in truth that he was so like in person, figure, and gesture to Jesus, that as many as knew him believed firmly that it was he, except Peter: for which reason many left his doctrine, believing that it had been false; as he had said that he should not die till the end of the world. But those who stood firm were oppressed with grief, seeing him die whom they understood to be Jesus; not recollecting what he had told them. And in company with his Mother they were present at his death, weeping continually. And by means of Joseph of Arimatheas they obtained from the President the body of Judas. And they took him down from the cross, burying him with much lamentation in the new sepulchre of Joseph; having wrapped him up in linen and precious ointments.

And the disciples who did not fear God with truth went by night and stole the body of Judas and hid it; spreading a report that he had risen again, from whence sprang great confusion among the people. And the High Priest commanded, under pain of Anathema, that no one should talk of him; and on this account raised a great persecution, banishing some, tormenting others, and even stoning some to death; because it was not in the power of anyone to be silent on this subject. And then came news to Nazareth that Jesus had risen again. And he that writeth desired the Mother of Jesus to leave off her lamentation. And Mary said, 'Let us go to Jerusalem, to see if it is truth. If I see him, I shall die content.'

And as she feared God, though she knew the command was unjust, she entreated those who talked with her not to speak of her Son. Who can say how we were then affected? God, who knows the heart of man, knows that between the grief for the death of Judas, whom we understood to be Jesus, and the pleasure of seeing him risen again, we almost expired. And the angels who were the guardians of Mary went up to heaven the third day, and told Jesus what was passing. And he, moved with compassion for his Mother, entreated of God that he might be seen by his disciples. And the compassionate God ordered his four favourite angels to place him within his own house, and to guard him three days: that they, and they only, might see him who believed in his doctrine. Jesus descended, surrounded with light, into the house of his Mother: where were the two sisters, Martha and Mary, and Lazarus, and he that writeth, and John, and James,

WORKS (published posthumously in London, 1747).

(i) FROM THE PREFACE TO 'NAZARENUS'.

In the first place you'll find the succinct history<sup>1</sup> of a NEW P. GOSPEL which I discover'd at Amsterdam in the year 1709. It is a Mahometan Gospel never before publicly made known among Christians, tho they have much talk'd about the Mahometan's acknowledging the Gospel. I strait sent an account of this discovery to his most Serene Highness the ever-victorious PRINCE EUGENE OF SAVOY, to whom I had the honour of writing sometimes by way of his Adjutant-General, the Baron de Hohendorf, who comes behind very few in the knowledge of all curious and useful books, and 'tis really surprizing how much the Prince himself has read, how minutely, how critically, and in how many languages; considering his perpetual series of action as well in the Court as in the camp . . . He's now master of this book, as may be seen in the Appendix.

Next follows<sup>1</sup> an account of the TURKISH GOSPEL by Monsieur DE LA MONNOYE (to whom the Baron DE HOHENDORF show'd it, after the owner had parted with it to PRINCE EUGENE) and which I have added as a further illustration of the book; and withall as a confirmation of my own description of it, which I am persuaded the Baron did not show to that ingenious Academician.

THE Gospel of BARNABAS. Gelasius in Decreto Indiculus Scripturar. apud Coteler. in Annotat. I. ad Constitut. Apostolic. In Catal. libror. Apocryph. Baroccian. post Damascenum de mensibus Macedonum.

This Gospel of BARNABAS is still extant, but interpolated by the Mahometans. There's but one copy of it in Christendom, accidentally discovered by me at Amsterdam in the year 1709, and now in the library of his most Serene Highness Prince EUGENE of Savoy. But a full account of it is to be had in a volume I have written on this very subject, entitul'd NAZARENUS, or Jewish, Gentile, & Mahometan Christianity, &c., printed twice at London in the year 1718.

NAZARENUS.

CHAPTER V.

But at length (Sir) after wholly despairing of ever having a better account, it was my good fortune instead of other information, to light on the Gospel it self; and translated into Italian, by or for the use of some renegades: for it is most certainly the performance of a Mahometan scribe. Yet knowing a more particular account will not be ungrateful, be pleas'd to receive it as follows. The learned gentleman, who has been so kind as to communicate it to me (viz. Mr. Cramer, Counsellor to the King of Prussia, but residing at Amsterdam <sup>1</sup>), had it out of the library of a person of great name and authority in the said city; who during his life was often heard to put a high value on this piece. Whether as a rarity, or as the model of his religion, I know not. It is in the very first page attributed to Barnabas, and the title of it runs in these words: The true Gospel of Jesus called Christ, a new prophet sent by God to the world, according to the relation of Barnabas his apostle. Here you have not only a new Gospel, but also a true one if you believe the Mahometans. But how honest soever they may be represented, this is a topic where none are to be credited without the utmost caution; since, tho every Gospel forbids lying, yet never are more lies told than about the Gospel. The first Chapter of it begins thus: 'Barnabas an apostle of Jesus of Nazareth called Christ, to all those who dwell upon the earth, wisheth peace and consolation.' Whatever may become of the truth, this is the Scripture-stile to a hair. The book is written on Turkish paper delicately gumm'd and polish'd, and also bound after the Turkish manner. The ink is incomparably fine; and the orthography, as well as the character, plainly show it to be at least three hundred years old. I ever chuse to speak rather under than over in such cases. Any proper name of God, and the appellative word Dio it self, are constantly writ in red letters out of respect, and so are the Arabic Notes in transverse lines on the margin. The contents of the chapters are likewise written in red letters, and reach about the twentieth; a void space being left for the rest before each chapter, but no where fill'd up. The author of these summaries was a zealous Musulman, who charges the Christians all along with falsification, from this his only authentic Gospel. But they'll be nothing behind hand with him, whenever his Gospel comes to be better known. Much care and ornament was bestowed upon the whole, and the Arabic word Allah is in red letters superstitiously interlin'd over Dio, for the first three times it occurs. The Story of Jesus is very differently told in many things from the receiv'd Gospels, but much more fully and particularly; this Gospel, if my eye has not deceived me, being near as long again as any of ours. Some wou'd make this circumstance a prejudice in favor of it, because as all things are best known just after they happen; so every thing diminishes, the further it procedes from its original. But in this case the rule will be found not rightly apply'd, till the book is prov'd to be a genuin issue of Barnabas. Mahomet is therin expresly nam'd for the Paraclete, as we have been told that he's so esteem'd, by all the historians of the Mahometan Religion: the Musulmans accusing our Gospels of corruption (as I noted before) in the 16th and 26th verses of the 14th Chapter of John; and pretending further that Mahomet's name was struck out of the Pentateuch and the Psalms. Mahomet is nam'd again or foretold in some other places of this book of Barnabas, as the design'd accomplisher of God's economy towards man. Tis, in short, the ancient Ebionite or Nazaren system, as to the making of Jesus a mere man (tho not with them the Son of Joseph, but divinely conceived by the Virgin Mary) and agrees in everything almost with the scheme of our modern Unitarians; excepting the history of his death and resurrection, about which a very different account is given from that in our Gospels ; but perfectly conformable to the tradition of the Mahometans, who maintain that another was crucify'd in his stead ; and that Jesus, slipping thro the hands of the Jews, preach'd afterwards to his disciples, and then was taken up into heaven.

MAHOMETAN COUNTRIES. -

1. Since we find in all the books of the Mahometans, that <sup>Nazar.</sup> they believe the Law was deliver'd from Heaven to Moses, <sup>Appendix</sup> the Psalms to David, and the Gospel to Jesus, as well as the <sup>III</sup> Alcoran to Mahomet ; you are to enquire and take due information, whether at this time the Musulmans have a Pentateuch, Psalms, or Gospel of their own, and how farr agreeing or disagreeing with those of the Jews and Christians ? Whether they sing any of David's Psalms in their public Service, or read any portions of the Pentateuch ? <sup>pp. 14 & 99.</sup>

2. Since we find, moreover, that they charge our Gospels with corruptions and alteration in many things, and particularly that Mahomet's name was raz'd out of 'em, as likewise out of the Pentateuch, and the Psalms, you are to enquire of the most learned, judicious, and candid among 'em, how they can prove such Expunctions or Interpolations, if they have no authentic Copies to confront with ours ? or, in case they pretend to have such Copies, you are further to enquire, what use they make of 'em ? whether any part of their Gospel be ever read in their Moschs ? or whether it is to be perus'd only by the Clergy and the Learned ?

3. You are particularly desired to enquire after the Gospel of Barnabas : for such a book is in the possession of his most serene Highness Prince Eugene of Savoy, and was undoubtedly written (I don't mean wholly compil'd) by a profest Mahometan ; as the Summaries of the Chapters, and the Arabic Notes on the margin of the Italian Translation, are the work of a zealous adversary to Christianity. And if you shou'd happen to meet with this book, you are diligently to enquire, whether they acknowledge it as divine, whether it be the onely Gospel they admit? or, in case they have any more of this kind, which are Apocryphal, and which authentic, in their account?

4. Since we find the Mohametans, in all their writings, asserting that other books, besides the four already mention'd, were divinely inspired, or sent from heaven to their reputed Authors; namely, Adam, Seth, Enoch, Abraham, and more such Patriarchs and Prophets: You are to enquire if now they either have, or pretend to have, any such books among 'em? or, in case they have not (as I think they fairly own) then by what arguments they would prove, that ever any such existed? For I suppose, they lay no stress on the numerous books of this sort, that have been forg'd by the Jews and Christians; tho, if the Mahometans have any of their own, I take 'em to be some of the Apocryphal Jewish or Christian books interpolated, and accommodated to the System of the Alcoran Secundum Artem.

5. Lastly, not only the Gospel of Barnabas, or any other Gospel (which in their language they call Al-Angil or Inghil) but also their Pentateuch (which they call Al Taurat, vulgarly Tevrat) and their Psalms (which they call Zebour) with the books ascrib'd to those other Prophets (if any such they have) are to be procur'd or purchas'd, according to the account you'll be pleas'd to send. But in this whole inquiry beware of being impos'd upon by Christian Arabic books, such as the Gospel of the Infancy of Jesus, with diverse others of the same stamp.

6. As for the Mahometans themselves, who are the proper subject of our curiosity, take care to distinguish written from oral Tradition; as well as the persuasion of a particular Sect from that of the whole body, or even the notion of a private man from that of his peculiar Sect. And on these Enquiries be sure to ground your answers so accurately, yea so minutely, as expressly to use such forms, as in answer to the first, second, third or fourth Queries, or to any part or particular of each, distinctly mark'd: neither be ever tempted to affirm any thing, that may seem to favor the real or fancy'd belief or byass of the Enquirer; since Truth ought to be the sole object of our Research, and not the service of any particular Cause or Person whatsoever.

M. BERNARD DE LA MONNOIE'S DESCRIPTION OF THE VIENNA MS.

Menagiana, tom. iv, pp. 202-14 (Paris, 1715).

M. le Baron de Hohendorff, Seigneur Aleman qui joint a une noblesse du premier ordre une littérature exquise, une politesse fine, & une connoissance de livres fort étenduë, m'a fait voir l'Evangile supposé par les Turcs a S. Barnabé, traduit en Italien apparemment de l'Arabe, vers le milieu du quinzisième siècle, & copié un peu après. C'est un manuscrit aujourd'hui unique<sup>1</sup>, au moins très rare, qui appartient au Prince Eugène dont les recherches pour toutes sortes de livres curieux n'ont point de bornes. Le volume est un in 8° long de six pouces, large de quatres, épais d'un & demi, contenant 229 feuillets, dont les pages complètes sont de dix-huit à dix-neuf lignes enfermées dans un quarré tracé en rouge. Les marges à côté de certains endroits, soulignez dans le texte, sont bordées de citations Arabes, fort bien écrites, relatives à quelques versets de l'Alcoran. Le Copiste avoit dessein d'écrire en rouge les argumens des chapitres, qui sont au nombre de 221, mais il en est demeuré au vingt-septième, qu'il a mal marqué 26, & s'est contenté de laisser des espaces vuides pour les autres. Le papier est d'un coton lissé qui a du corps. Au devant du livre est écrit en Latin ce qui suit : SERENISSIMO &c. [Dedictory Preface, see below, p. lxxix].

L'orthographe de ce manuscrit est remarquable par ses irrégularitez. Les consonnes s'y trouvent souvent doubles où elles doivent être simples, & souvent au contraire simples où elles doivent être doubles. Un mot y est partagé en deux, & deux y sont confondus en un. Les aspirations superflus, & vicieuses, pareilles à celles qu'affectoit l'Arrius de Catulle, y sont semées par tout. Nulle observation de Capitales. Une ponctuation ridicule qui ne consiste qu'en certains gros points rouges, placez la plûpart du tems au hazard. Elgi, molgie, filgio, pigliare, pour egli, moglie, figlio, pigliare. Scatiar pour Scacciar, scernir & scerno pour schernir & scherno, piaze pour piace & autres corruptions sans nombre, qu'on doit regarder plûtôt comme une marque de l'ignorance, & de la mauvaise prononciation du Copiste, que de l'ancienneté de l'écriture. Les chiffres qui marquent les feuillets sont les chiffres Arabes ainsi formez 1 un. 2 deux. 3 trois. 4 quatre. 5 cinq. 6 six. 7 sept. 8 huit. 9 neuf. 10 dix. Après quoi l'on combine 11 onze. 12 douze & ainsi du reste. L'écriture est, comme je l'ai remarqué, d'environ l'an 1470 ou 1480 tems auquel les Copistes commencèrent à mettre les points sur les i, ce qui a été fort exactement observé dans le manuscrit dont il s'agit. Le mot Dio par honneur y est toujours écrit en rouge. Les Turcs opposent ce prétendu Evangile à nos quatre, comme le seul véritable. Barnabé qui se dit chargé de l'écrire, y passe pour un Apôtre familier avec Jesus Chrît, et avec la Vierge, mieux instruit que Paul du mérite de la Circoncision, & de l'usage des viandes accordées, ou défendues aux fidèles. On y voit que les peines infernales des Mahometans ne seront pas éternelles. Jesus Chrît n'y est appelé simplement que Prophète. Il y est dit qu'au moment que les Juifs se préparoient à l'aller prendre au jardin des Olives, il fut enlevé au troisième Ciel, par le ministère de quatre Anges, Gabriel, Michel, Raphael, et Uriel, qu'il ne mourra qu'à la fin du monde, & que ce fut Judas qui fut crucifié en sa place, Dieu ayant permis que ce traître parût aux yeux des Juifs si ressemblant à Jesus-Christ, qu'ils le prirent pour lui, & comme tel le livrèrent à Pilate. Que cette ressemblance étoit si grande, qu'il n'y eut pas jusqu'à la Vierge Marie & aux Apôtres qui n'y fussent trompez ; mais que Jesus-Christ avoit depuis obtenu de Dieu la permission de les venir consoler. Que Barnabé lui ayant alors demandé comment la bonté Divine avoit souffert que la Mère & les Disciples d'un Prophète si saint crussent un seul moment qu'il étoit mort avec tant d'ignominie? C'est, répondit Jesus-Christ, que Dieu, étant la pureté même, ne peut voir dans ses serviteurs le moindre défaut qu'il ne le châtie sévèrement; et comme, ajouta-t-il, l'attachement pour moi un peu trop humain de ma Mère, & de mes Disciples est une faute devant lui, il a voulu les en punir par cette douleur, pour leur sauver celle du feu d'enfer. A mon égard, tout innocent que je suis, sa justice néanmoins offensée de ce que le peuple m'appelloit Dieu, & Fils de Dieu, a ordonné, pour m'empêcher d'être le jouet des Démon's au terrible jour du Jugement, que je serois le jouet des hommes en cette vie, lesquels, sur ce que Judas est mort en croix sous ma ressemblance extérieure, croiront fermement que c'est moi qui ai été crucifié, & demeureront tous dans cette erreur, jusqu'à ce que l'envoyé de Dieu, Mahomet, vienne les en tirer.

<sup>1</sup> 'He must mean the onely one in Christendom, or he contradicts himself: & so must Monsieur Cramer have meant, who knew nothing of the age or value of this book but what I told him.' (Toland's note on his own translation of this passage in Nazareus, App. ii, p. 9.)

Les termes du manuscrit sont trop curieux pour ne les pas reprendre d'un peu plus loin, & les produire ici tout au long. Ce que je ferai en les rapportant premièrement avec toutes les fautes du Copiste, lesquelles j'essaierai ensuite de corriger le moins mal que je pourrai.

al mondo sganera ogniuno che chrederano alla legie dio di diques-

Cet échantillon fera juger de la pièce entière. La même orthographe, les mêmes fautes y regnent d'un bout à l'autre. Tout défiguré néanmoins qu'est ce texte, rien n'est plus facile que de le rétablir en lisant ainsi:

Ritornò la Vergine con colui che scrive, e Jacobo, . . . quale
venendo al mondo sgannerà ogniuno, che crederà alla lege di Dio,

CLASSIFICATION OF SCRIPTURE REFERENCES GIVEN IN THE FOOTNOTES

(a) A simple reference to the passage—as, 2 Kings v. 14—signifies direct citation of a verse or short passage of Scripture.

(b) The same in heavy type—as, Mark i. 40-45—signifies that the passage is the basis of a longer section in Barnabas.

(c) 'See' is prefixed to the reference when the substance is in question rather than the actual words.

(d) 'Cp.' is prefixed when the reference is less exact; also when a parallel from the Vulgate, Qorân, &c., is adduced.

(e) When the reference is doubtful a query (?) appears in the note.

True Gospel of Jesus, called Christ, a new prophet <sup>3a</sup> sent by God to the world : according to the description of Barnabas his apostle.

Barnabas, apostle of Jesus the Nazarene, called Christ, to all them that dwell upon the earth desireth peace and consolation.

Dearly beloved, the great and wonderful God <sup>a</sup> hath during these past days visited us by his prophet Jesus Christ in great mercy of teaching and miracles, by reason whereof many, being deceived of Satan, under pretence of piety, are preaching most impious doctrine, calling Jesus son of God <sup>1</sup>, repudiating the circumcision <sup>2</sup> ordained of God for ever, and permitting every unclean meat :
among whom also Paul hath been deceived, whereof I speak not without grief; for which cause I am writing that truth which I have seen and heard, in the intercourse that I have had with Jesus, in order that ye may be saved, and not be deceived | of Satan and perish in the judgement of God. Therefore <sup>3b</sup>
beware of every one that preacheth unto you new doctrine <sup>3</sup> contrary to that which I write, that ye may be saved eternally.

The great God <sup>a</sup> be with you and guard you from Satan and from every evil. Amen.

Gabriel to the Virgin Mary concerning the birth of Jesus.*

In <sup>4</sup> these last years a virgin called Mary, of the lineage of David, of the tribe of Judah, was visited by the angel Gabriel from God. This virgin, living in all holiness without any offence, being blameless, and abiding in prayer with fastings, being one day alone, there entered into her chamber the angel

The virgin was affrighted <sup>6</sup> at the appearance of the angel;

but the angel comforted her, saying: 'Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found favour with God<sup>1</sup>, who hath chosen thee to be mother of a prophet, whom he will send to the people of Israel in order that they may walk in his laws | with truth of heart.' The virgin <sup>4a</sup> answered: 'Now how shall I bring forth sons, seeing I know not a man<sup>2</sup>?' The angel answered: 'O Mary, God<sup>a</sup> who made man without a man is able to generate in thee man without a man, because with him nothing is impossible<sup>3</sup>.' Mary answered: 'I know that God is almighty<sup>b</sup>, therefore his will be done.' The angel answered: 'Now be conceived in thee the prophet, whom thou shalt name Jesus<sup>4</sup>: and thou shalt keep him from wine and from strong drink and from every unclean meat<sup>5</sup>, because the child is an holy one of God.' Mary bowed herself with humility, saying: 'Behold the handmaid of God, be it done according to thy word<sup>6</sup>.' The angel departed<sup>7</sup>, and the virgin glorified God, saying: 'Know, O my soul, the greatness of God, and exult, my spirit, in God my Saviour<sup>c</sup>; for he hath regarded the lowliness of his handmaiden, insomuch that I shall be called blessed by all the nations, for he that is mighty hath made me great, and blessed be his holy name. For his mercy extendeth from generation to generation of them that fear him. | Mighty <sup>4b</sup> hath he made his hand, and he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of his heart. He hath put down the mighty from their seat, and hath exalted the humble. Him who hath been hungry hath he filled with good things, and the rich he hath sent empty away. For he keepeth in memory the promises made to Abraham and to his son<sup>8</sup> for ever.'

II. The warning of the angel Gabriel given to Joseph concerning the conception of the Virgin Mary.

Mary having known the will of God, fearing the people, lest they should take offence at her being great with child, and should stone her as guilty of fornication<sup>9</sup>, chose a companion of her own lineage<sup>10</sup>, a man by name called Joseph, of blameless life: for he as a righteous man feared God and served him with fastings and prayers, living by the works of his hands, for he was a carpenter<sup>1</sup>.

Such a man the virgin knowing, chose him for her companion and revealed to him the divine counsel.

Joseph being a righteous man<sup>2</sup>, when he perceived that Mary was great with child, was minded to put her away | because he <sup>5<sup>a</sup></sup> feared God. Behold<sup>3</sup>, whilst he slept, he was rebuked by the angel of God, saying, 'O Joseph, why art thou minded to put away Mary thy wife? Know that whatsoever hath been wrought in her hath all been done by the will of God. The virgin shall bring forth a son, whom thou shalt call by the name Jesus; whom thou shalt keep from wine and strong drink and from every unclean meat<sup>4</sup>, because he is an holy one of God from his mother's womb. He is a prophet of God sent<sup>a</sup> unto the people of Israel, in order that he may convert Judah to his heart<sup>5</sup>, and that Israel may walk in the law of the Lord, as it is written in the law of Moses<sup>6</sup>. He shall come with great power, which God shall give him<sup>b</sup>, and shall work great miracles, whereby many shall be saved.'

Joseph, arising from sleep<sup>7</sup>, gave thanks to God, and abode with Mary all his life, serving God with all sincerity.

III. Wonderful birth of Jesus, and appearance of angels praising God.

There reigned at that time in Judaea Herod, by decree of Caesar Augustus, and Pilate was governor<sup>8</sup> in the | priesthood of <sup>5<sup>b</sup></sup> Annas and Caiaphas<sup>9</sup>. Wherefore, by decree of Augustus<sup>10</sup>, all the world was enrolled; wherefore each one went to his own country, and they presented themselves by their own tribes to be enrolled. Joseph accordingly departed from Nazareth, a city of Galilee, with Mary his wife, great with child, to go to Bethlehem (for that it was his city, he being of the lineage of David), in order that he might be enrolled according to the decree of Caesar. Joseph having arrived at Bethlehem, for that the city was small, and great the multitude of them that were strangers there, he found no place, wherefore he took lodging outside the city in a lodging made for a shepherds' shelter. While Joseph abode there the days were fulfilled for Mary to bring forth. The virgin was surrounded by a light exceeding bright, and brought forth her son without pain<sup>1</sup>, whom she took in her arms, and wrapping him in swaddling-clothes, laid him in the manger, because there was no room in the inn. There came with gladness | a great multitude of 6<sup>a</sup> angels to the inn, blessing God and announcing peace to them that fear God. Mary and Joseph praised the Lord for the birth of Jesus, and with greatest joy nurtured him.

IV. Angels announce to the shepherds the birth of Jesus, and they, after having found him, announce him.

At that time the shepherds were watching over their flock<sup>2</sup>, as is their custom. And, behold, they were surrounded by an exceeding bright light, out of which appeared to them an angel, who blessed God. The shepherds were filled with fear by reason of the sudden light and the appearance of the angel; whereupon the angel of the Lord comforted them, saying: 'Behold, I announce to you a great joy, for there is born in the city of David a child who is a prophet of the Lord; who bringeth great salvation to the house of Israel. The child ye shall find in the manger, with his mother, who blesseth God.' And when he had said this there came a great | multitude of angels blessing God, announcing peace 6<sup>b</sup> to them that have good will<sup>3</sup>. When the angels were departed, the shepherds spake among themselves, saying: 'Let us go even unto Bethlehem, and see the word<sup>4</sup> which God by his angel hath announced to us.' There came many shepherds to Bethlehem seeking the new-born babe, and they found outside the city the child that was born, according to the word of the angel, lying in the manger. They therefore made obeisance to him, and gave to the mother that which they had<sup>5</sup>, announcing to her what they had heard and seen. Mary therefore kept all these things in her heart, and Joseph [likewise], giving thanks to God. The shepherds returned to their flock, announcing to every one how great a thing they had seen. And so the whole hill-country of Judaea was filled with fear, and every man laid up this word in his heart, saying: 'What, think we, shall this child be<sup>6</sup>?'

V. Circumcision of Jesus.

When the eight days<sup>1</sup> were fulfilled according to the law of the Lord, as it is written in the book | of Moses<sup>2</sup>, they took the child 7<sup>a</sup> and carried him to the temple to circumcise him. And so they circumcised the child, and gave him the name Jesus, as the angel of the Lord had said before he was conceived in the womb. Mary and Joseph perceived that the child must<sup>3</sup> needs be for the salvation and ruin of many. Wherefore they feared God, and kept the child with fear of God.

VI. Three magi are led by a star in the east to Judaea, and, finding Jesus, make obeisance to him and gifts.

In the reign<sup>4</sup> of Herod, king of Judaea, when Jesus was born, three magi in the parts of the east were observing the stars of heaven. Whereupon appeared to them a star of great brightness, wherefore having concluded among themselves, they came to Judaea, guided by the star, which went before them<sup>5</sup>, and having arrived at Jerusalem they asked where was born the King of the Jews. And when Herod heard this he was affrighted, and all the city was troubled. Herod therefore called together the priests and the scribes, saying: 'Where should Christ be born?' They answered that he should be born in Bethlehem; for | thus it is 7<sup>b</sup> written by the prophet<sup>6</sup>: 'And thou, Bethlehem, art not little among the princes of Judah: for out of thee shall come forth a leader<sup>7</sup>, who shall lead my people Israel.'

Herod accordingly called together the magi and asked them concerning their coming: who answered that they had seen a star in the east, which had guided them thither, wherefore they wished with gifts to worship this new King manifested by his star.

Then said Herod: 'Go to Bethlehem and search out with all diligence concerning the child; and when ye have found him, come and tell it to me, because I also would fain come and worship him.' And this he spake deceitfully.

the star the magi were filled with gladness. And so having come to Bethlehem, outside the city, they saw | the star standing still <sup>8<sup>a</sup></sup> above the inn where Jesus was born. The magi therefore went thither, and entering the dwelling found the child with his mother, and bending down they did obeisance to him. And the magi presented unto him spices, with silver and gold, recounting to the virgin all that they had seen. •

Whereupon, while sleeping, they were warned by the child not to go to Herod: so departing by another way they returned to their own home, announcing all that they had seen in Judaea.

VIII. Jesus is carried in flight to Egypt, and Herod massacres the innocent children.

Herod seeing that the magi did not return, believed himself mocked of them<sup>1</sup>; whereupon he determined to put to death the child that was born. But behold<sup>2</sup> while Joseph was sleeping there appeared to him the angel of the Lord, saying: 'Arise up quickly, and take the child with his mother and go into Egypt, for Herod willeth to slay him.' Joseph arose with great fear, and took Mary with the child, and they went into Egypt, and there they abode until the death of Herod: who, believing himself derided<sup>3</sup> of the magi, sent his soldiers to slay all the new-born children | in <sup>8<sup>b</sup></sup> Bethlehem. The soldiers therefore came and slew all the children that were there, as Herod had commanded them. Whereby were fulfilled the words of the prophet, saying: 'Lamentation and great weeping are there in Ramah; Rachel lamenteth for her sons, but consolation is not given her because they are not<sup>4</sup>.'

IX<sup>a</sup>. Jesus, having returned to Judaea, holds a wondrous disputation with the doctors, having come to the age of twelve years.

Herod, was reigning in Judaea, he went into Galilee, fearing to remain in Judaea; and they went to dwell at Nazareth.

The child grew<sup>1</sup> in grace and wisdom before God and before men.

Jesus, having come to the age of twelve years, went up with Mary and Joseph to Jerusalem, to worship there according to the law of the Lord written in the book | of Moses<sup>2</sup>. When their <sup>9<sup>a</sup></sup> prayers were ended they departed, having lost Jesus, because they thought that he was returned home with their kinsfolk. Mary therefore returned with Joseph to Jerusalem, seeking Jesus among kinsfolk and neighbours. The third day they found the child in the temple, in the midst of the doctors, disputing with them concerning the law. And every one was amazed at his questions and answers, saying: 'How can there be such doctrine in him, seeing he is so small and hath not learned to read<sup>3</sup>?'

Mary reproved him, saying: 'Son, what hast thou done to us? Behold, I and thy father have sought thee for three days sorrowing.' Jesus answered: 'Know ye not that the service of God ought to come before father and mother<sup>4</sup>?' Jesus then went down with his mother and Joseph to Nazareth, and was subject to them with humility and reverence.

The angel Gabriel presented to him as it were a shining mirror, a book<sup>6</sup>, which descended into the heart of Jesus<sup>7</sup>, in which he had knowledge of what God hath done and what God hath said, and what God willeth, inso-much that everything was laid bare and open to him; as he said unto me: 'Believe, Barnabas, that I know every prophet with

XI. Jesus miraculously healeth a leper, and goeth into Jerusalem.

Jesus descending from the mountain to come into Jerusalem, met a leper<sup>1</sup>, who by divine inspiration knew Jesus to be a prophet. The leper answered: 'Lord<sup>4</sup>, give me health.'

Jesus reproved him, saying: 'Thou art foolish; pray to God who created thee<sup>b</sup>, and he will give thee health; for I am a man, as thou art<sup>c</sup>.' The leper answered: 'I know that thou, Lord<sup>4</sup>, art a man, but an holy one of the Lord. Wherefore pray thou to God, and he will give me health.' Then Jesus, sighing, said: 'Lord God Almighty<sup>d</sup>, for the love of thy holy prophets give health to this sick man.' Then, having said this, he said, touching the sick man with his hands in the name of God <sup>a</sup>: 'O brother, receive thy health!' And when he had said this the leprosy was cleansed, insomuch that the flesh of the leper was left unto him like that of a child<sup>e</sup>. deluge upon the earth<sup>1</sup>, burned up three wicked cities<sup>2</sup>, scourged Egypt<sup>3</sup>, overwhelmed Pharaoh in the Red Sea<sup>4</sup>, scattered the enemies of his people, chastised the unbelievers, and punished the impenitent. Blessed be the holy name of God<sup>b</sup>, who with mercy looked | upon his creatures, and therefore sent them his holy pro-<sup>11b</sup>phets, that they might walk in truth and righteousness before him; who delivered his servants<sup>c</sup> from every evil, and gave them this land, as he promised to our father Abraham<sup>5</sup> and to his son<sup>6</sup> for ever. Then by his servant Moses he gave us his holy law, that Satan should not deceive us; and he exalted us above all other peoples<sup>7</sup>.

‘But, brethren, what do we to-day, that we be not punished for our sins?’

And then Jesus with greatest vehemence rebuked<sup>8</sup> the people for that they had forgotten the word of God, and gave themselves only to vanity; he rebuked the priests for their negligence in God’s service and for their worldly greed; he rebuked the scribes because they preached vain doctrine, and forsook the law of God; he rebuked the doctors because they made the law of God of none effect through their traditions. And in such wise did Jesus speak to the people, that all wept, from the least to the greatest, crying mercy, and beseeching Jesus that he would pray for them; save only their priests and leaders, who on that day conceived hatred against Jesus for having thus spoken against the priests, | scribes, <sup>12<sup>a</sup></sup>and doctors. And they meditated upon his death<sup>9</sup>, but for fear of the people, who had received him as a prophet of God, they spake no word.

Jesus raised his hands to the Lord God<sup>d</sup> and prayed, and the people weeping said: ‘So be it, O Lord, so be it.’ The prayer being ended, Jesus descended from the temple; and that day he departed from Jerusalem, with many that followed him.

And the priests spoke evil of Jesus among themselves.

having passed the whole night in prayer<sup>1</sup>, in the morning Jesus praying said: 'O Lord, I know that the scribes hate me, and the priests are minded to kill me, thy servant; therefore, Lord God almighty and merciful<sup>a</sup>, in mercy hear the prayers of thy servant, and save me from their snares, for thou art my salvation. Thou knowest, Lord, that I thy servant seek thee alone, O Lord, and speak thy word; for thy word is truth<sup>2</sup>, which endureth for ever.' |

When Jesus had spoken these words, behold there came to him the <sup>12b</sup> angel Gabriel, saying: 'Fear not, O Jesus, for a thousand thousand who dwell above the heaven guard thy garments, and thou shalt not die till everything be fulfilled, and the world shall be near its end<sup>3</sup>.'

Jesus fell with his face to the ground, saying: 'O great Lord God<sup>b</sup>, how great is thy mercy upon me, and what shall I give thee, Lord, for all that thou hast granted me?'

The angel Gabriel answered: 'Arise, Jesus, and remember Abraham<sup>5</sup>, who being willing to make sacrifice to God of his only-begotten son Ishmael<sup>c</sup>, to fulfil the word of God, and the knife not being able to cut his son, at my word offered in sacrifice a sheep. Even so therefore shalt thou do, O Jesus, servant of God.'

Jesus answered: 'Willingly, but where shall I find the lamb, seeing I have no money, and it is not lawful to steal it?'

Thereupon the angel Gabriel showed unto him a sheep<sup>7</sup>, which Jesus offered in sacrifice, praising and blessing God, who is glorious for ever.

XIV<sup>d</sup>. After the fast of forty days, Jesus chooseth twelve apostles.

Jesus descended from the mount, and passed alone by night to <sup>13a</sup> the farther side of Jordan, and fasted forty days and forty nights<sup>8</sup>, not eating anything day nor night, making continual supplication to the Lord for the salvation of his people to whom God had sent him<sup>e</sup>. Then appeared Satan unto him, and tempted him in many words, but Jesus drave him away by the power of words of God. Satan having departed, the angels came and ministered unto Jesus that whereof he had need <sup>a</sup>.

Jesus, having returned to the region of Jerusalem, was found again of the people with exceeding great joy, and they prayed him that he would abide with them; for his words were not as those of the scribes, but were with power<sup>1</sup>, for they touched the heart.

Jesus, seeing that great was the multitude of them that returned to their heart for to walk in the law of God, went up into the mountain<sup>2</sup>, and abode all night in prayer, and when day was come he descended from the mountain, and chose twelve, whom he called apostles, among whom is Judas, who was slain upon the cross. When the feast of tabernacles was nigh, a certain rich man invited Jesus with his disciples and his mother to a marriage<sup>7</sup>. Jesus therefore went, and as they were feasting the wine ran short. His mother accosted Jesus, saying: 'They have no wine.' Jesus answered: 'What is that to me, mother mine?' His mother commanded the servants that whatever Jesus should command them they should obey. There were there six vessels for water according to the custom of Israel to purify themselves for prayer. Jesus said: 'Fill those vessels with water.' The servants did so. Jesus said unto them: 'In the name of God<sup>b</sup>, give to drink unto

See then how much ye ought to be content to serve God.'

XVII<sup>b</sup>. In this chapter is clearly perceived the unbelief of Christians, and the true faith of Mumin.

When Jesus had said this, Philip answered: 'We are content to serve God, but we desire, however, to know God <sup>2</sup>, for Isaiah the prophet said: "Verily thou art a hidden God <sup>c</sup>," and God said to Moses his servant: "I am that which I am <sup>d</sup>."'

Jesus answered: 'Philip, God is a | good without which there is <sup>16</sup><sup>a</sup> naught good; God is a being without which there is naught that is; God is a life without which there is naught that liveth <sup>d</sup>; so great that he filleth all and is everywhere. He alone hath no equal. He hath had no beginning, nor will he ever have an end <sup>e</sup>, but to everything hath he given a beginning, and to everything shall he give an end <sup>f</sup>. He hath no father nor mother; he hath no sons <sup>g</sup>, nor brethren, nor companions <sup>g</sup>. And because God hath no body, therefore he eateth not, sleepeth not, dieth not, walketh not,

<sup>a</sup> Verily I say unto you, whatsoever ye give in the path of God, God most high shall give you in recompense therefor a hundred better than it.

<sup>b</sup> This is the Chapter of Sincerity. <sup>c</sup> God is hidden. <sup>d</sup> God is one; He has no peer; He is true—praise be to Him and be He exalted!—and good. There is no good save Him. Likewise His life and His essence. Inde. <sup>e</sup> God is greatest. God is of old and everlasting.

<sup>f</sup> God has no beginning and no end, but He created for everything a beginning and an end. <sup>g</sup> God the great has no father, no mother, no son, and no brother. He has no partner, and no body; for this reason He neither eats, sleeps, nor dies. He walks not and He moves not, but is ever persistent. He is abstracted from all created things. There is none to compose Him, neither is He compounded of things, but is simple in essence. Inde.

Philip answered: 'Master, what sayest thou? It is surely written in Isaiah that God is our father<sup>1</sup>; | how, then, hath he 16<sup>b</sup> no sons?'

Jesus answered: 'There are written in the prophets many parables, wherefore thou oughtest not to attend to the letter, but to the sense. But after me shall come the Splendour<sup>2</sup> of all the prophets and holy ones<sup>d</sup>, and shall shed light upon the darkness of all that the prophets have said, because he is the messenger of God<sup>e</sup>.' His disciples answered: 'So be it, O Lord our God<sup>g</sup>!'

Jesus said: 'Verily I say unto you, the scribes and doctors have made void the law of God<sup>3</sup> with their false prophecies<sup>h</sup>, contrary to the prophecies of the true prophets of God<sup>4i</sup>: wherefore God is wroth with the house of Israel and with this faithless generation.' XVIII<sup>a</sup>. Here is shown forth the persecution of the servants of God by the world, and God's protection saving them.

Having said this, Jesus said: 'Ye have not chosen me<sup>1</sup>, but I have chosen you, that ye may be my disciples. If then the world shall hate you, ye shall be truly my disciples<sup>2</sup>; for the world hath been ever an enemy of servants of God. Remember [the] holy prophets that have been slain by the world, even as in the time of Elijah<sup>b</sup> ten thousand prophets were slain by Jezebel, insomuch that scarcely did poor Elijah escape, and seven thousand sons of prophets<sup>3</sup> who were hidden by the captain of Ahab's host. Oh, unrighteous world, that knowest not God! Fear not therefore ye<sup>4</sup>, for the hairs of your head are numbered so that they shall not perish. Behold the sparrows and other birds, whereof falleth not one feather without the will of God. Shall God, then<sup>c</sup>, have more care of the birds than of man, for whose sake he hath created | everything. Is there any man, perchance, 17<sup>b</sup> who careth more for his shoes than for his own son? Assuredly not. Now how much less ought ye to think that God<sup>d</sup> would abandon you, while taking care of the birds! And why speak I of the birds? A leaf of a tree falleth not without the will of God<sup>e</sup>.

'Believe me, because I tell you the truth, that the world will greatly fear you if ye shall observe my words. For if it feared not to have its wickedness revealed it would not hate you, but it feareth to be revealed, therefore it will hate you and persecute you<sup>f</sup>. If ye shall see your words scorned by the world lay it not to heart, but consider how that God is greater than you; who is in such wise scorned by the world that his wisdom is counted madness. If God<sup>g</sup> endureth the world with patience, wherefore will ye lay it who writeth secretly questioned Jesus with tears, saying: 'O master, will Satan deceive me, and shall I then become reprobate?'

Jesus answered: 'Be not sore grieved, Barnabas; for those whom God hath chosen before the creation of the world shall not perish. Rejoice, for thy name is written in the book of life<sup>1</sup>.'

Jesus comforted his disciples, saying: 'Fear not, for he who shall hate me is not grieved at my saying, because in him is not the divine feeling.'

At his words the chosen were comforted. Jesus made his prayers, and his disciples said: 'Amen, so be it, Lord God almighty and merciful<sup>a</sup>.'

Having finished his devotions, Jesus came down from the mountain with his disciples, and met ten lepers<sup>2</sup>, | who from afar off 19<sup>a</sup> cried out: 'Jesus, son of David, have mercy on us!'

Jesus called them near to him, and said unto them: 'What will ye of me, O brethren?'

They all cried out: 'Give us health!'

Jesus answered: 'Ah, wretched that ye are, have ye so lost your reason for that ye say: "Give us health!" See ye not me to be a man like yourselves<sup>3</sup>. Call unto our God that hath created you: and he that is almighty and merciful will heal you<sup>b</sup>.'

With tears the lepers answered: 'We know that thou art man like us, but yet an holy one of God and a prophet of the Lord; wherefore pray thou to God, and he will heal us.'

Thereupon the disciples prayed Jesus, saying: 'Lord, have mercy upon them.' Then groaned Jesus and prayed to God, saying: 'Lord God almighty and merciful<sup>c</sup>, have mercy and hearken to the words of thy servant: and for love of Abraham our father and for thy holy covenant have mercy on the request of these men, and grant them health.' Whereupon Jesus, having said this, turned himself to the lepers and said: 'Go and show yourselves to the priests according to the law of God.'

The lepers departed, and on the way were cleansed. Whereupon one of them, seeing that he was healed, returned to find Jesus, and he | was an Ishmaelite. And having found Jesus he bowed himself, 19<sup>b</sup> doing reverence unto him, and saying: 'Verily thou art an holy

XX<sup>b</sup>. Miracle on the sea wrought by Jesus, and Jesus declares where the prophet is received.

Jesus went to the sea of Galilee, and having embarked in a ship<sup>3</sup> sailed to his city of Nazareth; whereupon there was a great tempest in the sea, insomuch that the ship was nigh unto sinking. And Jesus was sleeping upon the prow of the ship. Then drew near to him his disciples, and awoke him, saying: 'O master, save thyself, for we perish!' They were encompassed with very great fear, by reason of the great wind that was contrary and the roaring of the sea. Jesus arose, and raising his eyes to heaven, said: 'O Elohim Sabaoth<sup>c</sup>, have mercy upon thy servants.' Then, when Jesus had said this, suddenly the wind ceased, and the sea became 20<sup>a</sup> calm. Wherefore the seamen feared, saying: 'And who is this, that the sea and the wind obey him?'

Having arrived at the city of Nazareth the seamen spread through the city all that Jesus had wrought, whereupon the house where Jesus was was surrounded by as many as dwelt in the city. And the scribes and doctors having presented themselves unto him, said: 'We<sup>4</sup> have heard how much thou hast wrought in the sea and in Judaea: give us therefore some sign<sup>5</sup> here in thine own country.'

Jesus answered: 'This faithless generation seek a sign, but it shall not be given them, because no prophet is received in his own country. In the time of Elijah there were many widows in Judaea, but he was not sent to be nourished save unto a widow of Sidon.

Many were the lepers in the time of Elisha in Judaea; nevertheless only Naaman the Syrian was cleansed.'

Then were the citizens enraged and seized him and carried him on to the top of a precipice to cast him down. But Jesus walking through the midst of them, departed from them.

XXI<sup>a</sup>. Jesus healeth a demoniac, and the swine are cast into the sea. Afterwards he healeth the daughter of the Canaanitess.

Jesus went up to Capernaum, and as he drew near to the city behold there came out of the tombs<sup>1</sup> one that was possessed of a devil, and in such wise that no chain could hold | him, and he did 20<sup>b</sup> great harm to the men.

The demons cried out through his mouth, saying: 'O holy one of God, why art thou come before the time<sup>2</sup> to trouble us?' And they prayed him that he would not cast them forth.

Jesus asked them how many they were. They answered: 'Six thousand six hundred and sixty-six.' When the disciples heard this they were affrighted, and prayed Jesus that he would depart. Then said Jesus: 'Where is your faith? It is necessary that the demon should depart, and not I.' The demons therefore cried: 'We will come out, but permit us to enter into those swine.' There were feeding there, near to the sea, about ten thousand swine belonging to the Canaanites. Thereupon Jesus said: 'Depart, and enter into the swine.' With a roar the demons entered into the swine, and cast them headlong into the sea. Then fled into the city they that fed the swine, and recounted all that had been brought to pass by Jesus.

Accordingly the men of the city came forth and found Jesus and the man that was healed. The men were filled with fear and prayed Jesus that he would depart out of their borders. Jesus accordingly departed from them and went up into the parts of Tyre and Sidon.

And lo! a woman of Canaan with her two sons<sup>3</sup>, who had come forth out of | her own country to find Jesus. Having therefore 21<sup>a</sup> seen him come with his disciples, she cried out: 'Jesus, son of David, have mercy on my daughter, who is tormented of the devil!'

Jesus did not answer even a single word, because they were of the uncircumcised people. The disciples were moved to pity, and said: 'O master, have pity on them! Behold how much they cry out and weep!'

Jesus answered: 'If ye consider, O foolish ones, what the dog doth, that hath no reason, for the service of his master, ye will find my saying to be true. Tell me, doth the dog guard the house of his master, and expose his life against the robber? Yea, assuredly. But what receiveth he? covenant of God made with A|braham his servant. Remember 22<sup>a</sup> that which David said<sup>1</sup> to Saul king of Israel, against Goliath the Philistine: "My lord," said David, "while thy servant was keeping thy servant's flock there came the wolf, the bear, and the lion and seized thy servant's sheep: whereupon thy servant went and slew them, rescuing the sheep. And what is this uncircumcised one but like unto them? Therefore will thy servant go in the name of the Lord God<sup>a</sup> of Israel, and will slay this unclean one that blasphemeth the holy people of God."

Then said the disciples: 'Tell us, O master, for what reason man must needs be circumcised?'

Jesus answered: 'Let it suffice you that God hath commanded it to Abraham, saying<sup>2</sup>: "Abraham, circumcise thy foreskin and that of all thy house, for this is a covenant between me and thee for ever."

XXIII<sup>b</sup>. Origin of circumcision, and covenant of God with Abraham, and damnation of the uncircumcised.

And having said this, Jesus sat nigh unto the mountain which they looked upon<sup>3</sup>. And his disciples came to his side to listen to his words<sup>4</sup>. Then said Jesus: 'Adam the first man having eaten, by fraud of Satan, the food forbidden of God in paradise, his | flesh rebelled against the spirit<sup>5</sup>; whereupon he swore, saying: 22<sup>b</sup> "By God<sup>c</sup>, I will cut thee!" And having broken a piece of rock, he seized his flesh to cut it with the sharp edge of the stone: whereupon he was rebuked by the angel Gabriel. And he answered: "I have sworn by God<sup>c</sup> to cut it; I will never be a liar!"

'Then the angel showed him the superfluity of his flesh, and that he cut off. And hence, just as every man taketh flesh from the flesh of Adam, so is he bound to observe all that Adam promised with an oath. This did Adam observe in his sons, and from generation to generation came down the obligation of circumcision. But in the time of Abraham there were but few circumcised upon the earth, because that idolatry was multiplied upon the earth.

Whereupon God told to Abraham the fact concerning circumcision, and made this covenant, saying: "The soul<sup>1</sup> that shall not have his flesh circumcised, I will scatter him from among my people for ever."

The disciples trembled with fear at these words of Jesus, for with vehemence of spirit he spake. Then said Jesus: 'Leave fear to him that hath not circumcised his foreskin, for he is deprived of paradise.' And having said this, Jesus spake again, saying: 'The spirit in many is ready in the service of God, but the flesh is weak<sup>2</sup>. The man therefore that feareth God ought to consider what the flesh is, and where it had its origin, and whereto it shall be reduced. Of the clay of the earth created God flesh<sup>3</sup>, and into it he breathed the breath of life<sup>4</sup>, with an inbreathing therein. And therefore when the flesh shall hinder the service of God it ought to be spurned like clay and trampled on, forasmuch as he that hateth his soul in this world shall keep it in life eternal<sup>5</sup>.'

'What the flesh is at this present its desires make manifest—that it is a harsh enemy of all good: for it alone desireth sin.

'Ought then man for the sake of satisfying one of his enemies to leave off pleasing God, his creator? Consider ye this. All the saints and prophets have been enemies of their flesh for service of God: wherefore readily and with gladness they went to their death, so as not to offend against the law of God given by Moses his servant, and go and serve the false and lying gods<sup>6</sup>.

'Remember Elijah, who fled through desert places of the mountains, eating only grass, clad in goats' skin. Ah, how many days he supped not! Ah, how much cold he endured! Ah, how many showers drenched him, and [that] for the space of seven years, wherein endured that fierce persecution of the unclean Jezebel!

'Remember Elisha, who ate barley-bread<sup>6</sup>, and wore the coarsest raiment. Verily I say unto you that they, not fearing to spurn the flesh, were feared with great terror by the king and princes. This should suffice for the spurning of the flesh, O men. But if ye will gaze at the sepulchres, ye shall know what the flesh is.'

Having said this, Jesus wept, saying: 'Woe to those who are servants to their flesh <sup>b</sup>, for they are sure not to have any good in the other life, but only torments for their sins. I tell you that there was a rich glutton who paid no heed to aught but gluttony, and so every day held a splendid feast<sup>1</sup>. There stood at his gate a poor man by name Lazarus, who was full of | wounds, and was 24<sup>a</sup> fain to have those crumbs that fell from the glutton's table. But no one gave them to him; nay, all mocked him. Only the dogs had pity on him, for they licked his wounds. It came to pass that the poor man died, and the angels carried him to the arms of Abraham our father. The rich man also died, and the devils carried him to the arms of Satan; whereupon, undergoing the greatest torment, he lifted up his eyes and from afar saw Lazarus in the arms of Abraham. Then cried the rich man: "O father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, who upon his fingers may bring me a drop of water to cool my tongue, which is tormented in this flame."

'Abraham answered: "Son, remember that thou receivedst thy good in the other life and Lazarus his evil; wherefore now thou shalt be in torment, and Lazarus in consolation."

'The rich man cried out again, saying: "O father Abraham, in my house there are three brethren of mine. Therefore send Lazarus to announce to them how much I am suffering, in order that they may repent and not come hither."

'Abraham answered: "They | have Moses and the prophets, let 24<sup>b</sup> them hear them."

'The rich man answered: "Nay, father Abraham; but if one dead shall arise they will believe."

'Abraham answered: "Whoso believeth not Moses and the prophets will not believe even the dead if they should arise <sup>c</sup>."

Then said Jesus: 'There was a man on a journey who, as he was walking, discovered a treasure in a field<sup>1</sup> that was to be sold for five pieces of money. Straightway the man, when he knew this, sold his cloak to buy that field. Is that credible?' -

The disciples answered: 'He who would not believe this is mad.'

Thereupon Jesus said: 'Ye will be mad if ye give not your senses to God to buy your soul, wherein resideth the treasure of love; for love is a treasure incomparable. For he that loveth God hath God for his own; and whoso hath God hath everything<sup>b</sup>.'

Peter answered: 'O master, how ought one to love God with true love? Tell thou us.'

Whence there was enmity between them, insomuch that the father wished to burn his son.'

Peter answered: 'True are thy words; wherefore I pray thee tell us how Abraham mocked his father.'

Jesus replied<sup>2</sup>: 'Abraham was seven years old when he began to seek God. So one day he said to his father: "Father, what made man?"

'The foolish father answered: "Man; for I made thee, and my father made me."

'Abraham answered: "Father, it is not so; for I have heard an old man weeping and saying: 'O my God, wherefore hast thou not given me children?'"

'His father replied: "It is true, my son, that God helpeth man to make man, but he putteth not his hands thereto; it is only necessary that man come to pray to his God and to give him lambs and sheep, and his God will help him."

'Abraham answered: "How many gods are there, father?"

'The old man replied: "They are infinite in number, my son."

'Then said Abraham: "O father, what shall I do if I shall serve one god and | another shall wish me evil because I serve him not? 27<sup>a</sup> In any wise there will come discord between them, and so war will arise among the gods. But if perchance the god that willeth me evil shall slay my own god, what shall I do? It is certain that he will slay me also."

'The old man, laughing, answered: "O son, have no fear, for no god maketh war upon another god; nay, in the great temple there are a thousand gods with the great god Baal; and I am now nigh seventy years old, and yet never have I seen that one god hath smitten another god. And assuredly all men do not serve one god, but one man one, and another another."

'Abraham answered: "So, then, they have peace among themselves?"

'Said his father: "They have."

'Then said Abraham: "O father, what be the gods like?"

'The old man answered: "Fool, every day I make a god, which I sell to others to buy bread, and thou knowest not what the gods are like!" And then at that moment he was making an idol. "This," said he, "is of palm wood, that one is of olive, that little one is of ivory: see how fine it is! Does it not seem as though it were alive? Assuredly, it lacks but breath!"

'Abraham answered: "And so, father, the gods are without breath? Then how do they give breath? | And being without life, 27<sup>b</sup> how give they life? It is certain, father, that these are not God."

'The old man was wroth at these words, saying: "If thou wert of age to understand, I would break thy head with this axe: But hold thy peace, because thou hast not understanding!" -

'Abraham answered: "Father, if the gods help to make man, how can it be that man should make the gods? And if the gods are made of wood, it is a great sin to burn wood. But tell me, father, how is it that, when thou hast made so many gods, the gods have not helped thee to make so many other children that thou shouldest become the most powerful man in the world?"

'The father was beside himself, hearing his son speak so; the son went on: "Father, was the world for some time without men?"

"Yes," answered the old man, "and why?"

"Because," said Abraham, "I should like to know who made the first God."

"Now go out of my house!" said the old man, "and leave me to make this god quickly, and speak no words to me; for, when thou art hungry, thou desirest bread and not words."

'Said Abraham: "A fine god, truly, that thou cuttest him as thou wilt, and he defendeth not himself!"

'Then the old man was angry, and said: "All the world saith that it is a god, and thou, mad fellow, sayest that it is not. By my gods, if thou wert a man I could kill thee!" | And having said 28<sup>a</sup> this, he gave blows and kicks to Abraham, and chased him from the house.'

XXVII<sup>a</sup>. In this chapter is clearly seen how improper is laughter in men: also the prudence of Abraham.

The disciples laughed over the madness of the old man, and stood amazed at the prudence of Abraham. But Jesus reproved them, saying: 'Ye have forgotten the words of the prophet, who saith<sup>1</sup>: "Present laughter is a herald of weeping to come," and further, "Thou shalt not go where is laughter, but sit where they weep, because this life passeth in miseries". Then said Jesus: 'In the time of Moses, know ye not that for laughing and mocking at others God turned into hideous beasts many men of Egypt<sup>a</sup>? Beware that in anywise ye laugh not at any one, for ye shall surely weep [for it]<sup>b</sup>.'

The disciples answered: 'We laughed over the madness of the old man.'

Then said Jesus: 'Verily I say unto you, every like loveth his like<sup>c</sup>, and therein findeth pleasure. Therefore, if ye were not mad ye would not laugh at madness.'

They answered: 'May God have mercy on us<sup>d</sup>.'

Said Jesus: 'So be it.'

Then said Philip: 'O master, how | came it to pass that Abraham's 28<sup>b</sup> father wished to burn his son?'

Jesus answered: 'One day, Abraham having come to the age of twelve years, his father said to him: "To-morrow is the festival of all the gods; therefore we shall go to the great temple and bear a present to my god, great Baal. And thou shalt choose for thyself a god, for thou art of age to have a god."

'Abraham answered with guile: "Willingly, O my father." And so betimes in the morning they went before every one else to the temple. But Abraham bare beneath his tunic an axe hidden. Whereupon, having entered into the temple, as the crowd increased Abraham hid himself behind an idol in a dark part of the temple. His father, when he departed, believed that Abraham had gone home before him, wherefore he did not stay to seek him.

XXVIII<sup>e</sup>.

'When every one had departed from the temple, the priests closed the temple and went away. Then Abraham took the axe and cut off the feet of all the idols, except the great god Baal. upon, Abraham, going forth from the temple, was seen by certain men, who suspected him of having gone to thieve something from the temple. So they laid hold on him, and having arrived at the temple, when they saw their gods so broken in pieces, they cried out with lamentation: "Come quickly, O men, and let us slay him who hath slain our gods!" There ran together there about ten thousand men, with the priests, and questioned Abraham of the reason why he had destroyed their gods.

'Abraham answered: "Ye are foolish! Shall then a man slay God? It is the great God that hath slain them. See you not that axe which he hath near his feet? Certain it is that he desireth no fellows."

'Then arrived there the father of Abraham, who, mindful of the many discourses of Abraham against their gods, and recognizing the axe wherewith Abraham had broken in pieces the idols, cried out: "It hath been this traitor of a son of mine, who hath slain our gods! for this axe is mine." And he recounted to them all that had passed between him and his son. |

'Accordingly the men collected a great quantity of wood, and 29<sup>b</sup> having bound Abraham's hands and feet put him upon the wood, and put fire underneath.

'Lo! God, through his angel, commanded the fire that it should not burn Abraham his servant. The fire blazed up with great fury, and burned about two thousand men of those who had condemned Abraham to death. Abraham verily found himself free, being carried by the angel of God near to the house of his father, without seeing who carried him; and thus Abraham escaped death.'

XXIX <sup>a</sup>.

Then said Philip: 'Great is the mercy of God upon whoso loveth him. Tell us, O master, how Abraham came to the knowledge of God.'

Jesus answered: 'Having arrived nigh unto the house of his father, Abraham feared to go into the house; so he removed some distance from the house and sat under a palm tree, where thus abiding by himself he said: "It needs must be that there is a God who hath life and power more than man, since he maketh man,

But after considering their variableness with their movements, he said: "It needs must be that God move not, and that clouds hide him not; otherwise men would be brought to naught." Whereupon, remaining thus in suspense, he heard himself called by name, "Abraham!" And so, turning round and not seeing any one on any side, he said: "I have surely heard myself called by name, 'Abraham.'" Thereupon, two other times in like manner, he heard himself called by name, "Abraham!"

'He answered: "Who calleth me?"

'Then he heard it said: "I am the angel of God, Gabriel."

'Therefore was Abraham filled with fear; but the angel comforted him, saying: "Fear not, Abraham, for that thou art friend of God; wherefore, when thou didst break in pieces the gods of men, thou wert chosen of the God of the angels and prophets; insomuch that thou art written in the book of life<sup>1</sup>."

'Then said Abraham: "What ought I to do, to serve the God of the angels and holy prophets?"

'The angel answered: "Go to that fount and wash thee, for God willeth to speak with thee."

'Abraham answered: "Now, how ought I to wash me?"

'Then the angel presented himself unto him as a beautiful youth, and washed himself in the fount, | saying: "Do thou in turn 30<sup>b</sup> likewise to thyself, O Abraham." When Abraham had washed himself, the angel said: "Go up that mountain, for God willeth to speak to thee there."

'He ascended the mountain as the angel said to Abraham, and having sat down upon his knees he said to himself: "When will the God of the angels speak to me?"

'He heard himself called with a gentle voice: "Abraham!"

'Abraham answered him: "Who calleth me?"

'The voice answered: "I am thy God<sup>a</sup>, O Abraham."

'Abraham, filled with fear, bent his face to earth, saying: "How shall thy servant hearken unto thee, who is dust and ashes<sup>2</sup>!"

Jesus went to Jerusalem, near unto the Senofegia (= Tabernacles), a feast of our nation. The scribes and Pharisees having perceived this, took counsel to catch him in his talk<sup>3</sup>.

Whereupon, there came to him a doctor, saying<sup>4</sup>: 'Master, what must I do to have eternal life?'

Jesus answered: 'How is it written in the law?'

The tempter answered, saying: 'Love the Lord thy God<sup>c</sup>, and thy neighbour. Thou shalt love thy God above all things, with all thy heart and thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself.'

Jesus answered: 'Thou hast answered well: therefore go and do thou so, I say, and thou shalt have eternal life.'

He said unto him: 'And who is my neighbour?'

Jesus answered, lifting up his eyes: 'A man was going down from Jerusalem to go unto Jericho, a city rebuilt under a curse<sup>5</sup>. This man on the road was seized by robbers, wounded and stripped; whereupon they departed, leaving him half dead. It chanced that a priest passed by that place, and he, seeing the wounded man, passed on without greeting him. In like manner passed a Levite, without saying a word. It chanced that there passed [also] a Samaritan, who, | seeing the wounded man, was moved to compassion, 31<sup>b</sup> and alighted from his horse, and took the wounded man and washed his wounds with wine, and anointed them with ointment, and binding up his wounds for him and comforting him, he set him upon his own horse. 'Give therefore,' said Jesus, 'that which is Caesar's to Caesar, and that which is God's give it to God.'

Then they departed in confusion. |

And behold there drew nigh a centurion<sup>2</sup>, saying: 'Lord<sup>3</sup>, my 32<sup>a</sup> son is sick; have mercy on my old age!'

Jesus answered: 'The Lord God<sup>b</sup> of Israel have mercy on thee!'

The man was departing; and Jesus said: 'Wait for me, for I will come to thine house, to make prayer over thy son.'

The centurion answered: 'Lord<sup>3</sup>, I am not worthy that thou, a prophet of God, shouldst come unto my house, sufficient unto me is the word that thou hast spoken for the healing of my son; for thy God hath made thee lord over every sickness, even as his angel said unto me in my sleep.'

Then Jesus marvelled greatly, and turning to the crowd, he said: 'Behold this stranger, for he hath more faith than all that I have found in Israel.' And turning to the centurion, he said: 'Go in peace, because God<sup>c</sup>, for the great faith that he hath given thee, hath granted health to thy son.'

The centurion went his way<sup>4</sup>, and on the road he met his servants, who announced to him how his son was healed.

They said : ' Yesterday, at the sixth hour, the heat departed from him. '

The man knew that when Jesus said : ' The Lord God <sup>a</sup> of Israel have mercy on thee, ' | his son received his health. Whereupon the <sup>32</sup><sup>b</sup> man believed in our God, and having entered into his house, he brake in pieces all his own gods, saying : ' There is only the God of Israel, the true and living God <sup>b</sup>. ### XXXII c.

One skilled in the law invited Jesus to supper <sup>1</sup>, in order to tempt him. Jesus came thither with his disciples, and many scribes, to tempt him, waited for him in the house. Whereupon, the disciples sat down to table without washing their hands. The scribes called Jesus, saying : ' Wherefore do not thy disciples observe the traditions of our elders, in not washing their hands before they eat bread ? '

Jesus answered : ' And I ask you, for what cause have ye annulled the precept of God to observe your traditions <sup>d</sup> ? Ye say to the sons of poor fathers : " Offer and make vows unto the temple. " And they make vows of that little wherewith they ought to support their fathers. And when their fathers wish to take money, the sons cry out : " This money is consecrated to | God " ; whereby the <sup>33</sup><sup>a</sup> fathers suffer. O false scribes, hypocrites, doth God use this money ? Assuredly not, for God eateth not <sup>e</sup>, as he saith by his servant David the prophet <sup>2</sup> : " Shall I then eat the flesh of bulls and drink the blood of sheep ? Render unto me the sacrifice of praise, and offer unto me thy vows ; for if I should be hungry I will not ask aught of thee, seeing that all things are in my hands, and the abundance of paradise is with me. ‘Ye scribes and doctors lay upon the shoulders of others weights of unbearable weight, but ye yourselves the while are not willing to move them with one of your fingers.

‘Verily I say unto you, that every evil hath entered into the world under the pretext of the elders. Tell me, who made idolatry to enter into the world, if not the usage of the elders? For there was a king who exceedingly loved his father, whose name was Baal. Whereupon, when the father was dead, his son for his own consolation, caused to be made an image like unto his father, and set it up in the market-place of the city. And he made a decree that every one who | approached that statue within a space of fifteen cubits 33<sup>b</sup> should be safe, and no one on any account should do him hurt. Hence the malefactors, by reason of the benefit they received therefrom, began to offer to the statue roses and flowers, and in a short time the offerings were changed into money and food, insomuch that they called it god, to honour it. Which thing from custom was transformed into a law, insomuch that the idol of Baal spread through all the world; and how much doth God lament this<sup>1</sup> by the prophet Isaiah, saying: “Truly this people worshippeth me<sup>a</sup> in vain, for they have annulled my law given to them by my servant Moses, and follow the traditions of their elders.”

‘Verily I say unto you, that to eat bread with unclean hands defileth not a man, because that which entereth into the man defileth not the man, but that which cometh out of the man defileth the man.’

Thereupon, said one of the scribes: ‘If I shall eat pork, or other unclean meats, will they not defile my conscience?’

Jesus answered: ‘Disobedience will not enter into the man, but will come out of the man, from his heart; and therefore will he be defiled when he shall eat forbidden food<sup>b</sup>.’

Then said one of the doctors: ‘Master, thou hast | spoken much 34<sup>a</sup> against idolatry as though the people of Israel had idols, and so thou hast done us wrong.’

Jesus answered: ‘I know well that in Israel to-day there are not statues of wood; but there are statues of flesh.’

Then answered all the scribes in wrath: ‘And so we are idolaters?’

Jesus answered : ' Verily I say unto you, the precept<sup>1</sup> saith not "Thou shalt worship," but "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God<sup>a</sup> with all thy soul, and with all thy heart, and with all thy mind." Is this true ? ' said Jesus.

' It is true,' answered every one.

Then said Jesus : ' Verily all that which a man loveth, for which he leaveth everything else but that, is his god<sup>c</sup>. And so the fornicator hath for his image the harlot, the glutton and drunkard hath for image his own flesh, and the covetous hath for his image silver and gold, and so likewise every other sinner.'

Then said he who had invited him : ' Master, which is the greatest sin ? '

Jesus answered : ' Which is the greatest ruin of a house ? '

Every one was silent, | when Jesus with his finger pointed to the 34<sup>b</sup> foundation, and said : ' If the foundation give way, immediately the house falleth in ruin, in such wise that it is necessary to build it up anew : but if every other part give way it can be repaired. Even so then say I to you, that idolatry is the greatest sin, because it depriveth a man entirely of faith, and consequently of God ; so that he can have no spiritual affection<sup>d</sup>. But every other sin leaveth to man the hope of obtaining mercy : and therefore I say that idolatry is the greatest sin.'

All stood amazed at the speaking of Jesus, for they perceived that it could not in any wise be assailed.

Then Jesus continued : ' Remember that which God spake and which Moses and Joshua wrote in the law, and ye shall see how grave is this sin. Said God, speaking to Israel : " Thou shalt not<sup>2</sup> make to thyself any image of those things which are in heaven nor of those things which are under the heaven, nor shalt thou make it of those things which are above the earth, nor of those which are under the earth ; nor of those which are above the water, nor

There stood before the door one <sup>4</sup> who had his right hand shrunken in such fashion that he could not use it. Whereupon Jesus, having lift up his heart to God, prayed, and then said: 'In order that ye may know that my words are true, I say, "In the name of God <sup>d</sup>, man, stretch out thine infirm hand!"' He stretched it out whole, as if it had never had aught ill with it.

Then with fear of God they began to eat. And having eaten somewhat, Jesus said again: 'Verily I say unto you, that it were better to burn a city than to leave there an evil custom<sup>e</sup>. For on account of such | is God wroth with the princes and kings 35<sup>b</sup> of the earth, to whom God hath given the sword to destroy iniquities <sup>f6</sup>.'

Afterwards said Jesus <sup>6</sup>: 'When thou are invited, remember not to set thyself in the highest place, in order that if a greater friend of the host come the host say not unto thee: "Arise and sit lower down!" which were a shame to thee. But go and sit in the meanest place, in order that he who invited thee may come and say: "Arise, friend, and come and sit here, above!" For then shalt thou have great honour: for every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted <sup>g</sup>.

And having said this, Jesus gave thanks; and that day it was published through Jerusalem how great things Jesus had said, with the miracle he had wrought, insomuch that the people gave thanks to God, blessing his holy name.

But the scribes and priests, having understood that he spake against the traditions of the elders, were kindled with greater hatred. And like Pharaoh <sup>2</sup> they hardened their heart: wherefore they sought occasion to slay him, but found it not.

aught else<sup>a</sup>. Therefore, being indignant, he instigated the angels, saying: "Look ye, one day God shall will that this earth be revered by us. Wherefore consider that we are spirit, and therefore it is not fitting so to do."

'Many therefore forsook God. Whereupon said God, one day when all the angels were assembled: "Let each one that holds me for his lord straightway do reverence to this earth."

'They that loved God bowed themselves, but Satan, with them that were of his mind, said: "O Lord, we are spirit, and therefore it is not just that we should do reverence to this clay." Having said this, Satan became horrid and of fearsome look, and his followers became hideous; because for their rebellion God took away from them the beauty wherewith he had endued them in creating them. | Whereat the holy angels, when, lifting their heads, 37<sup>a</sup> they saw how terrible a monster Satan had become, and his followers, cast down their face to earth in fear<sup>b</sup>.

'Then said Satan<sup>c</sup>: "O Lord, thou hast unjustly made me hideous, but I am content thereat, because I desire to annul all that thou shalt do. And the other devils said: "Call him not Lord, O Lucifer, for thou art Lord."

'Then said God to the followers of Satan: "Repent ye, and recognize me as God, your creator<sup>d</sup>."

'They answered: "We repent of having done thee any reverence, for that thou art not just; but Satan is just and innocent, and he is our Lord."

'Then said God: "Depart from me, O ye cursed, for I have no mercy on you<sup>e</sup>."

The disciples stood in great amazement | at the rebellion of the 37<sup>b</sup> angels.

Then said Jesus: 'Verily I say unto you, that he who maketh not prayer is more wicked than Satan, and shall suffer greater torments. Because Satan had, before his fall, no example of fearing, nor did God so much as send him any prophet to invite him to repentance: but man—now that all the prophets are come <sup>b</sup> except the messenger of God <sup>c</sup> who shall come after me, because so God willeth, and that I may prepare his way—and man <sup>d</sup>, I say, albeit he have infinite examples of the justice of God, liveth carelessly without any fear, as though there were no God. Even as of such spake the prophet David: "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God. Therefore are they corrupt and become abominable, without one of them doing good<sup>1</sup>."

'Make prayer unceasingly <sup>2</sup>, O my disciples, in order that ye may receive. For he who seeketh findeth, and he who knocketh to him it is opened, and he who asketh receiveth. And in your prayer do not look to much speaking <sup>3</sup>, for God looketh on <sup>e</sup> the heart <sup>f</sup><sup>4</sup>; as he said through Solomon <sup>5</sup>: "O my servant, give me thine heart." Verily I say unto you, as God liveth <sup>g</sup>, | the hypocrites <sup>h</sup> 38<sup>a</sup> make much prayer in every part of the city in order to be seen and held for saints by the multitude: but their heart is full of wickedness, and therefore they do not mean that which they ask. It is needful that thou mean thy prayer if thou wilt that God receive it <sup>h</sup>. Now tell me: who would go to speak to the Roman governor or to Herod, except he first have made up his mind <sup>i</sup> to whom he is going, and what he is going to do? Assuredly none. to do in order to speak with God, and ask of him mercy for his sins, while thanking him for all that he hath given him <sup>a</sup>?

‘Verily I say unto you, that very few make true prayer, and therefore Satan hath power over them, because God willeth not those who honour him with their lips: who in the temple ask [with] their lips for mercy, and their heart crieth out for justice <sup>b</sup>. Even as he saith to Isaiah the prophet, saying: “Take away this people that is irksome to me, because with their lips they honour me, but their heart is far from me<sup>1</sup>.” Verily I say unto you, | that 38<sup>b</sup> he that goeth to make prayer without consideration mocketh God.

‘Now who would go to speak to Herod with his back towards him<sup>2</sup>, and before him speak well of Pilate the governor, whom he hateth to the death? Assuredly none. Yet no less doth the man who goeth to make prayer and prepareth not himself. He turneth his back<sup>3</sup> to God and his face to Satan, and speaketh well of him. For in his heart is the love of iniquity, whereof he hath not repented.

‘If one, having injured thee, should with his lips say to thee, “Forgive me,” and with his hands should strike thee a blow, how wouldest thou forgive him? Even so shall God have mercy on those who with their lips say: “Lord, have mercy on us,” and with their heart love iniquity and think on fresh sins.’

Then answered John: 'Master, let us wash ourselves as God commanded by Moses.'

Jesus said: 'Think<sup>1</sup> ye that I am come to destroy the law and the prophets? Verily I say unto you, as God liveth<sup>e</sup>, I am not come to destroy it, but rather to observe it. For every prophet hath observed the law of God and all that God by the other prophets hath spoken<sup>f</sup>. As God liveth<sup>g</sup>, in whose presence my soul standeth, no one | that breaketh one least precept can be pleasing to God, but shall be least in the kingdom of God, for he shall have no part there. Then said John : ' Well hast thou spoken, O master, but we lack to know how man sinned through pride.'

Jesus answered : ' When God had expelled Satan, and the angel Gabriel had purified that mass of earth whereon Satan spat, God created <sup>c</sup> everything that liveth, both of the animals that fly and of them that walk and swim, and he adorned the world with all that it hath. One day Satan approached unto the gates of paradise, and, seeing the horses eating grass, he announced to them that if that mass of earth should receive a soul there would be for them grievous labour; and that therefore it would be to their advantage to trample that piece of earth in such wise that it should be no more good for anything. | The horses aroused themselves and <sup>40b</sup> impetuously set themselves to run over that piece of earth which lay among lilies and roses. Whereupon God gave spirit to that unclean portion of earth upon which lay the spittle of Satan, which Gabriel had taken up from the mass; and raised up the dog, who, barking, filled the horses with fear, and they fled. Then God gave his soul to man <sup>d</sup>, while all the holy angels sang : " Blessed be thy holy name, O God our Lord <sup>e</sup>."

hast deigned to create me; but tell me, I pray thee, what meaneth the message of these words: "Mohammed is messenger of God <sup>a</sup> <sup>b</sup>." Have there been other men before me?"

‘When Satan had knowledge of this he became mad with indignation. And so he drew near to the gate of paradise, whereat stood on guard a horrid serpent, which had legs like a camel, and the nails of his feet cut like a razor on every side. To him said the enemy: “Suffer me to enter into paradise.”

‘The serpent answered: “And how shall I suffer thee to enter, God having commanded me to drive thee out?”

‘Satan answered: “Thou seest how much God loveth thee, since he hath set thee outside of paradise to keep guard over a lump of clay, which is man. Wherefore, if thou bring me into paradise I will make thee so terrible that every one shall flee thee, and so at thy pleasure thou shalt go and stay.”

‘Then said the serpent: “And how shall I set thee within?”

‘Said Satan, “Thou art great; therefore open thy mouth, and I will enter into thy belly, and so thou entering into paradise shalt place me near to those two lumps of clay | that are newly walking 42<sup>a</sup> upon the earth.”

‘Then the serpent did so, and placed Satan near to Eve, for Adam, her husband, was sleeping. Satan presented himself before the woman like a beauteous angel, and said to her<sup>1</sup>: “Wherefore eat ye not of those apples and of corn?”

‘Eve answered: “Our God hath said to us that eating thereof we shall be unclean, and therefore he will drive us from paradise.”

‘Satan answered: “He saith not the truth. Thou must know that God is wicked and envious, and therefore he brooketh no equals, but keepeth every one for a slave. And so he hath thus spoken unto you, in order that ye may not become equal to him. But if thou and thy companion do according to my counsel, ye shall eat of those fruits even as of the others, and ye shall not remain subject to others, but like God ye shall know good and evil, and ye shall do that which ye please, because ye shall be equal to God.”

‘Then Eve took<sup>2</sup> and ate of those [fruits], and when her husband awoke she told all that Satan had said; and he took of them, his wife offering them, and did eat. Whereupon, as the food was going down, he remembered the words of God; wherefore, wishing to stop the food, he put his hand into his throat, where every man has the mark. |

'Then<sup>1</sup> both of them knew that they were naked; wherefore, 42<sup>b</sup> being ashamed, they took fig leaves and made a clothing for their secret parts. When midday was passed, behold God appeared to them, and called Adam, saying: "Adam, where art thou?"

'He answered: "Lord, I did hide myself from thy presence because I and my wife are naked, and so we are ashamed to present ourselves before thee."

'Then said God: "And who hath robbed you of your innocence, unless ye have eaten the fruit by reason of which ye are unclean, and will not be able to abide longer in paradise?"

'Adam answered: "O Lord, the wife whom thou hast given me besought me to eat, and so I have eaten thereof."

'Then said God to the woman: "Wherefore gavest thou such food to thy husband?"

'Eve answered: "Satan deceived me, and so I did eat."

"And how did that reprobate enter in hither?" said God.

'Eve answered: "A serpent that standeth at the northern gate brought him near to me."

'Then said God to Adam: "Because thou hast hearkened to the voice of thy wife and hast eaten | the fruit, cursed be the earth in 43<sup>a</sup> thy works; it shall bring forth for thee brambles and thorns, and in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread. And remember that thou art earth, and to earth shalt thou return."

'And he spake to Eve, saying: "And thou who didst hearken to Satan, and gavest the food to thy husband, shalt abide under the dominion of man, who shall keep thee as a slave, and thou shalt bear children with travail."

'And having called the serpent, God called the angel Michael, him who holdeth the sword of God<sup>b</sup>, [and] said: "First drive forth from paradise this wicked serpent, and when outside cut off his legs: for if he shall wish to walk, he must trail his body upon the earth." Afterwards God called Satan<sup>c</sup>, who came laughing, and he said to him: "Because thou, reprobate, hast deceived these and hast made them to become unclean, I will that every uncleanness of them and of all their children, whereof they shall be truly penitent and shall serve me, in going forth from their body shall

They said: 'If thou be not the Messiah nor Elijah, or any prophet, wherefore dost thou preach new doctrine, and make thyself of more account than the Messiah?'<sup>1</sup>

Jesus answered<sup>2</sup>: 'The miracles which God worketh by my hands show that I speak that which God willeth; nor indeed do I make myself to be accounted as him of whom ye speak. For I am not worthy to unloose the ties of the hosen or the latchets of the shoes of the messenger of God<sup>a</sup> whom ye call "Messiah," who was made before me, and shall come after me, and shall bring the words of truth, so that his faith shall have no end<sup>b 2</sup>.'

The Levites and scribes departed in confusion, and recounted all to the chiefs of the priests, who said: 'He hath | the devil on his 44<sup>a</sup> back who recounteth all to him.'

Then said Jesus to his disciples<sup>3</sup>: 'Verily I say unto you, that the chiefs and the elders of our people seek occasion against me.'

Then said Peter: 'Therefore go not thou any more into Jerusalem.'

Therefore said Jesus unto him: 'Thou art foolish, and knowest not what thou sayest, for it is necessary that I should suffer many persecutions, because so have suffered all the prophets and holy ones of God. But fear not, for there be<sup>4</sup> that are with us and there be that are against us.'

And having said this, Jesus departed and went to the mount Tabor<sup>5</sup>, and there ascended with him Peter and James and John his brother, with him who writeth this. Whereupon there shone a great light above him, and his garments became white like snow and his face glistened as the sun, and lo! there came Moses and Elijah speaking with Jesus concerning all that needs must come upon our race and upon the holy city.

Peter spake, saying: 'Lord, it is good to be here. Therefore, if thou wilt, we will make here three tabernacles, one for thee and one for Moses and the other for Elijah.' And while he spake they were covered with a white cloud, and they heard a voice saying:

The disciples were filled with fear, and fell with their face upon the earth as dead. Jesus went down and raised up his disciples, saying: ‘Fear not, for God loveth you<sup>a</sup>, and hath done this in order that ye may believe on my words.’

XLIII <sup>b</sup>.

Jesus went down to the eight disciples who were awaiting him below. And the four narrated<sup>1</sup> to the eight all that they had seen: and so there departed that day from their heart all doubt of Jesus, save [from] Judas Iscariot, who believed naught. Jesus seated himself at the foot of the mountain, and they ate of the wild fruits, because they had not bread.

Then said Andrew: ‘Thou hast told us many things of the Messiah, therefore of thy kindness tell us clearly all.’ And in like manner the other disciples besought him.

Accordingly Jesus said: ‘Everyone that worketh worketh for an end in which he findeth satisfaction. Wherefore I say unto you that God, verily because he is perfect<sup>c</sup>, hath not need of satisfaction, seeing that he hath satisfaction himself. And so, willing to work, he created before all things the soul of his messenger<sup>d</sup>, for whom | he determined to create the whole<sup>e</sup>, in order that the <sup>45b</sup> creatures should find joy and blessedness in God, whence his messenger should take delight in all his creatures, which he hath appointed to be his slaves. And wherefore is this so, save because thus he hath willed?

‘Verily I say unto you, that every prophet when he is come hath borne to one nation only the mark of the mercy of God. And so their words were not extended save to that people to which they were sent. But the messenger of God<sup>f</sup>, when he shall come, God shall give to him<sup>g</sup> as it were the seal of his hand, insomuch that he shall carry salvation and mercy to all the nations of the world that shall receive his doctrine. "Behold, in thy seed I will bless all the tribes of the earth; and as thou hast broken in pieces the idols<sup>1</sup>, O Abraham, even so shall thy seed do."

James answered: 'O master, tell us in whom this promise was made; for the Jews say "in Isaac," and the Ishmaelites say "in Ishmael."'

Jesus answered: 'David, whose son was he, and of what lineage?'

James answered: 'Of Isaac; for Isaac | was father of Jacob, and 46<sup>a</sup> Jacob was father of Judah, of whose lineage is David.'

Then said Jesus<sup>2</sup>: 'And the messenger of God<sup>a</sup> when he shall come, of what lineage will he be?'

The disciples answered: 'Of David.'

Whereupon Jesus said: 'Ye deceive yourselves; for David in spirit calleth him lord, saying thus<sup>3</sup>: "God said to my lord, sit thou on my right hand until I make thine enemies thy footstool. God shall send forth thy rod which shall have lordship in the midst of thine enemies." If the messenger of God<sup>a</sup> whom ye call Messiah<sup>b</sup> were son of David, how should David call him lord? Believe me, for verily I say to you, that the promise was made in Ishmael, not in Isaac.'

XLIV c.

Thereupon said the disciples: 'O master, it is thus written in the book of Moses, that in Isaac was the promise made<sup>4</sup>.'

Jesus answered, with a groan: 'It is so written, but Moses wrote it not, nor Joshua, but rather our rabbins<sup>d</sup>, who fear not God<sup>e</sup>. Verily I say unto you, that if ye consider the words of the angel Gabriel, ye shall discover the malice of our scribes and doctors. For the angel said: "Abraham, all the world shall know | how 46<sup>b</sup> God loveth thee<sup>e</sup>; but how shall the world know the love that thou bearest to God? Assuredly it is necessary that thou do something for love of God." Abraham answered: "Behold the servant of God, ready to do all that which God shall will."

Then came the angel Gabriel to Jesus, and spake to him in such wise that we also heard his voice, which said: 'Arise, and go unto Jerusalem!'

Accordingly Jesus departed and went up to Jerusalem. And on the sabbath day he entered into the temple, and began to teach the people. Whereupon the people ran together to the temple with | the high priest and priests, who drew nigh to Jesus, saying: 47<sup>b</sup> 'O master, it hath been said to us that thou sayest evil of us; therefore beware lest some evil befall thee.'

Jesus answered: 'Verily I say unto you, that I speak evil of the hypocrites; therefore if ye be hypocrites I speak against you <sup>b</sup>.'

They answered: 'Who is a hypocrite? Tell us plainly.'

Said Jesus: 'Verily I say to you, that he who doeth a good thing in order that men may see him, even he is a hypocrite, forasmuch as his work penetrateth not the heart which men cannot see, and so <sup>1</sup> leaveth therein every unclean thought and every filthy lust <sup>c</sup>. Know ye who is hypocrite? He who with his tongue serveth God, but with his heart serveth men. O wretched man! for dying he loseth all his reward <sup>d</sup>. For on this matter saith the prophet David <sup>2</sup>: "Put not your confidence in princes, [nor] in the children of men, in whom is no salvation; for at death their thoughts perish": nay, before death they find themselves deprived of reward, for "man is," as said Job the prophet of God <sup>3</sup>, "unstable, so that he never continueth in one stay." So that if to-day he praiseth thee, to-morrow he will abuse thee, and if to-day he willeth to reward thee, | to-morrow he will be fain to despoil thee. 48<sup>a</sup> Woe, then, to the hypocrites, because their reward is vain <sup>d</sup>. As God liveth <sup>e</sup>, in whose presence I stand, the hypocrite is a robber and committeth sacrilege, inasmuch as he maketh use of the law to appear good, and thieveth the honour of God, to whom alone pertaineth praise and honour for ever.

Verily I say unto you, that the hypocrite is as a sepulchre<sup>1</sup>, that without is white, but within is full of corruption and worms. So then if ye, O priests, do the service of God because God hath created you<sup>d</sup> and asketh it of you, I speak not against you, for ye are servants of God; but if ye do all for gain, and so buy and sell in the temple as in a market-place, not regarding that the temple of God is a house of prayer and not of merchandise<sup>2</sup>, which ye convert into a cave of robbers<sup>3</sup>: if ye do all to please men, | and have 48<sup>b</sup> put God out of your mind; then cry I against you that ye are sons of the devil, and not sons of Abraham<sup>4</sup>, who left his father’s house for love of God, and was willing to slay his own son. Again spake Jesus, saying<sup>5</sup>: ‘I set before you an example. There was a householder who planted a vineyard, and made a hedge for it in order that it should not be trampled down of beasts. And in the midst of it he built a press for the wine, and thereupon let it out to husbandmen. Whereupon, when the time was come to collect the wine he sent his servants; whom when the husbandmen saw, they stoned some and burned some, and others they ripped open<sup>6</sup> with a knife. And this they did many times. Tell me, what will the lord of the vineyard do to the husbandmen?’

Every one answered: ‘In evil wise will he make them to perish, and his vineyard will he give to other husbandmen.’

Therefore said Jesus: ‘Know ye not that the vineyard is the house of Israel, and the husbandmen | are the people of Judah and 49<sup>a</sup>

Jerusalem<sup>1</sup>? Woe to you; for God is wroth<sup>a</sup> with you, having ripped open<sup>2</sup> so many prophets of God; so that at the time of Ahab there was not found one to bury the holy ones of God!

And when he had said this the chief priests wished to seize him, but they feared<sup>3</sup> the common people, which magnified him.

Then Jesus, seeing a woman<sup>4</sup> who from her birth had remained with her head bent toward the ground, said: 'Raise thy head, O woman, in the name of our God<sup>b</sup>, in order that these may know that I speak truth, and that he willeth that I announce it.'

Then the woman raised herself up whole, magnifying God.

The chief of the priests cried out, saying: 'This man is not sent of God, seeing he keepeth not the sabbath; for today he hath healed an infirm person.'

Jesus answered: 'Now tell me, is it not lawful to speak on the sabbath day, and to make prayer for the salvation of others? And who is there among you who, if on the sabbath his ass or his ox fell into the ditch<sup>5</sup>, would not pull him out on the sabbath? Assuredly none. And shall I then have broken the sabbath day by having given health to a daughter of Israel? Of a surety, here is known thy hypocrisy! Oh, how many are there to-day that fear the smiting of a straw in another's eye, while a beam<sup>6</sup> is ready to cut off their own head! | Oh, how many there are that 49<sup>b</sup> fear an ant, but reckon not of an elephant!'

And having said this, he went forth from the temple. But the priests chafed with rage among themselves, because they were not able to seize him and to work their will upon him, even as their fathers have done against the holy ones of God.

Jesus went down, in the second year<sup>7</sup> of his prophetic ministry, from Jerusalem, and went to Nain. Whereupon, as he drew nigh<sup>8</sup> to the gate of the city, the citizens were bearing to the sepulchre the only son of his mother, a widow, over whom every one was weeping. Whereupon, when Jesus had arrived, the men understood how that Jesus, a prophet of Galilee, was come: and so they set themselves to beseech him for the dead man, that he being a prophet should raise him up; which also his disciples did. Then Jesus feared greatly, and turning himself to God, said: 'Take me from the world, O Lord, for the world is mad, and they wellnigh call me God!'. And having said this, he wept.

Then came the angel Gabriel, and said: 'O Jesus, fear not, for God hath given thee <sup>a</sup> power over every infirmity, insomuch that all that thou shalt grant in the name of God <sup>b</sup> shall be entirely accomplished.' Hereupon | Jesus gave a sigh, saying: 'Thy will <sup>50<sup>a</sup></sup> be done, Lord God almighty and merciful <sup>c</sup>.' At that time the army of the Romans was in Judaea, our country being subject to them for the sins of our forefathers. Now it was the custom of the Romans to call god and to worship him that did any new thing of benefit to the common people. And so [some] of these soldiers finding themselves in Nain, they rebuked now one, now another, saying: 'One of your gods hath visited you, and ye make no account of it. Assuredly if our gods should visit us we should give them all that we have. And ye see how much we fear our gods, since to their images we give the best of all we have.' | Satan did so instigate this manner of speaking <sup>50<sup>b</sup></sup> that he aroused no small sedition among the people of Nain. But Jesus tarried not at all in Nain, but turned to go into Capernaum. The discord of Nain was such that some said: 'He is our God who hath visited us'; others said: 'God is in-

And so did Satan instigate that, in the third year<sup>1</sup> of the prophetic ministry of Jesus, great ruin to our people was like to arise therefrom.

Jesus went into Capernaum: whereupon the citizens, when they knew him, assembled together all the sick folk<sup>2</sup> they had; and placed them in front of the porch [of the house] where Jesus was lodging with his disciples. And having called Jesus forth, they besought him for the health of them. Then Jesus laid his hands upon each of them, saying: 'God of Israel, by thy holy name<sup>b</sup>, give health to this sick person.' Whereupon each one was healed.

On the sabbath Jesus entered into the synagogue, and thither ran together all the people to | hear him speak.

The scribe that day read the psalm of David, where saith David<sup>3</sup>: 'When I shall find a time, I will judge uprightly.' Then, after the reading of the prophets, arose Jesus, and made sign of silence with his hands, and opening his mouth he spake thus: 'Brethren, ye have heard the words spoken by David the prophet, our father, that when he should have found a time he would judge uprightly. I tell you in truth that many judge, in which judgement they fall for no other reason than because they judge that which is not meet for them, and that which is meet for them they judge before the time. Wherefore the God of our fathers crieth to us by his prophet David, saying: 'Justly judge, O sons of men'<sup>4</sup>. Miserable therefore are those who set themselves at street corners, and do nothing but judge all those who pass by, saying: "That one is fair, this one is ugly, that one is good, this one is bad." unto you, as God liveth<sup>a</sup> in whose presence I stand, false judgement is the father of all sins<sup>b</sup>. Forasmuch as none | sinneth without will, 52<sup>b</sup> and none willeth that which he doth not know. Woe, therefore, to the sinner who with his judgement judgeth sin worthy and goodness unworthy, who on that account rejecteth goodness and chooseth sin. Assuredly he shall bear an intolerable punishment when God shall come to judge the world. Oh, how many have perished through false judgement, and how many have been nigh to perishing! Pharaoh<sup>1</sup> judged Moses and the people of Israel to be impious. Saul<sup>2</sup> judged David to be worthy of death. Ahab<sup>3</sup> judged Elijah, Nebuchadnezzar<sup>4</sup> the three children who would not worship their lying gods. The two elders judged Susanna<sup>5</sup>, and all the idolatrous princes judged the prophets. Oh, tremendous judgement of God! the judge perisheth, the judged is saved. And wherefore this, O man, if not because [in] rashness they falsely judge the innocent? How nearly then the good approached to ruin by judging falsely, is shown by the brethren of Joseph, who sold him<sup>6</sup> to the Egyptians, by Aaron and Miriam<sup>7</sup>, sister of Moses, who judged their brother. Three friends of Job<sup>8</sup> judged the innocent friend | of God, Job. David judged Mephibosheth<sup>9</sup> and 53<sup>a</sup> Uriah<sup>10</sup>. Cyrus<sup>11</sup> judged Daniel to be meat for the lions; and many others, the which were nigh to their ruin for this. Therefore I say to you, Judge not and ye shall not be judged<sup>c 12</sup>. And then, Jesus having finished his speech, many forthwith were converted to repentance, bewailing their sins; and they would fain have forsaken all to go with him. But Jesus said: 'Remain in your homes, and forsake sin and serve God with fear, and thus shall ye be saved; because I am not come to receive service, but rather to serve<sup>13</sup>.'

And having said thus, he went out of the synagogue and the city, and retired into the desert to pray, because he loved solitude greatly.

When he had prayed to the Lord, his disciples came to him and said: 'O master, two things we would know; one is, how thou talkedst with Satan, who nevertheless thou sayest is impenitent; the other is, how God shall come to judge in the day of judgement.' Jesus replied: 'Verily I say unto you I | had compassion on Satan, 53<sup>b</sup> knowing his fall; and I had compassion on mankind whom he tempteth to sin. Therefore I prayed and fasted to our God, who spake to me by his angel Gabriel: "What seekest thou, O Jesus, and what is thy request?" I answered: "Lord, thou knowest of what evil Satan is the cause, and that through his temptations many perish; he is thy creature, Lord, whom thou didst create; therefore, Lord, have mercy upon him."

'God answered: "Jesus, behold I will pardon him. Only cause him to say, 'Lord, my God, I have sinned, have mercy upon me,' and I will pardon him and restore him to his first state."

'I rejoiced greatly,' said Jesus, 'when I heard this, believing that I had made this peace. Therefore I called Satan, who came, saying: "What must I do for thee, O Jesus?"

'I answered: "Thou shalt do it for thyself, O Satan, for I love not thy services, but for thy good have I called thee."

'Satan replied: "If thou desirest not my services, neither desire I thine; for I am nobler than thou, therefore thou art not worthy to serve me—thou who art clay, while I am spirit."

'Let us leave this,' I said, 'and tell me if it were not well thou | shouldst return to thy first beauty and thy first state. Thou 54<sup>a</sup> must know that the angel Michael must needs on the day of judgement strike thee with the sword of God<sup>b</sup> one hundred thousand times, and each blow will give thee the pain of ten hells.'

'Satan replied: "We shall see in that day who can do most; certainly I shall have on my side many angels and most potent idolaters who will trouble God<sup>1</sup>, and he shall know how great a mistake he made to banish me for the sake of a vile [piece of] clay."

'Then I said: "O Satan, thou art infirm in mind, and knowest not what thou sayest."

‘Then Satan, in a derisive manner, wagged his head, saying: “Come now, let us make up this peace between me and God; and what must be done say thou, O Jesus, since thou art sound in mind.”

‘I answered: “Two words only need be spoken.”

‘Satan replied: “What words?”

‘I answered: “These: I have sinned; have mercy on me.”

‘Said Satan then: “Now willingly will I make this peace if God will say these words to me.”

“Now depart from me,” I said, “O cursed one, for thou art the wicked author of all injustice and sin, but God is just and without any sin<sup>a</sup>.”

‘Satan departed shrieking, and said: “It is not so, O Jesus, | but 54<sup>b</sup> thou tellest a lie to please God.”

‘Now consider,’ said Jesus to his disciples, ‘how he will find mercy.’

They answered: ‘Never, Lord, because he is impenitent. Speak to us now of the judgement of God.’

as God liveth <sup>a</sup>, would I go there, knowing what I know. Then God, seeing this, shall remind his messenger <sup>b</sup> how he created all things for love of him, and so his fear shall leave him, and he shall go nigh unto the throne with love and reverence, while the angels sing: "Blessed be thy holy name, O God, our God." |

'And when he hath drawn nigh unto the throne, God shall open <sup>58a</sup> [his mind] unto his messenger <sup>b</sup>, even as a friend <sup>1</sup> unto a friend when for a long while they have not met. The first to speak shall be the messenger of God <sup>c</sup>, who shall say: "I adore and love thee, O my God, and with all my heart and soul I give thee thanks-for that thou didst vouchsafe to create me to be thy servant, and madest all for love of me, so that I might love thee for all things and in all things and above all things; therefore let all thy creatures praise thee, O my God." Then all things created by God shall say: "We give thee thanks, O Lord, and bless thy holy name." Verily I say unto you, the demons and reprobates with Satan shall then weep so that more water shall flow from the eyes of one of them than is in the river of Jordan. Yet shall they not see God.

'And God shall speak unto his messenger <sup>b</sup>, saying: "Thou art welcome, O my faithful servant; therefore ask what thou wilt, for thou shalt obtain all." The messenger of God <sup>c</sup> shall answer: "O Lord, I remember that when thou didst create me, thou saidst that thou hadst willed to make for love of me the world and paradise, and angels and men, that they might glorify thee by me thy servant. | Therefore, Lord God, merciful and just <sup>d</sup>, I pray thee that <sup>58b</sup> thou recollect thy promise made unto thy servant."

'And God shall make answer even as a friend who jesteth with a friend, and shall say: "Hast thou witnesses of this, my friend Mohammed? <sup>e</sup>" And with reverence he shall say: "Yes, Lord." Then God shall answer: "Go, call them, O Gabriel." The angel Gabriel shall come to the messenger of God <sup>c</sup>, and shall say: "Lord, who are thy witnesses?" ‘Hell is one <sup>2</sup>, O my disciples, and in it the damned shall suffer punishment eternally. Yet hath it seven rooms or regions, one deeper than the other, and he who goeth to the deepest shall suffer greater punishment. Yet are my words true concerning the sword of the angel Michael, for he that committeth but one sin meriteth hell, and he that committeth two sins meriteth two hells. Therefore in one hell shall the reprobates feel punishment as though they were in ten, or in a hundred or in a thousand; and the omnipotent God <sup>d</sup>, through his power and by reason of his justice, shall cause Satan to suffer as though he were in ten hundred thousand hells, and the rest each one according to his wickedness <sup>e</sup>.’

O miserable sinners, how loathsome then shall seem to them delicate meats, costly raiment, soft couches, and concord of sweet song! how sick shall make them raging hunger, burning flames, scorching cinders, and cruel torments with bitter weeping!'

And then Jesus uttered a lamentable groan, saying: 'Truly it were better never to have been formed than to suffer such cruel torments. speaking evil of him. Tell me now, when the neighbour shall call the debtors to account how shall the matter go? Assuredly he will reward those who traded well, but against the others his anger shall vent itself in reproaches. And then he will punish them according to the law. As God liveth<sup>a</sup>, in whose presence my soul standeth, the neighbour is God<sup>b</sup>, who has given to man<sup>c</sup> all that he hath, with life itself, so that, [man] living well in this world, God may have praise, and man the glory of paradise. For those who live well double their money by their example, because sinners, seeing their example, are converted to repentance; wherefore men who live well shall be rewarded with a great reward. But wicked sinners, who by their sins halve what God has given them<sup>d</sup>, by their lives spent in the service of Satan the enemy of God, blaspheming God and giving offence to others,—tell me what shall be their punishment?’

‘It shall be without measure,’ said the disciples.

Then said Jesus: ‘He who would live well should take example from the merchant who locketh up his shop, and guardeth it day and night with great diligence. And selling again the things which he buyeth he is fain to make a profit; for if he perceiveth that he will lose thereby he will not sell, no, not to his own brother. Thus then should ye do; for in truth your soul is a merchant, and the body is the shop: wherefore what it receiveth from outside, through the senses, is bought and sold by it<sup>1</sup>. And the money is love. See then that with your love ye do not sell nor buy the smallest thought by which ye cannot profit. But let thought, speech, and work be all for love of God; for so shall ye find safety in that day. Verily I say unto you, that many make ablutions and go to pray, many fast and give alms, many study and preach to others, whose end is

After certain days Jesus passed near unto a city of the Samaritans<sup>1</sup>; and they would not let him enter the city, nor would they sell bread to his disciples. Wherefore said James and John: 'Master, may it please thee that we pray God that he send down fire from heaven upon these people?'

Jesus answered: 'Ye know not by what spirit ye are led, that ye so speak. Remember that God determined to destroy Nineveh because | he did not find one who feared God in that <sup>65b</sup> city<sup>2</sup>; the which was so wicked that God, having called Jonah the prophet to send him to that city, he would fain for fear of the people have fled to Tarsus, wherefore God caused him to be cast into the sea, and received by a fish and cast up nigh to Nineveh. And he preaching there, that people was converted to repentance, so that God had mercy on them.

Woe unto them that call for vengeance; for on themselves it shall come, seeing that every man hath in himself cause for the vengeance of God<sup>d</sup>. Now tell me, have ye created this city with this people? O madmen that ye are, assuredly no. God have been persecuted and defamed by the world even though they were innocent, what shall be done to thee, O sinner? and if they endured all with patience, praying for their persecutors, what shouldst thou do, O man, who art worthy of hell? Tell me, O my disciples, do ye not know that Shimei<sup>1</sup> cursed the servant of God, David the prophet, and threw stones at him? Now what said David to those who would fain have killed Shimei? "What is it to thee, O Joab, that | thou wouldst kill Shimei? let him curse 67<sup>a</sup> me, for this is the will of God, who will turn this curse into a blessing." And thus it was; for God saw<sup>a</sup> the patience of David and delivered him from the persecution of his own son, Absalom.

Assuredly not a leaf stirreth without the will of God. Wherefore, when thou art in tribulation do not think of how much thou hast borne, nor of him who afflicteth thee; but consider how much for thy sins thou art worthy to receive at the hand of the devils of hell<sup>b</sup>. Ye are angry with this city because it would not receive us, nor sell bread to us. Tell me, are these people your slaves? have ye given them this city? have ye given them their corn? or have ye helped them to reap it? Assuredly no; for ye are strangers in this land, and poor men. What thing is this then that thou sayest?'

The two disciples answered: 'Lord, we have sinned; may God have mercy on us<sup>c</sup>.'

And Jesus answered: 'So be it.'

The passover drew near<sup>2</sup>, wherefore Jesus, with his disciples, 67<sup>b</sup> went up to Jerusalem. And he went to the pool called 'Probatica<sup>3</sup>.' a great number of sick persons remained beside the pool, which had five porticoes. And Jesus saw there an impotent man, who had been there thirty-and-eight years, sick with a grievous infirmity. Whereupon Jesus, knowing this by divine inspiration, had compassion on the sick man, and said to him: 'Wilt thou be made whole?'

The impotent man answered: 'Sir<sup>1</sup>, I have no man when the angel troubleth the water to put me into it, but while I am coming another steppeth down before me and entereth therein.'

Then Jesus lifted up his eyes to heaven and said: 'Lord our God<sup>a</sup>, God of our fathers, | have mercy upon this impotent man.' 68<sup>a</sup>

And having said this, Jesus said: 'In God's name<sup>b</sup>, brother, be thou whole; rise and take up thy bed.'

Then the impotent man arose, praising God, and carried his bed upon his shoulders, and went to his house praising God.

Those who saw him cried: 'It is the sabbath day; it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.'

He answered: 'He that made me whole said unto me, "Pick up thy bed, and go thy way to thy house."'

Then asked they him: 'Who is he?'

He answered: 'I know not his name.'

Whereupon, among themselves they said: 'It must have been Jesus the Nazarene.' Others said: 'Nay, for he is a holy one of God, whereas he who has done this thing is a wicked man, for he causeth the sabbath to be broken.'

And Jesus went into the temple, and a great multitude drew nigh unto him to hear his words; whereat the priests were consumed with envy.

A shepherd who hath a flock of sheep, when he seeth the wolf coming, prepareth to defend them; contrariwise, the hireling when he seeth the wolf leaveth the sheep and fleeth<sup>5</sup>. As God liveth<sup>c</sup>, in whose presence I stand, if the God of | our fathers 70<sup>a</sup> were your God ye would not have thought of saying: "What will God give me?" But ye would have said, as did David his prophet: "What shall I give unto God for all that he hath given unto me?"'

'I will speak to you by a parable<sup>7</sup> that ye may understand. There was a king who found by the wayside a man stripped by thieves, who had wounded him unto death. And he had compassion on him, and commanded his slaves to bear that man to the city and tend him; and this they did with all diligence. And the king conceived a great love for the sick man, so that he gave him his own daughter in marriage, and made him his heir. Now assuredly this king was most merciful; but the man beat the slaves, despised the medicines, abused his wife, spake evil of the king, and caused his vassals to rebel against him. And when the king required any service, he was wont to say: "What will the king give me as reward?" Now when the king heard this, what did he do to so impious a man?'

They all replied: 'Woe to him, for the king deprived him of all, and cruelly punished him.' Then said Jesus: 'O priests, and scribes, and Pharisees, and thou high-priest that hearest my voice, I proclaim to you what God hath said to you by his prophet Isaiah<sup>1</sup>: "I have | nourished slaves and exalted them, but they 70<sup>b</sup> have despised me."

'The king is our God, who found Israel in this world full of miseries, and gave him therefore to his servants Joseph, Moses and Aaron, who tended him. And our God conceived such love for him that for the sake of the people of Israel he smote Egypt, drowned Pharaoh, and discomfited an hundred and twenty kings<sup>2</sup> of the Canaanites and Madianites; he gave him his laws, making him heir of all that [land] wherein our people dwelleth.

'But how doth Israel bear himself? How many prophets hath he slain; how many prophecies hath he contaminated; how hath he violated the law of God: how many for that cause have departed from God and gone to serve idols, through your offence, O priests! And how do ye dishonour God with your manner of life! And now ye ask me: 'What will God give us in paradise?' Ye ought to have asked me: What will be the punishment that God will give you in hell; and then what ye ought to do for true penitence in order that God may have mercy on you: for this I can tell you, and to this end am I sent to you.'

'As God liveth<sup>b</sup>, in whose presence I stand, ye will not receive adulation from me, but truth. Wherefore I say unto you, repent and turn to God even as our fathers did after sinning, and harden not your heart.'

The priests were consumed with rage at this speech, but for fear of the common people they spake not a word.

And Jesus continued, saying: 'O doctors, O scribes, O Pharisees, O priests, tell me. Ye desire horses like knights, but ye desire not to go forth to war; ye desire fair clothing like women, but ye desire not to spin and nurture children; ye desire the fruits of the field, and ye desire not to cultivate the earth; ye desire the fishes of the sea, but ye desire not to go a fishing; ye desire honour as

What then shall God do with you, seeing ye desire here every good without any | evil? Verily I say to you that 71<sup>b</sup> God will give you a place where ye will have every evil without any good.'

And when Jesus had said this, there was brought unto him a demoniak<sup>1</sup> who could not speak nor see, and was deprived of hearing. Whereupon Jesus, seeing their faith, raised his eyes to heaven and said: 'Lord God<sup>a</sup> of our fathers, have mercy on this sick man and give him health, in order that this people may know that thou hast sent me.'

And having said this Jesus commanded the spirit to depart, saying: 'In the power of the name of God our Lord<sup>b</sup>, depart, evil one, from the man!'

The spirit departed and the dumb man spoke, and saw with his eyes. Whereupon every one was filled with fear, but the scribes said: 'In the power of Beelzebub, prince of the demons, he casteth out the demons.'

Then said Jesus: 'Every kingdom divided against itself destroyeth itself, and house falleth upon house. If in the power of Satan, Satan be cast out, how shall his kingdom stand? And if your sons cast out Satan with the scripture that Solomon<sup>2</sup> the prophet gave them, they testify that I cast out Satan in the power of God. As God liveth<sup>c</sup>, blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is without remission in this and in the other world; | because the 72<sup>a</sup> wicked man of his own will reprobates himself, knowing the reprobation.'

And having said this Jesus went out of the temple. And the common people magnified him, for they brought all the sick folk whom they could gather together, and Jesus having made prayer gave to all their health: whereupon on that day in Jerusalem the Roman soldiery, by the working of Satan, began to stir up the common people, saying that Jesus was the God of Israel, who was come to visit his people.

Jesus departed from Jerusalem after the Passover, and entered into the borders of Caesarea Philippi<sup>1</sup>. Whereupon, the angel Gabriel having told him of the sedition which was beginning among the common people, he asked his disciples, saying: 'What do men say of me?'

They said: 'Some say that thou art Elijah, others Jeremiah, and others one of the old prophets.'

Jesus answered: 'And ye; what say ye that I am?'

Peter answered: 'Thou art Christ, son of God.'

Then was Jesus angry, and with anger rebuked him, saying: 'Begone and depart from me<sup>2</sup>, because thou art the devil | and 72<sup>b</sup> seekest to cause me offence!'

And he threatened the eleven, saying: 'Woe to you if ye believe this, for I have won from God a great curse<sup>3</sup> against those who believe this.'

And he was fain to cast away Peter; whereupon the eleven besought Jesus for him, who cast him not away, but again rebuked him, saying: 'Beware that never again thou say such words, because God would reprobate thee!'

Peter wept, and said: 'Lord, I have spoken foolishly; beseech God that he pardon me.'

Then said Jesus: 'If our God willed not to show himself to Moses his servant, nor to Elijah whom he so loved, nor to any prophet, will ye think that God should show himself to this faithless generation? But know ye not that God hath created all things of nothing with one single word<sup>b</sup>, and all men have had their origin out of a piece of clay? Now, how shall God have likeness to man? Woe to those who suffer themselves to be deceived of Satan!'

And having said this, Jesus besought God for Peter, the eleven and Peter weeping, and saying: 'So be it, so be it, O blessed Lord our God<sup>c</sup>.'

Afterwards Jesus departed and went into Galilee, in order that this vain opinion | which the common folk began to hold concerning 73<sup>a</sup> him might be extinguished.

Jesus having arrived in his own country<sup>1</sup>, it was spread through all the region of Galilee how that Jesus the prophet was come to Nazareth. Whereupon with diligence sought they the sick and brought them to him, beseeching him that he would touch them with his hands. And so great was the multitude that a certain rich man, sick of the palsy, not being able to get himself carried through the door, had himself carried up to the roof of the house in which Jesus was, and having caused the roof to be uncovered, had himself let down by sheets in front of Jesus. Jesus stood for a moment in hesitation, and then he said: 'Fear not, brother, for thy sins are forgiven thee.'

Every one was offended hearing this, and they said: 'And who is this who forgiveth sins?'

Then said Jesus: 'As God liveth, I am not able to forgive sins, nor is any man, but God alone forgiveth<sup>b</sup>. But as servant of God I can beseech him for the sins of others: and so I have besought him for this sick man, and I am sure | that God hath heard my 7: prayer. Wherefore, that ye may know the truth, I say to this sick man: "In the name of the God<sup>c</sup> of our fathers, the God of Abraham and his sons, rise up healed!"' And when Jesus had said this the sick man rose up healed, and glorified God.

Then the common people besought Jesus that he would beseech God for the sick who stood outside. Whereupon Jesus went out unto them, and, having lifted up his hands, said: 'Lord God of hosts, the living God, the true God, the holy God, that never will die<sup>d</sup>; have mercy upon them!' Whereupon every one answered: 'Amen.' And this having been said, Jesus laid his hands upon the sick folk, and they all received their health.

Thereupon they magnified God, saying: 'God hath visited us by his prophet, and a great prophet hath God sent unto us.'

Jesus answered, saying : ' O Barnabas, this is not the hour for thee to know him, but soon will the wicked one reveal himself, because I shall depart from the world.'

Then wept the apostles, saying : ' O master, wherefore wilt thou forsake us ? It is much better that we should die than be forsaken of thee ! '

Jesus answered : ' Let not your heart be troubled, neither be ye fearful<sup>2</sup>: for I have not created you, but God our creator who hath created you will protect you<sup>b</sup>. 'There have been and are in the world men who hold not thought for sin; who are in the greatest error. Tell me, how sinned Satan? And to what purpose saith Solomon <sup>2</sup>: "With all thy keeping, keep thine heart?" As God liveth <sup>a</sup>, in whose presence standeth my soul, all is said against the evil thoughts wherewith sin is committed, for without thinking it is not possible to sin. Now tell me, when the husbandman planteth the vineyard doth he set the plants deep? Assuredly yea. Even so doth Satan, who in planting sin doth not stop at the eye or the ear, but passeth into the heart, which is God's dwelling <sup>b</sup>. As he spake by Moses <sup>3</sup> his servant, saying: "I will dwell in them, in order that they may walk in my law."

'Now tell me, if Herod the king should give you a house to keep in which he desired to dwell, would ye suffer Pilate, his enemy, to enter there or to place his goods therein? Assuredly no. Then how much less ought ye to suffer Satan to enter into your heart, or to place his thoughts therein; seeing that our God hath given <sup>c</sup> you your heart to keep, which is his dwelling <sup>b</sup>. Observe, therefore, that the banker considereth the money, whether | the <sup>77a</sup> image of Caesar is right, whether the silver is good or false, and whether it is of due weight: wherefore he turneth it over much in his hand. Ah, mad world! How prudent thou art in thy business, so that in the last day thou wilt reprove and judge the servants of God of negligence and carelessness, for without doubt thy servants are more prudent than the servants of God <sup>4</sup>. Tell me, now, who is he who examineth a thought as the banker a silver coin? Assuredly no one.'

Then said James: 'O master, how is the examination of a thought like unto [that of] a coin?'

Jesus answered: 'The good silver in the thought is piety, because every impious thought cometh of the devil. The right image is the example of the holy ones and prophets, which we ought to follow; and the weight of the thought is the love of God

Bartholomew answered: 'O master, what ought we to do to think little, in order that we may not fall into temptation?'

Jesus answered: 'Two things are necessary for you. The first is to exercise yourselves much, and the second is to talk little: for idleness is a sink wherein is gathered every unclean thought, and too much talking is a sponge which picketh up iniquities. It is, therefore, necessary not only that your working should hold the body occupied, but also that the soul be occupied with prayer. For it needeth never to cease from prayer.

'I tell you for an example: There was a man who paid ill, wherefore none that knew him would go to till his fields. Whereupon he, like a wicked man, said: "I will go to the market-place<sup>1</sup> to find idle ones who are doing nothing, and will therefore come to till my vines." This man went forth from his house, and found | many strangers who were standing in idleness, and had no money. 78<sup>a</sup> To them he spake, and led them to his vineyard. But verily none that knew him and had work for his hands went thither.

'He is Satan, that one who payeth ill; for he giveth labour, and man receiveth for it the eternal fires in his service. Wherefore he hath gone forth from paradise, and goeth in search of labourers. Assuredly he setteth to his labours those who stand in idleness whosoever they be, but much more those who know him not. It is not in any wise enough for any one to know evil in order to escape it, but it behoveth to work at good in order to overcome it.'

of the third bore much. But the second left his vineyard uncultivated, spending his time solely in talking. When the time was come for paying the rent to the lord of the vineyard, the first said: "Lord, I know not how thy vineyard ought to be cultivated: therefore I have not received any fruit this year."

'The lord answered: "O fool, dost thou dwell alone in the world, that thou hast not asked counsel of my second vinedresser, who knoweth well how to cultivate the land? Certain it is that thou shalt pay me."

'And having said this he condemned him to work in prison until he should pay his lord; who moved with pity at his simplicity liberated him, saying: "Begone, for I will not that thou work longer at my vineyard; it is enough for thee that I give thee thy debt."

'The second came, to whom the lord said: "Welcome, my vinedresser! Where are the fruits that thou owest me? Assuredly, since thou knowest well how to prune the vines, the vineyard that I let out to thee must needs have borne much fruit."

'The second answered: "O lord, thy vineyard is backward<sup>1</sup> because I have not pruned the wood nor worked up the soil; but the vineyard hath not borne fruit, so I cannot pay thee."

'Whereupon the lord called the third and with wonder said: "Thou saidst to me that this man, to whom I let out the second vineyard, taught thee perfectly to cultivate the vineyard which I let out to thee. How then can it be that the vineyard I let out to him should not have borne fruit, seeing it is all one

'The third answered: "Lord, the vines are not cultivated by talking only, but he needs must sweat a shirt every day who willeth to make it bring forth its fruit. And how shall thy vineyard of thy vinedresser bear fruit, O lord, if he doth naught but waste the time in talking? Sure it is, O lord, that if he had put into practice his own words, [while] I who cannot talk so much have given thee the rent for two years, he would have given thee the rent of the vineyard for five years."

'The lord was wroth, and said with scorn to the vinedresser: "And so thou hast wrought a great work in not cutting away the wood and levelling the vineyard, wherefore there is owing to thee a great reward!" And having called his servants | he had him 79<sup>b</sup>

fore his path shall not be digged up." Verily I say unto you | that our God in creating man not only created him righteous, but <sup>81b</sup> inserted in his heart a light that should show to him that it is fitting to serve God. Wherefore, even if this light be darkened after sin, yet is it not extinguished. For every nation hath this desire to serve God, though they have lost God and serve false and lying gods. Accordingly it is necessary that a man be taught of the prophets of God, for they have clear the light to teach the way to go to paradise, our country, by serving God well: just as it is necessary that he who hath his eyes diseased should be guided and helped.'

James answered: 'And how shall the prophets teach us if they are dead; and how shall he be taught who hath not knowledge of the prophets?'

Jesus answered: 'Their doctrine is written down, so that it ought to be studied, for [the writing] is to thee for a prophet. Verily, verily, I say unto thee that he who despiseth the prophecy despiseth not only the prophet, but despiseth | also God who hath sent <sup>b</sup> the <sup>82a</sup> prophet<sup>1</sup>. But concerning such as know not the prophet, as are the nations, I tell you that if there shall live in those regions any man who liveth as his heart shall show him, not doing to others that which he would not receive from others, and giving to his neighbour that which he would receive from others, such a man shall not be forsaken of the mercy of God. Wherefore at death, if not sooner, God will show him and give<sup>c</sup> him his law with mercy. Perchance ye think that God hath given the law for love of the law<sup>d</sup>? 'Tell me, would it have been a great sin of the priests if when they were carrying the ark of the testimony of God they had let it fall to the ground?'

The disciples trembled hearing this, for they knew that God slew<sup>b</sup> Uzzah<sup>2</sup> for having wrongly touched the ark of God. And they said: 'Most grievous would be such a sin.'

Then said Jesus: 'As God liveth<sup>c</sup>, it is a greater sin to forget the word of God, wherewith he made all things<sup>d</sup>, whereby he offereth thee eternal life.'

And having said this Jesus made prayer; and after his prayer he said: 'To-morrow we needs must pass into Samaria, for so hath said unto me the holy angel of God.'

Early on the morning of a certain day, Jesus arrived near to the <sup>84a</sup> well which Jacob made and gave to Joseph his son<sup>4</sup>. Whereupon Jesus, being wearied with the journey, sent his disciples to the city to buy food. And so he sat himself down by the well, upon the stone of the well. And, lo, a woman of Samaria cometh to the well to draw water.

Jesus saith unto the woman: 'Give me to drink.' The woman answered: 'Now, art thou not ashamed that thou, being an Hebrew, askest drink of me which am a Samaritan woman?'

Jesus answered: 'O woman, if thou knewest who he is that asketh thee for drink, perchance thou wouldest have asked of him for drink.'

The woman answered: 'Now how shouldest thou give me to drink, seeing thou hast no vessel to draw the water, nor rope, and the well is deep?'

Jesus answered: 'O woman, whoso drinketh of the | water of 84<sup>b</sup> this well, thirst cometh to him again, but whosoever drinketh of the water that I give hath thirst no more; but to them that have thirst give they to drink, insomuch that they come to eternal life.'

Then said the woman: 'O Lord<sup>1</sup>, give me of this thy water.'

Jesus answered: 'Go call thy husband, and to both of you I will give to drink.'

Said the woman: 'I have no husband.'

Jesus answered: 'Well hast thou said the truth, for thou hast had five husbands, and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband.'

The woman was confounded hearing this, and said: 'Lord<sup>1</sup>, hereby perceive I that thou art a prophet; therefore tell me, I pray: the Hebrews make prayer on mount Sion in the temple built by Solomon in Jerusalem, and say that there and nowhere else [men] find grace and mercy of God<sup>a</sup>. And our people worship on these mountains, and say that only on the mountains of Samaria ought | worship to be made. Who are the true 85<sup>a</sup> worshippers?'

Then Jesus gave a sigh and wept, saying: 'Woe to thee, Judæa, for thou gloriest, saying<sup>2</sup>: "The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord," and livest as though there were no God; given over wholly to the pleasures and gains of the world; for this woman in the day of judgement shall condemn thee to hell; for this woman seeketh to know how to find grace and mercy before God.'

And turning to the woman he said<sup>3</sup>: 'O woman, ye Samaritans worship that which ye know not, but we Hebrews worship that which we know. Verily I say unto thee, that God is spirit and truth, and so in spirit and in truth must he be worshipped<sup>c</sup>. Jesus answered: 'Knowest thou, woman, that the Messiah must come?'

Then Jesus rejoiced, and said: 'So far as I see, O woman, thou art faithful: know therefore that in the faith of the Messiah shall be saved every one that is elect of God; therefore it is necessary that thou know the coming of the Messiah.'

Said the woman: 'O Lord <sup>1</sup>, perchance thou art the Messiah.'

Jesus answered: 'I am indeed sent to the house of Israel as a prophet of salvation; but after me shall come the Messiah <sup>2</sup>, sent of God <sup>c</sup> to all the world; for whom God hath made the world. And then through all the world will God be worshipped <sup>d</sup>, and mercy received, insomuch that the year of jubilee, which now cometh every hundred years <sup>3</sup>, shall by the Messiah be reduced to every year in every | place.'

Then the woman left her waterpot <sup>4</sup> and ran to the city to announce 86<sup>a</sup> all that she had heard from Jesus.

LXXXIII e.

Whilst the woman was talking <sup>5</sup> with Jesus came his disciples, and marvelled that Jesus was speaking so with a woman. Yet no one said unto him: 'Why speakest thou thus with a Samaritan woman?'

Whereupon, when the woman was departed, they said: 'Master, come and eat.'

Jesus answered: 'I must eat other food.'

Then said the disciples one to another: 'Perchance some wayfarer hath spoken with Jesus, and hath gone to find him food.' And they questioned him who writeth this, saying: 'Hath there been any one here, O Barnabas, who might have brought food to the master?'

Then answered he who writeth : ' There hath not been here any other than the woman whom ye saw, who brought this empty vessel to fill it with water.' Then the disciples stood amazed, | awaiting 86<sup>b</sup> the issue of the words of Jesus. Whereupon Jesus said : ' Ye know not that the true food is to do the will of God ; because it is not bread <sup>1</sup> that sustaineth man and giveth him life, but rather the word of God, by his will. And so for this reason the holy angels eat not<sup>a</sup>, but live nourished only by the will of God. And thus we, Moses<sup>2</sup> and Elijah<sup>3</sup> and yet another, have been forty days and forty nights without any food.'

And lifting up his eyes, Jesus said : ' How far off is the harvest ? '

The disciples answered : ' Three months.'

Jesus said : ' Look now, how the mountain is white with corn ; verily I say unto you, that to-day there is a great harvest to be reaped.' And then he pointed to the multitude who had come to see him. For the woman having entered into the city had moved all the city, saying : ' O men, come and see a new prophet sent of God<sup>b</sup> to the house of Israel ' ; and she recounted to | them all that 87<sup>a</sup> she had heard from Jesus. When they were come thither they besought Jesus to abide with them ; and he entered into the city and abode there two days, healing all the sick, and teaching concerning the kingdom of God.

Then said the citizens to the woman : ' We believe more in his words and miracles than we do in what thou saidst ; for he is indeed a holy one of God, a prophet sent for the salvation of those that shall believe on him.'

After the prayer of midnight<sup>4</sup> the disciples came near unto Jesus, and he said to them : ' This night shall be in the time of the Messiah<sup>5</sup>, messenger of God<sup>c</sup>, the jubilee every year—that now cometh every hundred years<sup>6d</sup>. Having made the prayer, Jesus said: ‘Let us give thanks to God because he hath given <sup>e</sup> to us this night great mercy; for that he hath made to come back the time that needs must pass in this night, in that we have made prayer in union with the messenger of God <sup>f</sup>. And I have heard his voice.’

The disciples rejoiced greatly at hearing this, and said: ‘Master, teach us some | precepts this night.’ <sup>88a</sup>

Then said Jesus: ‘Have ye ever seen dung mixed with balsam?’

They answered: ‘Nay, Lord, for no one is so mad as to do this thing.’

‘Now I tell you that there be in the world greater madmen,’ said Jesus, ‘because with the service of God they mingle the service of the world. So much so that many of blameless life have been deceived of Satan, and while praying have mingled with their prayer worldly business, whereupon they have become at that time abominable in the sight of God. Tell me, when ye wash yourselves for prayer, do ye take care that no unclean thing touch you? Yea, assuredly. But what do ye when ye are making prayer? Ye wash your soul from sins through the mercy of God <sup>g</sup>. Would ye be willing then, while ye are making prayer, to speak of worldly things? Take care not to do so, for every worldly word becometh | dung of the devil upon the soul of him that <sup>88b</sup> speaketh.’

of spirit; and they said: 'O master, what shall we do if when we are making prayer a friend shall come to speak to us?'

Jesus answered: 'Suffer him to wait, and finish the prayer.'

Said Bartholomew: 'But what if he shall be offended and go his way, when he see that we speak not with him?'

Jesus answered: 'If he shall be offended, believe me he will not be a friend of yours nor a believer, but rather an unbeliever and a companion of Satan. Tell me, if ye went to speak with a stable boy of Herod, and found him speaking into Herod's ears, would ye be offended if he made you to wait?' No, assuredly; but ye would be comforted at seeing your friend in favour with the king. Is this true?' said Jesus.

The disciples answered: 'It is most true.'

Then said Jesus: 'Verily I say unto you, | that every one when <sup>89<sup>a</sup></sup> he prayeth speaketh with God. Is it then right that ye should leave speaking with God in order to speak with man? Is it right that your friend should for this cause be offended, because ye have more reverence for God than for him? Believe me that if he shall be offended when ye make him wait, he is a good servant of the devil. For this desireth the devil, that God should be forsaken for man. As God liveth<sup>a</sup>, in every good work he that feareth God ought to separate himself from the works of the world, so as not to corrupt the good work.'

'When a man worketh ill or talketh ill, if one go to correct him, and hinder such work, what doth such an one?' said Jesus.

The disciples answered: 'He doth well, because he serveth God, who always seeketh to hinder evil, even as the sun that always seeketh | to chase away the darkness.'

Said Jesus: 'And I tell you on the contrary that when one worketh well or speaketh well, whosoever seeketh to hinder him, under pretext of aught that is not better, he serveth the devil, nay, he even becometh his companion. For the devil attendeth to nought else but to hinder every good thing.

Then said Matthew: 'Then shall we not be able to love any one.'

Jesus answered: 'Verily I say unto you, that it is not lawful for you to hate anything save only sin: insomuch that ye cannot hate even Satan as creature of God, but rather as enemy of God. Know ye wherefore? I will tell you; because he is a creature of God, and all that God hath created is good and perfect<sup>a</sup>. Accordingly, whoso hateth the creature hateth also the creator. | But the 90<sup>a</sup> friend is a singular thing<sup>2</sup>, that is not easily found, but is easily lost. For the friend will not suffer contradiction against him whom he supremely loveth. Beware, be ye cautious, and choose not for friend one who loveth not him whom ye love. Know ye what friend meaneth? Friend meaneth naught but physician of the soul. And so, just as one rarely findeth a good physician who knoweth the sicknesses and understandeth to apply the medicines thereto, so also are friends rare who know the faults and understand how to guide unto good. But herein is an evil, that there are many who have friends that feign not to see the faults of their friend; others excuse them; others defend them under earthly pretext; and, what is worse, there are friends who invite and aid their friend to err, whose end shall be like unto their villany. Beware that ye receive not such men for friends, | for 90<sup>b</sup> that in truth they are enemies and slayers of the soul.

'Let thy friend be such that, even as he willeth to correct thee, so he may receive correction; and even as he willeth that thou shouldest leave all things for love of God, even so again it may content him that thou forsake him for the service of God.

'But tell me, if a man know not how to love God how shall he know how to love himself; and how shall he know how to love were better for the man if he should have a millstone about his neck and should be sunk in the depths of the sea than that he should offend his neighbour. If thine eye be an offence to thee, pluck it out; for it is better that thou go with one eye only into paradise than with both of them into hell. If | thy hand or thy 92<sup>a</sup> foot offend thee, do likewise; for it is better that thou go into the kingdom of heaven with one foot or with one hand, than with two hands and two feet go into hell.'

Said Simon, called Peter: 'Lord, how must I do this? Certain it is that in a short time I shall be dismembered.'

Jesus answered: 'O Peter, put off fleshly prudence and straight-way thou shalt find the truth. For he that teacheth thee is thine eye, and he that helpeth thee to work is thy foot, and he that ministereth aught unto thee is thine hand. Wherefore when such are to thee an occasion of sin leave them; for it is better for thee to go into paradise ignorant, with few works, and poor, than to go into hell wise, with great works, and rich. Everything that may hinder thee from serving God, cast it from thee as a man casteth away everything that hindereth his sight <sup>a</sup>.'

And having said this, Jesus called Peter close to him, and said unto him<sup>1</sup>: | 'If thy brother shall sin against thee, go and correct 92<sup>b</sup> him. If he amend, rejoice, for thou hast gained thy brother; but if he shall not amend, go and call afresh two witnesses and correct him afresh; and if he shall not amend, go and tell it to the church; and if he shall not then amend, count him for an unbeliever, and therefore thou shalt not dwell under the same roof whereunder he dwelleth, thou shalt not eat at the same table whereat he sitteth, and thou shalt not speak with him; insomuch that if thou know where he setteth his foot in walking thou shalt not set thy foot there.'

Jesus answered: 'In the way that thou thyself wouldst fain be corrected. And as thou wouldst fain be borne with, so bear with others. Believe me, Peter, for verily | I say unto thee that every time thou shalt correct thy brother with mercy thou shalt receive mercy of God, and thy words shall bear some fruit; but if thou shalt do it with rigour, thou shalt be rigorously punished by the justice of God, and shalt bear no fruit. Tell me, Peter: Those earthen pots wherein the poor cook their food—do they wash them, perchance, with stones and iron hammers? Nay, assuredly; but rather with hot water. Vessels are broken in pieces with iron, things of wood are burned with fire; but man is amended with mercy. Wherefore, when thou shalt correct thy brother thou shalt say to thyself: "If God help me not, I shall do to-morrow worse than all that he hath done to-day."'

Peter answered<sup>1</sup>: 'How many times must I forgive my brother, O master?'

Jesus answered: 'As many times as thou wouldst fain be forgiven by him.'

Said Peter: 'Seven times a day?'

Jesus answered: 'Not only seven, but seventy times seven thou shalt forgive him every day<sup>a</sup>; for he that forgiveth, to him shall it be forgiven, and he that | condemneth shall be condemned.'

Then said he who writeth this: 'Woe unto princes! for they shall go to hell.'

Jesus reproveth him, saying: 'Thou art become foolish, O Barnabas, in that thou hast spoken thus. Verily I say unto thee, that the bath is not so necessary for the body, the bit for the horse, and the tiller for the ship, as the prince is necessary for the state. And for what cause did God<sup>b</sup> give Moses, Joshua, Samuel, David, and Solomon, and so many others who passed judgement? To such hath God given the sword for the extirpation of iniquity<sup>2</sup>.'

Then said he who writeth this: 'Now, how ought judgement to be given, condemning and pardoning?'

Jesus answered: 'Not every one is a judge: for to the judge alone it appertaineth to condemn others, O Barnabas. And the judge ought to condemn the guilty, even as the father commandeth a putrified member to be cut off from his son, in order that the whole body may not become putrified.'

Said Peter : ' How long must I wait for my brother to repent ? '

Jesus answered : ' So long as thou wouldst be waited for. '

Peter answered : ' Not every one<sup>1</sup> will understand this ; wherefore speak to us more plainly. '

Jesus answered : ' Wait for thy brother as long as God waiteth for him<sup>b</sup>. '

' Neither will they understand this, ' said Peter.

Jesus answered : ' Wait for him so long as he hath time to repent. '

Then was Peter sad, and the others also, because they understood not the meaning. Whereupon Jesus answered : ' If ye had sound understanding, and knew that ye yourselves were sinners, ye would not think ever to cut off your heart from mercy to the sinner. And so I tell you plainly, that the sinner ought to be waited for that he may repent, so long as he hath a soul beneath his teeth to breathe. For so doth our God wait for him, the mighty and merciful<sup>c</sup>. God<sup>d</sup> said not : " In that hour that the sinner shall fast, do alms, make prayer, and go on pilgrimage, I will forgive him. The disciples answered : ' Part we understand, and part not. '

Said Jesus : ' Which is the part that ye understand not ? '

They answered : ' That many who have made prayer with fastings are damned. '

Then said Jesus : ' Verily I say unto you, that the hypocrites and the Gentiles make more prayers, more alms, and more fasts than do the friends of God. But because they have not faith, they are not able to repent for love of God, and so they are damned. '

Then said John : ' Teach us, for love of God, of the faith. '

Jesus answered : ' It is time that we say the prayer of the dawn<sup>3</sup>. '

XC<sup>a</sup>.

When the prayer was done, his disciples again drew | near to 95<sup>a</sup> Jesus, and he opened his mouth and said: 'Draw near, John, for to-day will I speak unto thee of all that thou hast asked. Faith<sup>1</sup> is a seal whereby God sealet his elect: which seal he gave to his messenger, at whose hands every one that is elect hath received the faith. For even as God is one<sup>b</sup>, so is the faith one<sup>c</sup>. Wherefore God, having created before all things his messenger<sup>d</sup>, gave to him before aught else the faith which is as it were a likeness of God and of all that God hath done and said. And so the faithful by faith seeth all things, better than one seeth with his eyes; because the eyes can err, nay they do almost always err; but faith erreth never, for it hath for foundation God and his word. Believe me that by faith are saved all the elect of God. And it is certain that without faith it is impossible for any one to please God<sup>2</sup>. Wherefore Satan seeketh not to bring to naught fastings and prayer, alms and pilgrimages, | nay rather he inciteth unbelievers 95<sup>b</sup> thereto, for he taketh pleasure in seeing man work without receiving pay. But he taketh pains with all diligence to bring faith to nought, wherefore faith ought especially to be guarded with diligence, and the safest course will be to abandon the "Wherefore," seeing that the "Wherefore" drove men out of Paradise and changed Satan from a most beautiful angel into a horrible devil.'

Then said John: 'Now, how shall we abandon the "Wherefore"<sup>3</sup>, seeing that it is the gate of knowledge?'

Jesus answered: 'Nay, rather the "Wherefore" is the gate of hell.'

Thereupon John kept silence, when Jesus added: 'When thou knowest that God hath said a thing, who art thou, O man, that thou shouldst say, forsooth, "Wherefore hast thou so said, O God: wherefore hast thou so done?" Shall the earthen vessel, perchance, say to its maker: "Wherefore hast thou made me to hold water and not to contain balsam?" Verily I say unto you, it is necessary against every temptation to strengthen yourself with

At this time there was a great disturbance throughout Judea for the sake of Jesus: for that the Roman soldiery, through the operation of Satan, stirred up the Hebrews, saying that Jesus was God come to visit them<sup>1</sup>. Whereupon so great sedition arose, that nigh upon the Forty days<sup>2</sup> all Judea was in arms, insomuch that the son was found against the father, and the brother against the brother, for that some said that Jesus was God come to the world; others said: 'Nay, but he is a son of God'; and others said: 'Nay, for God hath no human similitude, and therefore begetteth not sons; but Jesus of Nazareth is a prophet of God<sup>b</sup>.'

And this arose by reason of the great miracles which Jesus did.

Thereupon, to quiet the people, it was necessary that the high-priest should ride in procession, clothed in his priestly robes, with the holy name of God, the teta|gramaton<sup>3c</sup> (sic), on his forehead. 96<sup>b</sup>
 And in like manner rode the governor Pilate, and Herod.

Whereupon, in Mizpeh assembled three armies, each one of two hundred thousand men that bare sword. Herod spake to them, but they were not quieted. Then spake the governor and the high-priest, saying: 'Brethren, this war is aroused by the work of Satan, for Jesus is alive, and to him ought we to resort, and ask him that he give testimony of himself, and then believe in him, according to his word.'

So at this they were quieted, every one; and having laid down their arms they all embraced one another, saying one to the other: 'Forgive me, brother!'

On that day, accordingly, every one laid this in his heart, to believe Jesus, according as he shall say. And by the governor and the high-priest were offered great rewards to him who should come to announce where Jesus was to be found.

At this time we with Jesus, by the word of the | holy angel, 97<sup>a</sup> were gone to Mount Sinai. And there Jesus with his disciples kept the Forty days<sup>1</sup>. When this was past, Jesus drew nigh to the river Jordan, to go to Jerusalem. And he was seen by one of them who believed Jesus to be God. Whereupon, with greatest gladness crying ever 'Our God cometh!' having reached the city he moved the whole city saying: 'Our God cometh, O Jerusalem; prepare thee to receive him!' And he testified that he had seen Jesus near to Jordan.

Then went out from the city every one, small and great, to see Jesus, insomuch that the city was left empty, for the women bare their children in their arms, and insomuch that they forgot to take food to eat.

When they perceived this, the governor and the high-priest rode forth and sent a messenger to Herod, who in like manner rode forth to find Jesus, in order that the sedition of the people might be quieted. | Whereupon for two days they sought him in the 97<sup>b</sup> wilderness near to Jordan, and the third day they found him, near the hour of midday, when he with his disciples was purifying himself for prayer, according to the book of Moses.

Jesus marvelled greatly, seeing the multitude which covered the ground with people, and said to his disciples: 'Perchance Satan hath raised sedition in Judaea. May it please God to take away from Satan the dominion which he hath over sinners.'

And when he had said this, the crowd drew nigh, and when they knew him they began to cry out: 'Welcome to thee, O our God!' and they began to do him reverence, as unto God. Whereupon Jesus gave a great groan and said: 'Get ye from before me, O madmen, for I fear lest the earth should open and devour me with you for your abominable words!' Whereupon the people were filled with terror and began to weep.

And having said this, Jesus smote his face with both his hands, whereupon arose such a noise of weeping that none could hear what Jesus was saying. Whereupon once more he lifted up his hand in token of silence, and the people being quieted from their weeping, he spake once more : ' I confess before heaven, and I call to witness everything<sup>1</sup> that dwelleth upon the earth, that I am a stranger to all that ye have said ; seeing that I am man, born of mortal woman<sup>2</sup>, subject to the judgement of God<sup>a</sup>, suffering the miseries of eating and sleeping, of | cold and heat, like other men. Wherefore<sup>b</sup> when God<sup>c</sup> shall come to judge, my words like a sword shall pierce each one [of them] that believe me to be more than man.'

And having said this, Jesus saw a great multitude of horsemen, whereby he perceived that there were coming the governor with Herod and the high-priest.

Then said Jesus : ' Perchance they also are become mad.'

When the governor arrived there, with Herod and the priest, every one dismounted, and they made a circle round about Jesus, insomuch that the soldiery could not keep back the people that were desirous to hear Jesus speaking with the priest.

Jesus drew near to the priest with reverence, but he was wishful to bow himself down and worship Jesus, when Jesus cried out : ' Beware of that which thou doest, priest of the living God<sup>d</sup> ! Sin not against our God !'

The priest answered : ' Now is Judaea so greatly moved over thy signs and thy teaching that they cry out that thou art God ; wherefore, constrained | by the people, I am come hither with the 99<sup>a</sup> Roman governor and king Herod. We pray thee therefore from our heart, that thou wilt be content to remove the sedition which is arisen on thy account. Then said the priest: 'May God pardon us<sup>d</sup>, and do thou pray for us.'

Then said the governor and Herod: 'Sir<sup>2</sup>, it is impossible that man should do that which thou doest; wherefore we understand not that which thou sayest.'

Jesus answered: 'That which ye say is true, for God worketh good in man, even as Satan worketh evil. For man is like a shop, wherein whoso entereth with his consent worketh and selleth therein. But tell me, O governor, and thou O king, ye say this because ye are strangers to our law: for if ye read the testament and covenant of our God<sup>e3</sup> ye would see that Moses with a rod made the water turn into blood, the dust into fleas, the dew into tempest, and the light into darkness. Thereupon the people raised their voices weeping, and said: 'We have sinned, Lord our God <sup>c</sup>, against thee; have mercy upon us <sup>d</sup>.' And they prayed Jesus, every one, that he would pray for the safety of the holy city, that our God in his anger should not give it over to be trodden down of the nations <sup>e</sup>. Thereupon Jesus, having lifted up his hands, prayed for the holy city and for the people of God, every one crying: 'So be it,' 'Amen.'

When the prayer was ended, the priest said with a loud voice: 'Stay, Jesus, for we need to know who thou art, for the quieting of our nation.'

Mohammed is his blessed name.'

XCVIII <sup>d</sup>.

And having said this, the multitude departed with the priest and | the governor with Herod, having great disputations <sup>104<sup>a</sup></sup> concerning Jesus and concerning his doctrine. Whereupon the priest prayed the governor to write unto Rome to the senate the whole matter; which thing the governor did; wherefore the senate had compassion on Israel, and decreed<sup>1</sup> that on pain of death none should call Jesus the Nazarene, prophet of the Jews, either God or son of God. Which decree was posted up in the temple, engraved upon copper.

When the greater part of the crowd had departed, there remained about five thousand men, without women and children<sup>2</sup>; who being wearied by the journey, having been two days without bread, for that through longing to see Jesus they had forgotten to bring any, whereupon they ate raw herbs—therefore they were not able to depart like the others.

Then Jesus, when he perceived this, had pity on them, and said to Philip: 'Where shall we find bread for them that they perish not of hunger?'

Philip answered: 'Lord, two hundred pieces of gold could not buy so much bread that each one should taste a | little.' Then <sup>104<sup>b</sup></sup> said Andrew: 'There is here a child which hath five loaves and two fishes, but what will it be among so many?'

Jesus answered: 'Make the multitude sit down.' And they sat down upon the grass by fifties and by forties. Thereupon said Jesus: 'In the name of God <sup>e</sup>!' And he took the bread, and prayed to God and then brake the bread, which he gave to the disciples, and the disciples gave it to the multitude; and so did they with the fishes. Every one ate and every one was satisfied.

Then said Jesus: 'Gather up that which is over.' So the disciples gathered those fragments, and filled twelve baskets. Thereupon every one put his hand to his eyes, saying: 'Am I awake, or do I dream?' And they remained, every one, for the space of an hour, as it were beside themselves by reason of the great miracle.

Afterwards Jesus, when he had given thanks to God, dismissed them, but there were seventy-two men<sup>1</sup> that willed not to leave him; wherefore Jesus, perceiving their faith, chose them for disciples.

Jesus, having withdrawn into a hollow part of the desert in Tiro<sup>2</sup> near to Jordan, called together the seventy-two with the twelve, and, when he had seated himself upon a stone, made them to sit near him. And he opened his mouth with a sigh and said: 'This day have we seen a great wickedness in Judaea and in Israel, and such an one that my heart yet trembleth within my breast for fear of God. Verily I say unto you, that God is jealous for his honour, and loveth Israel as a lover <sup>b</sup>. Ye know that when a youth loveth a lady, and she love not him, but another, he is moved to indignation and slayeth his rival. Even so, I tell you, doth God: for, when Israel hath loved anything by reason whereof he forgetteth God, God hath brought such thing to nought <sup>c</sup>. Now what thing is more dear to God here on earth than the priesthood and the holy temple? Nevertheless, in the time of Jeremiah the prophet, when the people had forgotten God, and boasted only of the temple<sup>3</sup>, for that there was none like it in all the world, God raised up his wrath by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and with | an army caused him to take the holy city and burn it with 105<sup>b</sup> the sacred temple<sup>4</sup>, insomuch that the sacred things which the prophets of God trembled to touch were trodden under foot of infidels full of wickedness<sup>5</sup>.

David loved Absalom vehemently, and therefore God brought it to pass that the son rebelled against his father and was suspended by his hair and slain by Joab <sup>2</sup>. O fearful judgement of God, that Absalom loved his hair above all things, and this was turned into a rope to hang him withal!

<sup>b</sup> Our father Jacob loved Joseph more than his other | sons <sup>4</sup>, 106<sup>a</sup> wherefore God caused him to be sold, and caused Jacob to be deceived by these same sons, insomuch that he believed that the beasts had devoured his son, and so abode ten years mourning.

As God liveth <sup>d</sup>, brethren, I fear lest God be angered against me. Therefore ye needs must go through Judaea and Israel, preaching to the twelve tribes of Israel the truth, that they may be undeceived.'

The disciples answered with fear, weeping: 'We will do whatsoever thou shalt bid us.'

Then said Jesus: 'Let us for three days make prayer and fast, and from henceforth every evening when the first star shall appear <sup>5</sup>, when prayer is made to God, let us make prayer three times, asking Him three times for mercy: because the sin of Israel is three times more grievous than other sins.'

'So be it,' answered the disciples.

When the third day was ended, on the morning of the fourth day, Jesus called together | all the disciples and apostles and said 106<sup>b</sup> to them: 'Suffice it that there abide with me Barnabas and John: do ye others go through all the region of Samaria and Judaea and Israel, preaching penitence; because the axe is laid nigh unto the tree, to cut it down <sup>6</sup>. <sup>a</sup> Jesus answered : ' When a man loseth a purse doth he turn back only his eye, to see it ? or his hand, to take it ? or his tongue, to ask ? No, assuredly, but he turneth back his whole body and employeth every power of his soul to find it. Is this true ? '

Then answered he who writeth : ' It is most true. ' |

<sup>a</sup> Then said Jesus : ' Penitence is a reversing of the evil life ; for every sense must be turned round to the contrary of that which it wrought while sinning. For instead of delight must be put mourning ; for laughter, weeping ; for revellings, fasts ; for sleeping, vigils ; for leisure, activity ; for lust, chastity : let story-telling be turned into prayer and avarice into almsgiving. '

Then answered he who writeth : ' But if they be asked, how we ought to mourn, how we ought to weep, how we ought to fast, how we ought to show activity, how we ought to remain chaste, how we ought to make prayer and do alms ; what answer shall they give ? And how shall they do penance aright if they know not how to repent <sup>c</sup> ? '

Jesus answered : ' Well hast thou asked, O Barnabas, and I wish to answer all fully if it be pleasing to God <sup>d</sup>. So to-day I will speak to thee of penitence generally, and that which I say to one I say unto all <sup>1</sup>. '

' Know then that penitence | more than anything must be done 107<sup>b</sup> for pure love of God ; otherwise it will be vain to repent. For I will speak unto you by a similitude. '

' Every building, if its foundation be removed, falleth into ruin : is this true ? '

' It is true, ' answered the disciples. '

Then said Jesus : ' The foundation of our salvation is God <sup>e</sup>, without whom salvation is not. When man hath sinned, he hath lost the foundation of his salvation ; so it is necessary to begin from the foundation. '

‘Tell me, if your slaves had offended you, and ye knew that they did not grieve at having offended you, but grieved at having lost their reward, would ye forgive them? Certainly not. Even so I tell you that God will do to those who repent for having lost paradise. Satan, the enemy of all good, hath great remorse for having lost paradise and gained hell. But yet will he never find mercy, and know ye why? Because he hath no | love of God; nay 108<sup>a</sup> he hateth his Creator.’

‘Verily I say unto you, that every animal after its own nature, if it lose that which it desireth, mourneth for the lost good. Accordingly, the sinner who will be truly penitent must have great desire to punish in himself that which he hath wrought in opposition to his Creator: in such wise that when he prayeth he dare not to crave of God paradise, or that he free him from hell, but in confusion of mind, prostrate before God, he saith in his prayer: “Behold the guilty one, O Lord, who hath offended thee without any cause at the very time when he ought to have been serving thee. Wherefore here he seeketh that what he hath done may be punished by thy hand, and not by the hand of Satan, thine enemy; in order that the ungodly may not rejoice over thy creatures. Chastise, punish as it pleaseth thee, O Lord, for | thou wilt never give me so much torment as this wicked one 108<sup>b</sup> deserveth.”

‘Whereupon the sinner, holding to this manner [of penitence], will find the more mercy with God <sup>b</sup> in proportion as he craveth justice.

‘Assuredly, an abominable sacrilege is laughter of the sinner: inasmuch that this world is rightly called by our father David a vale of tears <sup>1</sup>.

‘There was a king who adopted as son one of his slaves, whom he made lord of all that he possessed. Now it chanced that by the deceit of a wicked man the wretched one fell under the displeasure of the king, so that he suffered great miseries, not only in his substance, but in being despised, and being deprived of all that he won each day by working. Think ye that such a man would laugh for any time?’

‘No, assuredly,’ answered the disciples, ‘for if the king should have known it he would have caused him to be slain, seeing him laugh at the king’s displeasure. But it is probable that he would weep day and night.’ |

Then Jesus wept saying<sup>a</sup>: ‘Woe to the world, for it is sure <sup>109<sup>a</sup></sup> of eternal torment. Oh wretched mankind, for that God hath chosen thee as a son, granting thee paradise, whereupon thou, O wretched one, by the operation of Satan didst fall under the displeasure of God, and wast cast out of paradise and condemned to the unclean world, where thou receivest all things with toil, and every good work is taken from thee by continual sinning. And the world simply laugheth, and, what is worse, he that is the greatest sinner laugheth more than the rest. It will be, therefore, as ye have said: that God will give the sentence of eternal death upon the sinner who laugheth at his sins and weepeth not therefor.’

‘The weeping of the sinner ought to be as that of a father who weepeth over his son nigh to death. Oh madness of man, that weepeth over the body from which the soul is departed, and weepeth not over the soul from which, | through sin, is departed the mercy of God !

‘Tell me, if the mariner, when his ship hath been wrecked by a storm, could by weeping recover all that he had lost, what would he do ? It is certain that he would weep bitterly. But I say unto you verily, that in every thing wherein a man weepeth he sinneth, save only when he weepeth for his sin. For every misery that cometh to man cometh to him from God for his salvation, so that he ought to rejoice thereat. But sin cometh from the devil for the damnation of man, and at that man is not sad. Assuredly here ye can perceive that man seeketh loss and not profit.’

Said Bartholomew: ‘Lord, what shall he do who cannot weep for that his heart is a stranger to weeping ?’ Jesus answered: ‘Not all those who shed tears weep, O Bartholomew. As God liveth<sup>c</sup>, there are found men from whose eyes no tear hath ever fallen, and they have wept more than a thousand of those who shed tears. | The weeping of a sinner is a consumption of earthly 110<sup>a</sup> affection by vehemence of sorrow. Insomuch that just as the sunshine preserveth from putrefaction what is placed uppermost, even so this consumption preserveth the soul from sin. If God <sup>a</sup> should grant tears to the true penitent as many as the sea hath waters he would desire far more: and so this desire consumeth that little drop that he fain would shed, as a blazing furnace consumeth a drop of water. But they who readily burst into weeping are like the horse that goeth the faster the more lightly he is laden.'

'Verily there are men who have both the inward affection and the outward tears. But he who is thus, will be a Jeremiah<sup>1</sup>. In weeping, God measureth more the sorrow than the tears.'

Then said John: 'O master, how doth man lose in weeping over things other than sin?'

Jesus answered: 'If Herod should give thee | a mantle to keep 110<sup>b</sup> for him, and afterwards should take it away from thee, wouldest thou have reason to weep?'

'No,' said John. Then said Jesus: 'Now hath man less reason to weep when he loseth aught, or hath not that which he would; for all cometh from the hand of God <sup>c</sup>. Accordingly, shall not God have power to dispose at his pleasure of his own things <sup>d</sup>, O foolish man? For thou hast of thine own, sin alone; and for that oughtest thou to weep, and not for aught else.'

Said Matthew: 'O master, thou hast confessed before all Judaea that God hath no similitude like man, and now thou hast said that man receiveth from the hand of God; accordingly, since God hath hands he hath a similitude with man.'

Jesus answered: 'Thou art in error, O Matthew, and many have so erred, not knowing the sense of the words. For man ought to consider not the outward [form] of the words, but the sense; seeing that human speech is as it were an interpreter between us and God. Now know ye not, that when God willed to Speak to our fathers on mount Sinai, our fathers cried out: "Speak thou to us, O Moses, and let not | God speak to us, lest we die<sup>1</sup>" ? And what said God<sup>a</sup> by Isaiah<sup>2</sup> the prophet, but that, so far as the heaven is distant from the earth, even so are the ways of God distant from the ways of men, and the thoughts of God from the thoughts of men ?

'God is so immeasurable that I tremble to describe him. But it is necessary that I make unto you a proposition. I tell you, then, that the heavens are nine<sup>3</sup> and that they are distant from one another even as the first heaven is distant from the earth, which is distant from the earth five hundred<sup>4</sup> years' journey. Wherefore the earth is distant from the highest heaven four thousand and five hundred years' journey. I tell you, accordingly, that [the earth] is in proportion to the first heaven as the point of a needle, and the first heaven in like manner is in proportion to the second as a point, and similarly all the heavens are inferior each one to the next. But all the size of the earth with that of all the heavens is in proportion to paradise as a point, | nay, as a grain of sand. Is this greatness immeasurable ?'

The disciples answered : 'Yea, surely.'

Then said Jesus : 'As God liveth<sup>c</sup>, in whose presence my soul standeth, the universe before God is small as a grain of sand<sup>d</sup>, and God is as many times greater [than it] as it would take grains of sand to fill all the heavens and paradise, and more. Now consider ye if God hath any proportion with man, who is a little piece of clay that standeth upon the earth. Beware, then, that ye take the sense and not the bare words, if ye wish to have eternal life.'

The disciples answered : 'God alone can know himself, and truly it is as said Isaiah<sup>5</sup> the prophet : "He is hidden<sup>e</sup> from human senses."'

Jesus answered : 'So is it true ; wherefore, when we are in paradise we shall know God, as here one knoweth the sea from a drop of salt water.'

ought to weep, because by sinning man forsaketh his Creator<sup>a</sup>. But how shall he weep | who attendeth at revellings and feasts? He 112<sup>a</sup> will weep even as ice will give fire! Ye needs must turn revellings into fasts if ye will have lordship over your senses, because even so hath our God lordship.'

Said Thaddaeus: 'So then, God hath sense over which to have lordship.'

Jesus answered: 'Go ye back to saying, "God hath this," "God is such<sup>1</sup>"? Tell me, hath man sense?'

'Yea,' answered the disciples.

Said Jesus: 'Can a man be found who hath life in him, yet in him sense worketh not?'

'No,' said the disciples.

'Ye deceive yourselves,' said Jesus, 'for he that is blind, deaf, dumb, and mutilated—where is his sense? And when a man is in a swoon?'

Then were the disciples perplexed; when Jesus said: 'Three things there are that make up man: that is, the soul and the sense and the flesh, each one of itself separate. Our God created<sup>b</sup> the soul and the body as ye have heard, but ye have not yet heard how he created the sense. Therefore to-morrow, if God please, I will tell you all.'

And having said this Jesus gave thanks to God, and prayed for the salvation of our people, | every one of us saying: 'Amen.'

CVI<sup>c</sup>.

When he had finished the prayer of dawn, Jesus sat down under a palm tree, and thither his disciples drew nigh to him. Then said Jesus: 'As God liveth<sup>d</sup>, in whose presence standeth my soul, many are deceived concerning our life. For so closely are the soul and the sense joined together, that the more part of men affirm the soul and the sense to be one and the same thing, dividing it by operation and not by essence, calling it the sensitive, vegetative, and intellectual soul<sup>2</sup>. Put verily I say to you, the soul is one, which thinketh and liveth. O foolish ones, where will they find the intellectual soul without life? Assuredly, never. But life without senses will readily be found, as is seen in the unconscious when the sense leaveth him.'

Thaddaeus answered: 'O master, when the sense leaveth the life, a man hath not life.'

Jesus answered: 'This is not true, because | man is deprived 113 of life when the soul departeth; because the soul returneth not any more to the body, save by miracle <sup>a</sup>. But sense departeth by reason of fear that it receiveth, or by reason of great sorrow that the soul hath. For the sense hath God created <sup>b</sup> for pleasure, and by that alone it liveth, even as the body liveth by food and the soul liveth by knowledge and love. This [sense] is now rebellious against the soul, through indignation that it hath at being deprived of the pleasure of paradise through sin. Wherefore there is the greatest need to nourish it with spiritual pleasure for him who willeth not that it should live of carnal pleasure. Understand ye? Verily I say unto you, that God having created it condemned it to hell and to intolerable snow and ice; because it said that it was God; but when he deprived it of nourishment, taking away its food from it, it confessed that it was a slave of God and the work of his hands. And now tell me, how doth sense work in the ungodly? Assuredly, it is as God in them: seeing that they follow | sense, forsaking reason and the law of God. Whereupon they become abominable, and work not any good.'

CVII c.

'And so the first thing that followeth sorrow for sin is fasting. For he that seeth that a certain food maketh him sick, for that he feareth death, after sorrowing that he hath eaten it, forsaketh it, so as not to make himself sick. So ought the sinner to do. Perceiving that pleasure hath made him to sin against God his creator <sup>d</sup> by following sense in these good things of the world, let him sorrow at having done so, because it depriveth him of God, his life <sup>e</sup>, and giveth him the eternal death of hell. But because man while living hath need to take these good things of the world, fasting is needful here. So let him proceed to mortify sense and to know God for his lord <sup>f</sup>. fastings, let him put before it the condition of hell, where no pleasure at all but infinite sorrow | is received; let him put before 114<sup>a</sup> it the delights of paradise, that are so great that a grain of one of the delights of paradise is greater than all those of the world. For so will it easily be quieted; for that it is better to be content with little in order to receive much, than to be unbridled in little and be deprived of all and abide in torment.

‘Ye ought to remember the rich feaster<sup>1</sup> in order to fast well. For he, wishing here on earth to fare deliciously every day, was deprived eternally of a single drop of water: while Lazarus, being content with crumbs here on earth, shall live eternally in full abundance of the delights of paradise.

‘But let the penitent be cautious; for that Satan seeketh to annul every good work, and more in the penitent than in others, for that the penitent hath rebelled against him, and from being his faithful slave hath turned into a rebellious foe. Whereupon Satan will seek to cause that he shall not fast in any wise, under pretext of sickness, and when this shall not avail he will invite him | to an extreme fast, in order that he may fall sick and afterwards live deliciously. And if he succeed not in this, he will seek to make him set his fast simply upon bodily food, in order that he may be like unto himself, who never eateth but always sinneth.

‘As God liveth<sup>a</sup>, it is abominable to deprive the body of food and fill the soul with pride, despising them that fast not, and holding oneself better than they. Tell me, will the sick man boast of the diet that is imposed on him by the physician, and call them mad who are not put on diet? Assuredly not. But he will sorrow for the sickness by reason of which he needs must be put upon diet. Even so I say unto you, that the penitent ought not to boast in his fast, and despise them that fast not; but he ought to sorrow for the sin by reason whereof he fasteth. Nor should the penitent that fasteth procure delicate food, but he should content himself with coarse food. Now will a man give delicate food to the dog that biteth and to the horse that kicketh? No, surely,

By the living God.

'Hearken, then, to what I shall say to you concerning watching. For just as there are two kinds of sleeping, viz. that of the body and that of the soul, even so must ye be careful in watching that while the body watcheth the soul sleep not<sup>b</sup>. For this would be a most grievous error. Tell me, in parable: there is a man who whilst walking striketh himself against a rock, and in order to avoid striking it the more with his foot, he striketh with his head,—what is the state of such a man?'

'Miserable,' answered the disciples, 'for such a man is frenzied.'

Then said Jesus: 'Well have ye answered, for verily I say to you that he who watcheth with the body and sleepeth with the soul is frenzied. As the spiritual infirmity is more grievous than the corporeal, even so is it more difficult to cure. Wherefore, shall such a wretched one boast of not sleeping with the body, which is the foot of the life, while | he perceiveth not his misery that he 115<sup>b</sup> sleepeth with the soul, which is the head of the life? The sleep of the soul is forgetfulness of God<sup>c</sup> and of his fearful judgement. The soul, then, that watcheth is that which in everything and in every place perceiveth God, and in everything and through everything and above everything giveth thanks to his majesty, knowing that always at every moment it receiveth grace and mercy from God<sup>d</sup>. Wherefore in fear of his majesty there always resoundeth in its ear that angelic utterance—"Creatures, come to judgement, for your Creator willeth to judge you." For it abideth habitually ever in the service of God. Tell me, whether do ye desire the more: to see by the light of a star or by the light of the sun?'

Andrew answered: 'By the light of the sun; for by the light of the star we cannot see the neighbouring mountains, and by the light of the sun we see the tiniest grain of sand. Wherefore we walk with fear by the light of the star, but by the light of the sun we go securely.’

Jesus answered : ‘ Even so I tell you that ye ought to watch with the soul by the sun of justice [which is] our God, and not to boast yourselves of the watchings of the body. It is most true, therefore, that bodily sleep is to be avoided as much as is possible, but [to avoid it] altogether is impossible, the sense and the flesh being weighed down with food and the mind with business. Wherefore let him that will sleep little avoid too much business and much food.

‘ As God liveth <sup>b</sup>, in whose presence standeth my soul, it is lawful to sleep somewhat every night, but it is never lawful to forget God <sup>c</sup> and his fearful judgement<sup>d</sup>: and the sleep of the soul is such oblivion.’

Then answered he who writeth : ‘ O master, how can we always have God in memory ? Assuredly, it seemeth to us impossible.’

Said Jesus, with a sigh : ‘ This is the greatest misery that | man <sup>116b</sup> can suffer, O Barnabas. For man cannot here upon earth have God his creator <sup>e</sup> always in memory ; saving them that are holy, for they always have God in memory, because they have in them the light of the grace of God <sup>f</sup>, so that they cannot forget God. But tell me, have ye seen them that work quarried stones, how by their constant practice they have so learned to strike that they speak with others and all the time are striking the iron tool that worketh the stone without looking at the iron, and yet they do not strike their hands ? Now do ye likewise. Desire to be holy if ye wish to overcome entirely this misery of forgetfulness. Sure it is that water cleaveth the hardest rocks with a single drop striking there for a long period.

Then said John: 'It is most true what thou sayest, O master; teach us therefore the way to attain to this blessed condition.'

Jesus answered: 'Verily I say to you, one cannot attain to such condition by human powers <sup>e</sup>, but rather by the mercy of God our Lord <sup>f</sup>. It is true indeed that man ought to desire the good in order that God may give it him <sup>g</sup>. Tell me, when ye are at table do ye take those meats which ye would not so much as look at? in sinning a man breaketh the fast of the soul, and forgetteth God. So is it that watching and fasting as regardeth the soul are always necessary for us and for all men. For to none is it lawful to sin <sup>a</sup>. But the fasting | of the body and its watchings, 118<sup>a</sup> believe me, they are not possible at all times, nor for all persons. For there are sick and aged folk, women with child, men that are put upon diet, children, and others that are of weak complexion. time in business, and the worst in prayer and study of the law? Woe to the world, because with this and with greater sin is its heart weighed down! Accordingly, when I said unto you that laughter should be turned | into weeping, feasts into fasting, and 119<sup>a</sup> sleep into watching, I compassed in three words all that ye have heard—that here on earth one ought always to weep, and that weeping should be from the heart, because God our creator <sup>a</sup> is offended; that ye ought to fast in order to have lordship over the sense, and to watch in order not to sin; and that bodily weeping and bodily fasting and watching should be taken according to the constitution of each one.’

Having said this, Jesus said: ‘Ye needs must seek of the fruits of the field the wherewithal to sustain our life, for it is now eight days that we have eaten no bread. Wherefore I will pray to our God, and will await you with Barnabas.’

So all the disciples and apostles departed by fours and by sixes and went their way according to the word of Jesus. There remained with Jesus he who writeth; whereupon Jesus, weeping, said: ‘O Barnabas, | it is necessary that I should reveal to thee 119<sup>b</sup> great secrets, which, after that I shall be departed from the world, thou shalt reveal to it.’

Then answered he that writeth, weeping, and said: ‘Suffer me to weep, O master, and other men also, for that we are sinners. And thou, that art an holy one and prophet of God, it is not fitting for thee to weep so much.’

Jesus answered: ‘Believe me, Barnabas, that I cannot weep as much as I ought. For if men had not called me God, I should have seen God here as he will be seen in paradise, and should have been safe not to fear the day of judgement. But God knoweth that I am innocent, because never have I harboured thought to be held more than a poor slave. Nay, I tell thee that if I had not been called God I should have been carried into paradise when I shall depart from the world, whereas now I shall not go thither until the judgement. Then answered he that writeth: 'O master, tell me who is that wretch, for I fain would choke him to death.'

'Hold thy peace,' answered Jesus, 'for so God willeth, and he cannot do otherwise <sup>c</sup>: but see thou that when my mother is afflicted at such an event thou tell her the truth, in order that she may be comforted.'

Then answered he who writeth: 'All this will I do, O master, if God please <sup>d</sup>.'

When the disciples were come they brought pine-cones, and by the will of God they found a good quantity of dates. So after the midday prayer they ate with Jesus. Whereupon the apostles and disciples, seeing him that writeth of sad countenance, feared that Jesus needs must quickly depart from the world. Whereupon Jesus consoled them, saying: 'Fear not, for my hour is not yet come that I should depart from you. I shall abide with you still for a little while <sup>2</sup>. Therefore must I teach you now, in order that ye may go, as I have said, through all Israel to preach penitence; in order that God may have mercy <sup>f</sup> upon the sin of Israel. thereof had a garden, which had a fine fig-tree; whereon for three years when the owner came he found no fruit, and seeing every other | tree bare fruit there he said to his vinedresser: "Cut 121<sup>a</sup> down this bad tree, for it cumbereth the ground."

"The vinedresser answered: "Not so, my lord, for it is a beautiful tree."

"Hold thy peace," said the owner, "for I care not for useless beauties. Thou shouldest know that the palm and the balsam are nobler than the fig. But I had planted in the courtyard of my house a plant of palm and one of balsam, which I had surrounded with costly walls, but when these bare no fruit, but leaves which heaped themselves up and putrefied the ground in front of the house, I caused them both to be removed. And now shall I pardon a fig-tree far from the house, which cumbereth my garden and my vineyard where every other tree beareth fruit? Assuredly I will not suffer it any longer."

'Then said the vinedresser: "Lord, the soil is too rich. Wait, therefore, one year more, for I will prune the fig-plant's branches, and take away from it the richness of the soil, putting in poor soil with stones, and so shall it bear fruit." |

'The owner answered: "Now go and do so; for I will wait, and 121<sup>b</sup> the fig-plant shall bear fruit." Understand ye this parable?'

The disciples answered: 'No, Lord; therefore explain it to us.'

CXIV <sup>a</sup>.

Jesus answered: 'Verily I say unto you, the owner is God<sup>b</sup>, and the vinedresser is his law. God, then, had in paradise the palm and the balsam; for Satan is the palm and the first man the balsam. Them did he cast out because they bare not fruit of good works, but uttered ungodly words that were the condemnation of many angels and many men. Now that God hath man in the world, in the midst of his creatures that serve God, all of them, according to his precept<sup>c</sup>: and man, I say, bearing no fruit, God would cut him down and commit him to hell, seeing he pardoned not the angel and the first man, punishing the angel eternally, and the man for a time. life, and so it is necessary that he should suffer tribulation | and <sup>122a</sup> be deprived of earthly goods, in order that he may do good works. Therefore our God waiteth for man to be penitent <sup>a</sup>. Verily I say unto you, that our God hath condemned man to work, so that, as said Job <sup>1</sup>, the friend and prophet of God: "As the bird is born to fly and the fish to swim, even so is man born to work."

'So also David <sup>2</sup> our father, a prophet of God, saith: "Eating the labours of our hands we shall be blessed, and it shall be well with us <sup>b</sup>."

'Wherefore let every one work, according to his quality. Now tell me, if David our father and Solomon his son worked with their hands, what ought the sinner to do?'

Said John: 'Master, to work is a fitting thing, but this ought the poor to do.'

Jesus answered: 'Yea, for they cannot do otherwise. But knowest thou not that good, to be good, must be free from necessity <sup>c</sup>? Thus the sun and the other planets are strengthened by the precepts of God so that they cannot do otherwise, wherefore they shall have no merit. Tell me, | when God gave the precept <sup>d</sup> to <sup>122b</sup> work, he said not: "A poor man shall live of the sweat of his face"? And Job did not say that: "As a bird is born to fly, so a poor man is born to work"? But God said to man: "In the sweat of thy countenance shalt thou eat bread," and Job that "Man is born to work." Therefore [only] he who is not man is free from this precept. Assuredly for no other reason are all things costly, but that there are a great multitude of idle folk: if these were to labour, some attending the ground and some at fishing the water, there would be the greatest plenty in the world. And of the lack thereof it will be necessary to render an account in the dreadful day of judgement.'

Andrew answered: ‘How shall a man forget the women if he live in the city where there are so many of them?’

‘It behoveth a man to live in the city, even as the soldier liveth when he hath enemies around the fortress, defending himself against every assault and always fearing treachery on the part of the citizens. But how shall he defend himself if he bridle not the eye, which is the origin of every carnal sin?<sup>b</sup> As God liveth<sup>c</sup> in whose presence my soul standeth, he who hath not bodily eyes is secure not to receive punishment save only to the third degree, while he that hath eyes receiveth it to the seventh degree.

‘The blind man answered: “Now tell me, is it a sin to see a holy prophet of God, that raiseth the dead and maketh the fire to come down from heaven?”

concerneth thee, I am the devil," said Elijah weeping, "because I turn thee aside from thy creator. Weep then, O brother, because thou hast not that light which would make thee see the true from the false, for if thou hadst had that thou wouldst not have despised my doctrine. Wherefore I say unto thee, that many desire to see me and come from far to see me, who despise my words. Wherefore it were better for them, for their salvation, that they had no eyes, seeing that everyone that findeth pleasure in the creature, be he who he may, and seeketh not to find pleasure in God, hath made an idol in his heart, and forsaken God."

Then said Jesus, sighing: 'Have ye understood all that Elijah said?'

The disciples answered: | 'In sooth, we have understood, and we 126<sup>a</sup> are beside ourselves at the knowledge that here on earth there are very few that are not idolaters.'

CXVIII<sup>a</sup>.

Then said Jesus: 'Ye speak the truth, for now was Israel desirous to establish the idolatry that they have in their hearts, in holding me for God; many of whom have now despised my teaching, saying that I could make myself lord of all Judaea, if I confessed myself to be God, and that I am mad to wish to live in poverty among desert places, and not abide continually among princes in delicate living. Oh hapless man, that prizeth the light that is common to flies and ants and despiseth the light that is common only to angels and prophets and holy friends of God!

'If, then, the eye shall not be guarded, O Andrew, I tell thee that it is impossible not to fall headlong into lust<sup>b</sup>. and giveth no sustenance to the body. Even so then let man do, for with the outward sight of his eyes and the inward sight of his mind he should seek to know God his creator<sup>a</sup> and the good-pleasure of his will, and should not make the creature his end, which causeth him to lose the creator.

‘For verily every time that a man beholdeth a thing and forgetteth God who hath made it for man, he hath sinned. For if a friend of thine should give thee somewhat to keep in memory of him, and thou shouldest sell it and forget thy friend, | thou hast 127<sup>a</sup> offended against thy friend. Even so doth man; for when he beholdeth the creature and hath not in memory the creator, who for love of man hath created it, he sinneth against God his creator<sup>c</sup> by ingratitude.

‘He therefore who shall behold women and shall forget God who for the good of man created woman, he will love her and desire her. And to such degree will this lust of his break forth, that he will love everything like unto the thing loved: so that hence cometh that sin of which it is a shame to have memory. If, then, man shall put a bridle upon his eyes, he shall be lord of the sense, which cannot desire that which is not presented to it. For so shall the flesh be subject to the spirit. Because as the ship cannot move without wind, so the flesh without the sense cannot sin.

Then, Jesus being silent, the disciples answered: ‘No one would exercise himself in any way other than in making gold and sugar.’

Then said Jesus: ‘Now why doth not man change foolish story-telling into prayer? Is time, perchance, given him by God<sup>b</sup> that he may offend God? For what prince would give a city to his subject in order that the latter might make war upon him? As God liveth<sup>a</sup>, if man knew after what manner the soul is transformed by vain talking he would sooner bite off his tongue with his teeth than talk. O wretched world! for to-day men do not assemble together for | prayer, but in the porches of the temple and in the 128<sup>b</sup> very temple itself Satan hath there the sacrifice of vain talk, and that which is worse—of things which I cannot talk of without shame.

‘The fruit of vain talking is this, that it weakeneth the intellect in such wise that it is not ready to receive the truth; even as a horse accustomed to carry but one ounce of cotton-flock cannot carry an hundred pounds of stone.

‘But what is worse is the man who spendeth his time in jests. When he is fain to pray, Satan will put into his memory those

Oh impure world, I cannot conceive how grievously thou wilt be punished by God!<sup>b</sup> He, then, who would do penance, he, I say, must give out his words at the price of gold.’

His disciples answered: ‘Now who will buy a man’s words at the price of gold? Assuredly no one. And how shall he do penance? It is certain that he will become covetous!’

Jesus answered: ‘Ye have your heart so heavy that I am not able to lift it up. Hence in every word it is necessary that I should tell you the meaning. But give thanks to God, who hath given you<sup>c</sup> grace to know the mysteries of God<sup>1</sup>. 'As for avarice, that must be changed into almsgiving<sup>1</sup>. Verily I say unto you, that even as the plummet hath for its end the centre, so the avaricious hath hell for his end<sup>c</sup>, for it is impossible for the avaricious to possess any good in paradise. Know ye wherefore? for I will tell you. As God liveth<sup>d</sup>, in whose presence my soul standeth, the avaricious, even though he be silent with his tongue, by his works saith: "There is no other God than I." Inasmuch as all that he hath he is fain to spend at his own pleasure, not regarding his beginning or his end, that he is born naked, and dying leaveth all<sup>2</sup>.

'Now tell me; if Herod should give you a garden to keep, and ye were fain to bear yourselves as owners, not sending any fruit to Herod, and when Herod sent for fruit ye drove away his messengers, tell me, would ye be making yourselves kings over that garden? Assuredly yea. Now I tell you that even so the avaricious man maketh himself god over his riches which God hath given him.

'Avarice is a thirst of the sense, which having lost God through sin because it | liveth by pleasure, and being unable to delight itself<sup>130<sup>b</sup></sup> in God, who is hidden from it, surroundeth itself with temporal things which it holdeth as its good; and it groweth the stronger the more it seeth itself deprived of God.

the grace to repent. As said our father David<sup>1</sup>: "This change cometh from the right hand of God<sup>a</sup>."

'It is necessary that I should tell you of what sort man is, if ye would know how penitence ought to be done. And so to-day let us render thanks to God, who hath given us the grace to communicate His will by my word.'

Whereupon he lifted up his hands and prayed, saying: 'Lord God<sup>b</sup> almighty and merciful, who in mercy hath created us, giving us the rank of men, thy servants, with the faith of thy true messenger<sup>c</sup>, we thank thee for all thy benefits and would fain adore thee only all the days of our life<sup>d</sup>, bewailing our sins, praying and giving alms, fasting and studying thy word, instructing | those that are 131<sup>a</sup> ignorant of thy will, suffering from the world for love of thee, and giving up our life unto the death to serve thee. Do thou, O Lord, save us<sup>e</sup> from Satan, from the flesh and from the world, even as thou savedst thine elect for love of thine own self and for love of thy messenger<sup>f</sup> for whom thou didst create us, and for love of all thy holy ones and prophets.'

The disciples ever answered: 'So be it,' 'So be it, Lord,' 'So be it, O our merciful God<sup>g</sup>.'

When it was day, Friday morning, early, Jesus, after the prayer, assembled his disciples<sup>2</sup> and said to them: 'Let us sit down; for even as on this day God created man of the clay of the earth<sup>i</sup>, even so will I tell you what a thing is man, if God please<sup>k</sup>.'

the one to the other, and united them | in one final object, which <sup>131</sup><sup>b</sup> is man—and this is earth, air, water, and fire <sup>1</sup>—in order that each one might temper its opposite. And he made of these four things a vessel, which is man's body, of flesh, bones, blood, marrow, and skin, with nerves and veins, and with all his inward parts; wherein God placed the soul and the sense, as two hands of this life: giving for lodgement to the sense every part of the body, for it diffused itself there like oil. And to the soul gave he for lodgement the heart, where, united with the sense, it should rule the whole life.

'God <sup>a</sup>, having thus created man <sup>b</sup>, put into him a light which is called reason, which was to unite the flesh, the sense, and the soul in a single end—to work for the service of God.

'Whereupon, he placing this work in paradise, and the reason being seduced of the sense by the operation of Satan, the flesh lost its rest, the sense lost the delight whereby it liveth, and the soul lost its beauty.

'Man having come to such a plight, the sense, which findeth not repose in labour, but seeketh | delight, not being curbed by reason, <sup>132</sup><sup>a</sup> followeth the light which the eyes show it; whence, the eyes not being able to see aught but vanity, it deceiveth itself, and so, choosing earthly things, sinneth.

'Thus it is necessary that by the mercy of God man's reason be enlightened afresh, to know good from evil and [to distinguish] the true delight <sup>cd</sup>: knowing which, the sinner is converted to penitence. Wherefore I say unto you verily, that if God our Lord <sup>e</sup> enlighten not the heart of man, the reasonings of men are of no avail.'

John answered: 'Then to what end serveth the speech of men?'

Jesus replied: 'Man as man availeth naught to convert man to penitence; but man as a means which God useth converteth man; so that seeing God worketh by a secret fashion in man for man's salvation <sup>f</sup>, one ought to listen to every man, in order that among all may be received him in whom God speaketh to us.'

'A man went forth to sow, but only the grain that falleth on good ground beareth seed<sup>1</sup>.

'Even so ought ye to do, listening to all and receiving only the truth, seeing that the truth alone beareth fruit unto eternal life.'

Then answered Andrew: 'Now how shall the truth be known?'

Jesus answered: 'Everything that conformeth to the book of Moses, that receive ye for true; seeing that God is one, the truth is one; whence it followeth that the doctrine is one and the meaning of the doctrine is one; and therefore the faith is one<sup>a</sup>. Verily I say unto you that if the truth had not been erased from the book of Moses, God would not have given to David our father | the second. 133<sup>a</sup> And if the book of David had not been contaminated, God would not have committed the Gospel to me; seeing that the Lord our God is unchangeable<sup>bc</sup>, and hath spoken but one message to all men. Wherefore, when the messenger of God<sup>d</sup> shall come, he shall come to cleanse away all wherewith the ungodly have contaminated my book.'

Then answered he who writeth: 'O Master, what shall a man do when the law shall be found contaminated and the false prophet shall speak?'

Jesus answered: 'Great is thy question, O Barnabas; wherefore I tell thee that in such a time few are saved, seeing that men do not consider their end, which is God. As God liveth<sup>e</sup> in whose presence my soul standeth, every doctrine that shall turn man aside from his end, which is God, is most evil doctrine. ‘I will return now to avarice: and I tell you that when the sense would fain acquire a thing or tenaciously keep it, reason must say: “Such a thing will have its end.” It is certain that if it will have an end it is madness to love it. 'And this is all that I have to say to you concerning penitence.'

Barnabas answered: 'How long ought penitence to last?'

Jesus replied: 'As long as a man is in a state of sin he ought always to repent and do penance for it. Wherefore as human life always sinneth, so ought it always to do penance; unless ye would make more account of your shoes than of your soul, since every time that your shoes are burst ye mend them.' |

Jesus having called together his disciples, sent them forth by two and two<sup>1</sup> through the region of Israel, saying: 'Go and preach even as ye have heard.'

Then they bowed themselves and he laid his hand upon their heads, saying: 'In the name of God<sup>b</sup>, give health to the sick, cast out the demons, and undeceive Israel concerning me, telling them that which I said before the high priest<sup>2</sup>.'

They departed therefore, all of them save him who writeth, with James and John; and they went through all Judaea, preaching penitence even as Jesus had told them, healing every sort of sickness, insomuch that in Israel were confirmed the words of Jesus that God is one and Jesus is prophet of God<sup>c</sup>, when they saw such a multitude do that which Jesus did concerning the healing of the sick.

But the sons of the devil<sup>a</sup> found another way to persecute Jesus, and these were the priests and the scribes. Whereupon they began to say that Jesus aspired to the monarchy over Israel. But they feared | the common people, wherefore they plotted against Jesus 135<sup>a</sup> secretly.

Having passed throughout Judaea the disciples returned to Jesus, who received them as a father receiveth his sons, saying: 'Tell me, how hath wrought the Lord our God?<sup>d</sup> Surely I have seen Satan fall under your feet<sup>e</sup> and ye trample upon him even as the vinedresser treadeth the grapes!'

The disciples answered: 'O Master, we have healed numberless sick persons, and cast out many demons<sup>f</sup> which tormented men.'

Said Jesus: 'God forgive you<sup>g</sup>, O brethren, because ye have

Then said they: 'We have talked foolishly; wherefore, teach us how to speak.'

Jesus answered: 'In every good work say "God <sup>a</sup> hath wrought" and in every bad one say "I have sinned."'

'So will we do,' said the disciples to him.

Then said Jesus: 'Now what saith Israel, having seen God do by the hands of so many men that which God hath done by my hands?'

The disciples answered: 'They say that there is one God alone and that thou art God's prophet <sup>b</sup>.'

Jesus answered with joyful countenance: 'Blessed be the holy name of God <sup>c</sup>, who hath not despised the desire | of me his servant!' And when he had said this they retired to rest.

Jesus departed from the desert and entered into Jerusalem; whereupon all the people ran to the temple to see him. So after the reading of the psalms Jesus mounted up on the pinnacle where the scribe used to mount, and, having beckoned for silence with his hand, he said: 'Blessed be the holy name of God <sup>c</sup>, O brethren, who hath created us of the clay of the earth, and not of flaming spirit. For when we sin we find mercy before God <sup>c</sup>, which Satan will never find, because through his pride he is incorrigible, saying that he is always noble, for that he is flaming spirit.

'Have ye heard, brethren, that which our father David saith of our God <sup>1</sup>, that he remembereth that we are dust and that our spirit goeth and returneth not again, wherefore he hath had mercy upon us? Blessed are they that know these words, for they will not sin against their Lord eternally, seeing that after the sin they repent, wherefore their sin abideth not. Woe unto them | that <sup>136a</sup> extol themselves, for they shall be humbled to the burning coals of hell. Tell me, brethren, what is the cause for self-exaltation? cause to extol ourselves in our heart, much less doth our life give us cause; for it is burdened with many miseries, since all the creatures inferior to man fight against us. O, how many have been slain by the burning heat of summer; how many have been slain by the frost and cold of winter; how many have been slain by lightning and by hail; how many have been drowned in the sea by the fury of winds; how many have died of pestilence, of famine, or because they have been devoured of wild beasts, bitten of serpents, choked <sup>1</sup> by food! O hapless man, who extolleth himself having so much to weigh him down, being laid wait for by all the creatures in every place! But what shall I say of the flesh and the sense that desire | only iniquity; of the world, that offereth nought but sin; of the wicked, who, serving Satan, persecute whosoever would live according to the law of God? Certain it is, brethren, that if man, as saith our father David <sup>2</sup>, with his eyes should consider eternity, he would not sin.

‘To extol oneself in one’s heart is but to lock up the pity and mercy of God, that he pardon not. For our father David saith <sup>3</sup> that our God remembereth that we are but dust and that our spirit goeth and returneth not again. Whoso extolleth himself, then, denieth that he is dust, and hence, not knowing his need, he asketh not help, and so angereth God his helper <sup>a</sup>. As God liveth <sup>b</sup> in whose presence my soul standeth, God would pardon Satan if Satan should know his own misery, and ask mercy of his Creator, who is blessed for evermore.’ |

the false and lying gods; even as our father David<sup>1</sup> invoketh a curse upon them, saying: "The gods of the nations are silver and gold, the work of their hands; that have eyes and see not, have ears and hear not, have noses and smell not, have a mouth and eat not, have a tongue and speak not, have hands and touch not, have feet and walk not." Wherefore said David our father, praying our living God<sup>a</sup>, "Like unto them be<sup>2</sup> they that make them and they that trust in them."

'O pride unheard-of, this pride of man, who | being created by 137<sup>b</sup> God out of earth forgetteth his condition and would fain make God at his own pleasure! Wherein he silently mocketh God, as though he should say: "There is no use in serving God." For so do their works show. To this did Satan desire to reduce you, O brethren, in making you believe me to be God; because, I not being able to create a fly, and being passible and mortal, I can give you nothing of use, seeing that I myself have need of everything. How, then, could I help you in all things, as it is proper to God to do?

'Shall we, then, who have for our God the great God who hath created the universe with his word<sup>b</sup>, mock at the Gentiles and their gods?

There were two men<sup>3</sup> who came up here into the temple to pray: the one was a Pharisee and the other a publican. The Pharisee drew nigh to the sanctuary, and praying with his face uplifted said: "I give thee thanks, O Lord my God<sup>c</sup>, because I am not as other men, sinners, who do every wickedness, and particularly | as this publican; for I fast twice in the week and give tithes of 138<sup>a</sup> all I possess."

'The publican remained afar off, bowed down to the earth, and beating his breast he said with bent head: "Lord, I am not worthy to look upon the heaven nor upon thy sanctuary, for I have sinned much; have mercy upon me!"

'Verily I say unto you, the publican went down from the temple in better case than the Pharisee, for that our God justified him<sup>d</sup>,

'Shall the axe, perchance, boast itself<sup>1</sup> at having cut down the forest where a man hath made a garden? Nay, assuredly, for the man hath done all, yea and [made] the axe, with his hands.

'And thou, O man, shalt thou boast thyself | of having done <sup>138<sup>b</sup></sup> aught that is good, seeing our God created thee of clay<sup>b</sup> and worketh in thee all good that is wrought?'

And that the most perfect man that hath come into the world, which was Adam, it changed into a wretched being, subjecting him to what we suffer, together with all his offspring? What decree, then, hast thou, in virtue whereof thou mayest live at thine own pleasure without any fear? Woe unto thee, O clay, for because thou hast exalted thyself above God who created thee<sup>d</sup> thou shalt be abased beneath the feet of Satan who layeth wait for thee.'

And having said this, Jesus prayed, lifting up his hands to the Lord, and the people said: 'So be it! So be it!' | When he had <sup>139<sup>a</sup></sup> finished his prayer he descended from the pinnacle. Whereupon (<sup>138<sup>a</sup> bis</sup>) there were brought unto him many sick folk whom he made whole, and he departed from the temple. Thereupon Simon, a leper<sup>2</sup> whom Jesus had cleansed, invited him to eat bread.

The priests and scribes, who hated Jesus, reported to the Roman soldiers that which Jesus had said against their gods. For indeed they were seeking how to kill him, but found it not, because they feared the people.

Jesus, having entered the house of Simon<sup>3</sup>, sat down to the table. And while he was eating, behold a woman named Mary<sup>4</sup>, a public sinner, entered into the house, and flung herself upon the ground behind Jesus' feet, and washed them with her tears,

Simon answered: 'He to whom was forgiven the greater debt.'

John answered: | 'I have eaten bread in Herod's house. For 140<sup>b</sup> before I knew thee I went to fish, and used to sell the fish to the <sup>(139<sup>b</sup>)</sup> family of Herod. Whereupon, one day when he was feasting, I having brought thither a fine fish, he made me stay and eat there.'

Then said Jesus: 'Now how didst thou eat bread with infidels? God pardon thee <sup>a</sup>, O John! But tell me, how didst thou bear thyself at the board? Didst thou seek to have the most honourable place? Didst thou ask for the most delicate food? Didst thou speak when thou wast not questioned at the table? Didst thou account thyself more worthy than the others to sit at table?'

John answered: 'As God liveth <sup>b</sup>, I did not dare to lift up my eyes, seeing myself, a poor fisherman, ill-clad, sitting among the king's barons. Whereupon, when the king gave me a little piece of flesh, methought that the world had fallen upon my head, for the greatness of the favour that the king did unto me. And verily I say that, if the king had been of our Law, I | should have been 141<sup>a</sup> fain to serve him all the days of my life.' <sup>(140<sup>a</sup>)</sup>

Jesus cried out: 'Hold thy peace, John, for I fear lest God should cast us into the abyss, even like Abiram<sup>1</sup>, for our pride!'

The disciples trembled with fear at the words of Jesus; when he said again: 'Let us fear God, that He cast us not into the abyss for our pride.'

'O brethren, have ye heard of John what is done in the house of a prince? Woe to the men that come into the world, for as they live in pride they shall die in contempt and shall go into confusion.

'For this world is a house where God feasteth men, wherein have eaten all the holy ones and prophets of God. And verily I say to you, everything that a man receiveth, he receiveth it from God. Wherefore man ought to bear himself with deepest humility; knowing his own vileness and the greatness of God <sup>c</sup>, with the great bounty wherewith he nourisheth us. Therefore it is not lawful for man to say: "Ah, why is this done and this said in the world?" but rather to | account himself, as in truth he is, unworthy to stand in the world at God's board. ## CXXXII.

Jesus walking along the sea of Galilee was surrounded by a great multitude of folk, wherefore he went into a little boat<sup>1</sup> which lay a little off from the shore by itself, and anchored so near the land that the voice of Jesus might be heard. | Whereupon they all drew nigh 142<sup>a</sup> to the sea, and sitting down awaited his word. He then opened his (141<sup>b</sup>) mouth and said: ‘Behold, the sower went out to sow, whereupon as he sowed some of the seed fell upon the road, and this was trodden under foot of men and eaten up of birds; some fell upon the stones, whereupon when it sprang up, because it had no moisture, it was burnt up by the sun; some fell in the hedges, whereupon when it grew up the thorns choked the seed; and some fell on good ground, whereupon it bare fruit, even to thirty, sixty, and an hundredfold.’

Again Jesus said<sup>2</sup>: ‘Behold, the father of a family sowed good seed in his field: whereupon, as the servants of the good man slept, the enemy of the man their master came and sowed tares over the good seed. Whereupon, when the corn sprang up, there was seen sprung up among the corn a great quantity of tares. The servants came to their master and said: “O sir, didst thou not sow good seed in thy field? Wherefore then is there sprung up therein a great quantity of tares?” The master answered: “Good seed did I sow, | but while men slept the enemy of man came and sowed 142<sup>b</sup> tares over the corn.” (141<sup>b</sup>)

‘Said the servants: “Wilt thou that we go and pull up the tares from among the corn?”

Again Jesus said: 'There went forth many men to sell figs. But when they arrived at the market-place, behold, men sought not good figs but fair leaves. Therefore the men were not able to sell their figs. And seeing this, an evil citizen said: "Surely I may become rich." Whereupon he called together his two sons and [said]: "Go ye and gather a great quantity of leaves with bad figs." And these they sold for their weight in gold, for the men were mightily pleased with leaves. Whereupon the men, eating the figs, became sick with a grievous sickness.'

Again Jesus said: 'Behold | a citizen hath a fountain, from 143<sup>a</sup> which all the neighbouring citizens take water to wash off their (142<sup>a</sup>) uncleanness; but the citizen suffereth his own clothes to putrefy.'

Again Jesus said: 'There went forth two men to sell apples. The one chose to sell the peel of the apple for its weight in gold, caring nought for the substance of the apples. The other desired to give the apples away, receiving only a little bread for his journey. But men bought the peel of the apples for its weight in gold, caring nought for him who was fain to give them, nay even despising him.'

And thus on that day Jesus spake to the crowd in parables. Then having dismissed them, he went with his disciples to Nain, where he had raised to life the widow's son; who, with his mother, received him into his house and ministered unto him.

His disciples drew nigh to Jesus and asked him<sup>1</sup>, saying: 'O Master, tell us the meaning of the parables which thou spakest unto the people.'

Jesus answered: | 'The hour of prayer draweth nigh; wherefore 143<sup>b</sup> when the evening prayer<sup>2</sup> is ended I will tell you the meaning of (142<sup>b</sup>) the parables.'

upon the stones, upon the thorns, upon the good ground, is he who teacheth the word of God, which falleth upon a great number of men.

‘It falleth upon the road when it cometh to the ears of sailors and merchants, who by reason of the long journeys which they make, and the variety of nations with whom they have dealings, have the word of God removed from their memory by Satan. It falleth upon the stones when it cometh to the ears of courtiers, for by reason of the great anxiety these have to serve the body of a prince the word of God doth not sink into them. Wherefore, albeit they have some memory thereof, as soon as they have any tribulation the word of God goeth out of their memory: for, seeing they serve not God <sup>a</sup>, they cannot hope for help from God <sup>b</sup>.

‘It falleth among the thorns | when it cometh to the ears of them 144<sup>a</sup> that love their own life, whereupon, though the word of God grow upon them, when carnal desires grow up they choke the good seed of the word of God, for carnal comforts cause [men] to forsake the word of God. That which falleth on good ground is when the word of God cometh to the ears of him who feareth God, whereupon it bringeth forth fruit of eternal life. Verily I say unto you, that in every condition when man feareth God the word of God will bear fruit in him.

‘Of that father of a family<sup>1</sup>, I tell you verily that he is God our Lord; father of all things, for that he hath created all things. But he is not a father after the manner of nature, for that he is incapable of motion, without which generation is impossible. It is, then, our God <sup>c</sup>, whose is this world; and the field where he soweth is mankind, and the seed is the word of God. So when the teachers are negligent | in preaching the word of God, through being occupied in the business of the world, Satan soweth error in <sup>(143<sup>b</sup>)</sup> the heart of men, whence are come countless sects of wicked doctrine.

‘The holy ones and prophets cry: “O sir, gavest thou not, then, good doctrine to men? Wherefore, then, be there so many errors?”

‘They that bear good figs are the true teachers who preach good doctrine, but the world, which taketh pleasure in lies, seeketh from the teachers leaves of fine words and flattery. The which seeing, Satan joineth himself with the flesh and the sense, and bringeth a large supply of leaves; that is, a quantity of earthly things, in which he covereth up sin; the which receiving, man becometh sick and ready for eternal death.

‘The citizen who hath the water and giveth his water to others to wash off their uncleanness, but suffereth his own garments to become putrefied, is the teacher who to others preacheth penitence and himself abideth still in sin.

Then answered he who writeth | and said: ‘How should one <sup>146a</sup> listen to the word of God, and how should one know him that <sup>(145<sup>a</sup>)</sup> preacheth for love of God?’

Jesus answered: ‘He that preacheth should be listened to as though God were speaking, when he preacheth good doctrine; because God is speaking through his mouth. But he that reproveth not sins, having respect of persons, flattering particular men, should be avoided as an horrible serpent, for in truth he poisoneth the human heart.

‘Understand ye? Verily I say unto you, even as a wounded man hath no need of fine bandages to bind up his wounds, but rather of a good ointment, so also hath a sinner no need of fine words, but rather of good reproofs, in order that he may cease to sin.’

Then said Peter: ‘O Master, tell us how the lost shall be tormented, and how long they shall be in hell, | in order that man <sup>146b</sup> may flee from sin.’ (145<sup>b</sup>)

Jesus answered: ‘O Peter, it is a great thing that thou hast asked, nevertheless, if God please, I will answer thee. Know ye, therefore, that hell is one<sup>1</sup>, yet hath seven centres one below another. Hence, even as sin is of seven kinds, for as seven gates of hell hath Satan generated it: so are there seven punishments therein.

whose body is all girt with barbed hooks like those wherewith they catch the silly fish, whose | claws are those of gryphons, whose 148<sup>a</sup> nails are razors, the nature of whose generative organs is fire. Now with these shall all the lustful enjoy the infernal embers which shall be their bed.

<sup>a</sup> 'To the third centre shall go down the slothful who will not work now. Here are built cities and immense palaces, which as soon as they are finished must needs be pulled down straightway, because a single stone is not placed aright. And these enormous stones are laid upon the shoulders of the slothful, who hath not his hands free to cool his body as he walketh and to ease the burden, seeing that sloth hath taken away the power of his arms, and his legs are fettered with infernal serpents.

'And, what is worse, behind him are the demons, who push him, and make him fall to earth many times beneath the weight; nor doth any help him to lift it up: nay, it being too much to lift, a double amount is laid upon him.

<sup>b</sup> 'To the second centre shall go down the gluttonous. Now here there is dearth of food, to such a degree | that there shall be 148<sup>b</sup> nought to eat but live scorpions and live serpents, which give such torment that it would be better never to have been born than to eat such food. There are offered to them indeed by the demons, in appearance, delicate meats; but for that they have their hands and feet bound with fetters of fire, they cannot put out a hand on the occasion when the meat appeareth to them. But what is worse, those very scorpions which he eateth that they may devour his belly, not being able to come forth speedily, rend the secret parts of the glutton. And when they are come forth foul and unclean, filthy as they are, they are eaten over again.

'The wrathful goeth down to the first centre, where he is insulted by all the devils and by as many of the damned as go down lower than he. They spurn him and smite him, making him lie down upon the road where they pass, planting their feet upon his throat. Yet is he not able to defend himself, for that he hath his hands and feet bound. And what is worse, he is not able to give vent to his wrath by | insulting others, seeing that his tongue 149<sup>a</sup> is fastened by a hook, like that which he useth who selleth flesh.

* 'In this accursed place shall there be a general punishment, common to all the centres, like the mixture of various grains to make a loaf. For fire, ice, thunderstorms, lightning, sulphur, heat, cold, wind, frenzy, terror, shall all be united by the justice of God, and in such wise that the cold shall not temper the heat nor the fire the ice, but each shall give torment to the wretched sinner.

° 'In this accursed spot shall abide the infidels for evermore: insomuch that if the world were filled with grains of millet, and a single bird once in a hundred years should take away a single grain to empty the world—if when it should be empty the infidels were to go into paradise, they would rest delighted. But there is not | this hope, because their torment cannot have an end, seeing: that they were not willing for the love of God to put an end to (148<sup>b</sup>) their sin.

'But the faithful shall have comfort, because their torment shall have an end.'

The disciples were affrighted, hearing this, and said: 'So then the faithful must go into hell?'<sup>1</sup>

Jesus answered: 'Every one, be he who he may, must go into hell. It is true, however, that the holy ones and prophets of God shall go there to behold, not suffering any punishment; and the righteous, only suffering fear. And what shall I say? I tell you that thither shall come [even] the messenger of God<sup>d</sup>, to behold the justice of God<sup>e</sup>. Thereupon hell shall tremble at his presence. And because he hath human flesh, all those that have human flesh and shall be under punishment, so long as the messenger of God<sup>d</sup> shall abide to behold hell, so long shall they abide without punishment. But he shall abide there [only] so long as it taketh to shut and open the eyes. |

'And this shall God do in order that every creature may know 150<sup>a</sup> that he hath received benefit from the messenger of God<sup>d</sup>. (149<sup>a</sup>)

When morning was come, early, all the men of the city, with the women and children, came to the house where Jesus was with his disciples, and besought him saying: 'Sir<sup>1</sup>, have mercy upon us, because this year the worms have eaten the corn, and we shall not receive any bread this year in our land.'

Jesus answered: 'Oh what fear is yours! Know ye not that Elijah, the servant of God, whilst for three years the persecution of Ahab continued, saw not bread, nourishing himself only with herbs and wild fruits<sup>b</sup>? David our father, the prophet of God, for two years ate wild fruits and herbs, being persecuted of Saul, insomuch that twice only did he eat bread.'

The men answered: 'Sir<sup>1</sup>, they were prophets of God, nourished with spiritual delight, and therefore they endured well; but how | shall these little ones fare?' and they showed him the multitude<sup>151<sup>b</sup> (150<sup>b</sup>)</sup> of their children. Then Jesus had compassion on their misery, and said: 'How long is it until harvest?' They answered: 'Twenty days.'

Then said Jesus: 'See that for these twenty days we give ourselves to fasting and prayer; for God will have mercy upon you<sup>c</sup>. Verily I say unto you, God hath caused this dearth because here began the madness of men and the sin of Israel when they said that I was God, or Son of God.'

When they had fasted for nineteen days, on the morning of the twentieth day, they beheld the fields and hills covered with ripe corn. Thereupon they ran to Jesus, and recounted all to him. And when he had heard it Jesus gave thanks to God, and said: 'Go, brethren, gather the bread which God hath given you <sup>a</sup>.' The men gathered so much corn that they knew not where to store it; and this thing was cause of plenty in Israel.

The citizens took council to set up Jesus as their king; knowing which | he fled from them. Wherefore the disciples strove fifteen <sup>152<sup>a</sup></sup> days to find him. (151<sup>a</sup>)

CXXXIX.

Jesus was found by him who writeth, and by James with John. And they, weeping, said: 'O Master, wherefore didst thou flee from us? We have sought thee mourning; yea, all the disciples seek thee weeping.' Jesus answered: 'I fled because I knew that a host of devils is preparing for me that which in a short time ye shall see. For, there shall rise against me the chief priests with the elders of the people, and shall wrest authority to kill me from the Roman governor, because they shall fear that I wish to usurp kingship over Israel. Moreover, I shall be sold and betrayed by one of my disciples, as Joseph was sold into Egypt. But the just God shall make him fall <sup>b</sup>, as saith the prophet David <sup>1</sup>: "He shall make him fall into the pit who spreadeth a snare for his neighbour." For God shall save me <sup>c</sup> from their hands, and | shall take me out <sup>152<sup>b</sup></sup> of the world <sup>2</sup>.' (151<sup>b</sup>)

The three disciples were afraid; but Jesus comforted them saying: 'Be not afraid, for none of you shall betray me.' Whereat they received somewhat of consolation.

The day following there came, two by two, thirty-six of Jesus' disciples; and he abode in Damascus awaiting the others. And they mourned every one, for that they knew that Jesus must depart from the world. Wherefore he opened his mouth and said: 'Unhappy of a surety is he who walketh without knowing whither he goeth; but more unhappy is he who is able and knoweth how to reach a good hostelry, yet desireth and willeth to abide on the miry road, in the rain, and in peril of robbers. man was cast out into the world as to exile; and therein he suffereth the punishment of his error. Shall there perchance be found an exile who aspieth not to return to his own rich country when he findeth himself in poverty? Assuredly reason denieth it, but experience proveth it, because the | lovers of the world will not 153<sup>a</sup> think upon death; nay, when one speaketh to them thereof, they will not hearken to his speech.

‘Believe ye, O men, that I am come into the world with a privilege which no man hath had, nor will even the messenger of God<sup>b</sup> have it; seeing that our God created<sup>c</sup> not man to set him in the world, but rather to place him in paradise.

‘Sure it is that he who hath no hope to receive aught of the Romans, because they are of a law that is foreign to him, is not willing to leave his own country with all that he hath, never to return, and go to live in Rome. And much less would he do so when he found himself to have offended Caesar. Even so I tell you verily, and Solomon<sup>1</sup>, God’s prophet, crieth with me: “O death, how bitter is the remembrance of thee to them that have rest in their riches!” I say not this because I have to die | now: seeing that I am sure that I shall live even nigh to the end of the world<sup>2</sup>.

‘But I will speak to you of this in order that ye may learn to die.

‘As God liveth<sup>d</sup>, everything that is done amiss, even once<sup>3</sup>, sheweth that to work a thing well it is necessary to exercise oneself therein.

‘Have ye seen the soldiers, how in time of peace they exercise themselves with one another as if they were at war? But how shall that man die a good death, who hath not learned to die well?

“Precious is the death of the holy in the sight of the Lord,” said the prophet David<sup>4</sup>. Know ye wherefore? I will tell you; it is because, even as all rare things are precious, so the death of them that die well, being rare, is precious in the sight of God our creator<sup>e</sup>.

‘Of a surety, whenever a man beginneth aught, not only is he fain to finish the same, but he taketh pains that his design may have a good conclusion.

‘O miserable man, that prizeth his hosen more than himself; for when he cutteth the cloth he measureth it carefully | before he <sup>154<sup>a</sup></sup> cutteth it; and when it is cut he seweth it with care. But his life—which is born to die, insomuch that he alone dieth not who is not born—wherefore will not men measure their life by death?

‘Have ye seen them that build, how for every stone that they lay they have the foundation in view, measuring if it be straight, that the wall fall not down? O wretched man! for with greatest ruin shall fall the building of his life, because he looketh not to the foundation of death!

‘Tell me: when a man is born, how is he born? Surely, he is born naked. And when he is laid dead beneath the ground, what advantage hath he? A mean linen cloth, wherein he is wound: and this is the reward which the world giveth him.

‘Now if the means in every work must needs be proportionate to the beginning and the end, in order that the work be brought to a good end, | what end shall the man have who desireth earthly riches? He shall die, as saith David<sup>1</sup>, prophet of God: “The <sup>(153<sup>b</sup>)</sup> sinner shall die a most evil death<sup>b</sup>.”

‘If a man sewing cloth should thread beams instead of thread in the needle, how would the work attain [its end]? Of a surety he would work in vain, and be despised of his neighbours. Now man seeth not that he is doing this continually when he gathereth earthly goods. For death is the needle, wherein the beams of earthly goods cannot be threaded. Nevertheless in his madness he striveth continually to make the work succeed, but in vain.

‘And whoso believeth not this at my word, let him gaze upon the tombs, for there shall he find the truth. He who would fain become wise beyond all others in the fear of God, let him study the book of the tomb, for there shall he find the true doctrine for his salvation. For he will know to beware of the world, the flesh,

‘Even so is it true,’ answered the disciples.

Then Jesus wept and said: ‘Even so, verily, are the lovers of the world. For if they lived according to reason, which holdeth a middle place in man, they would follow the law of God, and would be saved from eternal death. But because they follow the flesh and the world they are frenzied, and cruel enemies of their own selves, striving to live more arrogantly and more lasciviously than one another.’

Judas, the traitor, when he saw that Jesus was fled, lost the hope of becoming powerful in the world, | for he carried Jesus’ 155<sup>b</sup> purse, wherein was kept all that was given him for love of God. <sup>(154<sup>b</sup>)</sup> He hoped that Jesus would become king of Israel, and so he himself would be a powerful man. Wherefore, having lost this hope, he said within himself: ‘If this man were a prophet, he would know that I steal his money; and so he would lose patience and cast me out of his service, knowing that I believe not in him. And if he were a wise man he would not flee from the honour that God willeth to give him. Wherefore it will be better that I make arrangement with the chief priests and with the scribes and Pharisees, and see how to give him up into their hands, for so shall I be able to obtain something good.’ Whereupon, having made his resolution, he gave notice to the scribes and Pharisees how the matter had passed in Nain. And they took counsel with the high priest, saying: ‘What shall we do if this man become king? Of a surety we shall fare badly; because he is fain to reform the worship of God after the ancient custom, for he cannot away with our traditions. Now how shall we fare under the sovereignty of such a man? Surely we shall all perish | with our children: 156<sup>a</sup> for being cast out of our office we shall have to beg our (155<sup>a</sup>) bread.

'We now, praised be God, have a king and a governor that are alien to our law, who care not for our law, even as we care not for theirs. And so we are able to do whatsoever we list; for, even though we sin, our God is so merciful <sup>a</sup> that He is appeased with sacrifice and fasting. But if this man become king he will not be appeased unless he shall see the worship of God according as Moses wrote; and what is worse, he saith that the Messiah <sup>b</sup> shall not come of the seed of David (as one of his chief disciples hath told us), but saith that he shall come of the seed of Ishmael <sup>1</sup>, and that the promise was made in Ishmael and not in Isaac.

'What then shall the fruit be if this man be suffered to live? Assuredly the Ishmaelites shall come into repute with the Romans, and they shall give them our country in possession; and so shall Israel again be subjected to slavery as it was aforetime.' Wherefore, having heard the proposal, the | high priest gave answer that he 156<sup>b</sup> must needs treat with Herod and with the governor, 'because the (155<sup>b</sup>) people are so inclined towards him that without the soldiery we shall not be able to do anything; and may it please God that with the soldiery we may accomplish this business.'

Wherefore, having taken counsel among themselves, they plotted to seize him by night, when the governor and Herod should agree thereto.

Then came all the disciples to Damascus, by the will of God. And on that day Judas the traitor, more than any other, made show of having suffered grief at Jesus' absence. Wherefore Jesus said: 'Let every one beware of him who without occasion laboureth to give thee tokens of love'.

And God took away our understanding, that we might not know to what end he said this.

After the coming of all the disciples, Jesus said : ' Let us return into Galilee, for thus hath the angel of God said unto me, that I needs must go thither.' Whereupon, one sabbath morning, Jesus came to | Nazareth. When the citizens recognized Jesus, <sup>157<sup>a</sup></sup> everyone desired to see him. Whereupon a publican, by name <sup>(156<sup>a</sup>)</sup> Zacchaeus<sup>1</sup>, who was of small stature, not being able to see Jesus by reason of the great multitude, climbed to the top of a sycamore, and there waited for Jesus to pass that place when he went to the synagogue. Jesus then, having come to that place, lifted up his eyes and said : ' Come down, Zacchaeus, for to-day I will abide in thy house.'

The man came down and received him with gladness, making a splendid feast.

The Pharisees murmured, saying to Jesus' disciples : ' Wherefore is your master gone in to eat with publicans and sinners ?'

Jesus answered : ' For what cause doth the physician<sup>2</sup> [enter] into an house ? Tell me, and I will tell you<sup>3</sup> wherefore I am come in hither.'

They answered : ' To heal the sick.'

' Ye say the truth,' said Jesus, ' for the whole have no need of medicine, only the sick.' |

he abideth until the judgement (for when the end of the world draweth nigh he shall return to the world with Elijah and one other<sup>a</sup>). And so men, having knowledge of this, through desire of paradise, began to seek God their creator<sup>b</sup>. For "Pharisee" strictly meaneth "seeketh God" in the language of Canaan, for there | did this name begin by way of deriding good men, seeing 158<sup>a</sup> that the Canaanites were given up to idolatry, which is the worship of human hands.

'Whereupon the Canaanites beholding those of our people that were separated from the world to serve God, in derision when they saw such an one, said "Pharisee<sup>c</sup>!" that is, "He seeketh God"; as much as to say: "O mad fellow, thou hast no statues of idols and adorest the wind; wherefore look to thy fate and come and serve our gods."

'Verily I say unto you,' said Jesus, 'all the saints and prophets of God have been Pharisees not in name, as you are, but in very deed. For in all their acts they sought God their creator<sup>d</sup>, and for love of God they forsook cities and their own goods, selling these and giving to the poor for love of God.'

'As God liveth<sup>f</sup>, in the time of Elijah, friend and prophet of God, there were twelve mountains inhabited by seventeen thousand Pharisees; and so it was that in so great a number there was not found a single reprobate, but all were | elect of God. But now, 158<sup>b</sup> when Israel hath more than a hundred thousand Pharisees, may it (157<sup>b</sup>) please God that out of every thousand there be one elect!'

Jesus answered: 'I hold not in reprobation but in approbation the religion of true Pharisees, and for that I am ready to die. But come, let us see if ye be Pharisees. Hearing this, the Pharisees departed in indignation. Then said Jesus to them that were converted to repentance, and to his disciples: 'There was a father <sup>3</sup> who had two sons, and the younger said: "Father, give me my portion of goods"; and his father gave it him. And he, having received his portion, departed and went into a far country, whereupon he wasted all his substance with harlots, living luxuriously. | After this there arose a mighty <sup>160<sup>b</sup></sup> famine in that country, insomuch that the wretched man went to <sup>(159<sup>b</sup>)</sup> serve a citizen, who set him to feed swine in his property. And while feeding them he assuaged his hunger in company with the swine, eating acorns. But when he came to himself he said: "Oh, how many in my father's house have abundance in feasting, and I perish here with hunger! I will arise, therefore, and will go to my father, and will say unto him: Father, I have sinned in heaven <sup>4</sup> against thee; do with me as thou doest unto one of thy servants."

'The poor man went, whereupon it came to pass that his father saw him coming from afar off, and was moved to compassion over him. So he went forth to meet him, and having come up to him he embraced him and kissed him.

'The son bowed himself down, saying: "Father, I have sinned in heaven against thee, do unto me as unto one of thy servants, for I am not worthy to be called thy son."

'The father answered: "Son, say not so, for thou art my son, and I will not suffer thee to be | in the condition of my slave." <sup>161<sup>a</sup></sup> And he called his servants and said: "Bring hither new robes (<sup>160<sup>a</sup></sup>) and clothe this my son, and give him new hosen; give him the ring on his finger, and straightway kill the fatted calf and we will make merry. For this my son was dead and is now come to life again, he was lost and now is found."

CXLVII.

'While they were making merry in the house<sup>1</sup>, behold the elder son came home, and he, hearing that they were making merry within, marvelled; and having called one of the servants, he asked him wherefore they were in such wise making merry.

'The servant answered him: "Thy brother is come and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, and they are feasting." The elder son was greatly angered when he heard this, and would not go into the house. Therefore came his father out to him and said to him: "Son, thy brother is come, come thou therefore and rejoice with him."

'The son answered with indignation: "I have ever | served <sup>161<sup>b</sup></sup> thee with good service, and yet thou never gavest me a lamb to (<sup>160<sup>b</sup></sup>) eat with my friends. But as for this worthless fellow that departed from thee, wasting all his portion with harlots, now that he is come thou hast killed the fatted calf."

'The father answered: "Son, thou art ever with me and everything is thine; but this one was dead and is alive again, was lost and now is found, therefore we needs must rejoice."

'The elder son was the more angry, and said: "Go thou and triumph, for I will not eat at the table of fornicators." And he departed from his father without receiving even a piece of money.

'As God liveth,' said Jesus, 'even so<sup>2</sup> is there rejoicing among the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.'

And when they had eaten he departed, for that he was fain to 'Tell me now: the Pharisees of to-day—are they Pharisees? Are they servants of God? Assuredly not. Yea, and I say unto you verily, that there is no worse thing here upon earth than this, that a man cover himself with profession and garb of religion to cover his wickedness. I will tell you one single example of the Pharisees of old time, in order that ye may know the present ones. After the departure of Elijah, by reason of the great persecution by idolaters, that holy congregation of Pharisees was dispersed. For in that same time of Elijah there were slain in one year more than ten thousand prophets<sup>1</sup> that were true Pharisees<sup>b</sup>.

'Two Pharisees went into the mountains to dwell there; and the one abode fifteen years knowing nought of his neighbour, although they were but one hour's journey apart. See, then, if they were inquisitive! It came to pass that there arose a drought in those mountains, and thereupon both set themselves to search | for water, and so they found each other. Whereupon the more <sup>162<sup>b</sup></sup> aged said (for it was their custom that the eldest should speak <sup>(161<sup>b</sup>)</sup> before every other, and they held it a great sin for a young man to speak before an old one)—the elder, therefore, said: "Where dwellest thou, brother?"

'He answered, pointing out the dwelling with his finger: "Here I dwell"; for they were nigh to the dwelling of the younger.

'Said the elder: "How long is it, brother, that thou hast dwelt here?"

'The younger answered: "Fifteen years."

'Said the elder: "Perchance thou camest when Ahab slew the servants of God?"

"Even so," replied the younger.

'Said the elder: "O brother, knowest thou who is now king of Israel?"

‘The younger answered: “It is God that is King of Israel, for the idolaters are not kings but persecutors of Israel.”

“It is true,” said the elder, “but I meant to say, who is it that now persecuteth Israel?”

‘The younger answered: “The sins of Israel persecute Israel, because, if they had not sinned, [God] would not have raised up against Israel the idolatrous princes.”

‘Then said the elder: “Who is that infidel prince | whom God <sup>163a</sup> hath sent<sup>a</sup> for the chastisement of Israel?” (162<sup>a</sup>)

‘The younger answered: “Now how should I know, seeing these fifteen years I have seen no man save thee, and I know not how to read, wherefore no letters be sent unto me?”

‘Said the elder: “Now, how new thy sheepskins be! Who hath given them to thee, if thou hast not seen any man?”

CXLIX.

‘The younger answered: “He who kept good the raiment of the people of Israel for forty years in the wilderness<sup>1</sup> hath kept my skins even as thou seest.”

‘Then the elder perceived that the younger was more perfect than he, for he had every year had dealings with men. Whereupon, in order that he might have [the benefit of] his conversation, he said: “Brother, thou knowest not how to read, and I know how to read, and I have in my house the psalms of David. Come, then, that I may each day give thee a reading and make plain to thee what David saith.”

‘The younger answered: “Let us go now.”

‘Said the elder: “O brother, it is now two days since I have drunk water; let us therefore seek | a little water.” 163<sup>b</sup>

‘The younger answered: “O brother, in humility sayest thou this; but certain it is that if God had done this for my sake he would have made a spring close to my dwelling, that I should not depart

'Then said the elder: "O brother, thou saidst the truth, therefore thou didst not sin."

'Said the younger: "O brother, thou hast forgotten what our father Elijah said, that he who seeketh God ought to condemn himself alone<sup>2</sup>. Assuredly he wrote it not that we might know it, but rather that we might observe it."

'Said the more | aged, perceiving the truth and righteousness of 164<sup>a</sup> his companion: "It is true; and our God hath pardoned thee<sup>a</sup>." (163<sup>a</sup>)

'And having said this he took the Psalms, and read that which our father David<sup>3</sup> saith: "I will set a watch over my mouth that my tongue decline not to words of iniquity, excusing with excuse my sins<sup>4</sup>." And here the aged man made a discourse upon the tongue, and the younger departed. Whereupon they were fifteen years more ere they found one another, because the younger changed his dwelling.

'Accordingly, when he had found him again, the elder said: "O brother, wherefore returnedst thou not to my dwelling?"

'The younger answered: "Because I have not yet learned well what thou saidst to me."

'Then said the elder: "How can this be, seeing fifteen years are past?"

'The younger replied: "As for the words, I learned them in a single hour and have never forgotten them; but I have not yet observed them. To what purpose is it, then, to learn too much, and not to observe it? Our God seeketh not that our intellect should be good, but rather our heart. So, on the day of judgement, he will not ask us what we have learned, | but what we have 164<sup>b</sup> done." (163<sup>b</sup>)

'The elder answered: "O brother, say not so, for thou despisest knowledge, which our God willeth to be prized."

that they who know the commandments of God written in the Law ought to observe those [first] if they would afterwards learn more. And all that a man learneth, let it be to observe it, and not [merely] to know it."

'Said the elder: "O brother, tell me, with whom hast thou spoken, that thou knowest thou hast not learned all that I said?"

'The younger answered: "O brother, I speak with myself. Every day I place myself before the judgement of God<sup>a</sup>, to give account of myself. And ever do I feel within myself one that excuseth my faults."

'Said the elder: "O brother, what faults hast thou, who art perfect?"

'The younger answered: "O brother, say not so, for that | I stand between two great faults: the one is that I do not know <sup>165a</sup> myself to be the greatest of sinners, the other that I do not desire <sup>(164<sup>a</sup>)</sup> to do penance for it more than other men."

'The elder answered: "Now, how shouldst thou know thyself to be the greatest of sinners, if thou art the most perfect [of men]?"

'The younger replied: "The first word that my master said to me when I took the habit of a Pharisee was this: that I ought to consider the goodness of others and mine own iniquity, for if I should do so I should perceive myself to be the greatest of sinners."

'Said the elder: "O brother, whose goodness or whose faults considerest thou on these mountains, seeing there are no men here?"

'The younger answered: "I ought to consider the obedience of the sun and the planets, for they serve their Creator better than I. But them I condemn, either because they give not light as I desire, or because their heat is too great, or there is too much or too little rain upon the ground."

'Whereupon, hearing this, the elder said: "Brother, where hast thou learned this doctrine, for I am now ninety years old, for seventy-five years whereof I have been | a Pharisee?" <sup>165b</sup>

'The younger answered: "O brother, thou sayest this in humility, <sup>(164<sup>a</sup>)</sup> for thou art a holy one of God. ‘This man was a true Pharisee,’ said Jesus to his disciples; ‘and may it please God that we be able on the day of judgement to have him for our friend.’

Jesus then embarked on a ship, and the disciples<sup>1</sup> were sorry that they had forgotten to bring bread. Jesus rebuked them, saying: ‘Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees of our day, for a little leaven<sup>2</sup> marreth a mass of meal.’

Then said the disciples one to another: ‘Now what leaven have we, if we have not even any bread?’

Then said Jesus: ‘O men of little faith, have ye then forgotten | what God<sup>b</sup> wrought in Nain<sup>3</sup>, where there was no sign of corn? 166<sup>a</sup> And how many ate and were satisfied with five loaves and two <sup>(165<sup>a</sup>)</sup> fishes? <sup>4</sup> The leaven of the Pharisee is want of faith in God, and thought of self, which hath corrupted not only the Pharisees of this day, but hath corrupted Israel. For the simple folk, not knowing how to read, do that which they see the Pharisees do, because they hold them for holy ones.

‘Know ye what is the true Pharisee? He is the oil of human nature. For even as oil resteth at the top of every liquor, so the goodness of the true Pharisee resteth at the top of all human goodness. He is a living book, which God giveth to the world<sup>c</sup>; for everything that he saith and doeth is according to the law of God. Wherefore, whoso doeth as he doeth observeth the law of God. The true Pharisee is salt<sup>d</sup> that suffereth not human flesh to be putrefied by sin; for every one who seeth him is brought to repentance. He is a light<sup>e</sup> that lighteneth the pilgrims’ way, | for every one that considereth his poverty with his penitence 166<sup>b</sup> perceiveth that in this world we ought not to shut up our heart.

‘But he that maketh the oil rancid, corrupteth the book, putrefieth the salt, extinguisheth the light—this man is a false Pharisee. If, therefore, ye would not perish, beware that ye do not as do the Pharisees to-day<sup>d</sup>.’

Jesus having come to Jerusalem, and having entered one sabbath day into the Temple, the soldiers drew nigh to tempt him and take him, and they said: 'Master, is it lawful to wage war?'

Jesus answered: 'Our faith telleth us<sup>1</sup> that our life is a continual warfare upon the earth.'

Said the soldiers: 'So wouldst thou fain convert us to thy faith, and wouldst that we should forsake the multitude of gods (for Rome alone hath twenty-eight thousand gods that are seen) and should follow thy God who is one only, and for that he cannot be seen, it is not known where | he is, and perchance he is but 167<sup>a</sup> (166<sup>a</sup>).'

Jesus answered: 'If I had created you, as our God hath created you<sup>b</sup>, I would seek to convert you.'

They answered: 'Now how hath thy God created us, seeing it is not known where he is? Show us thy God, and we will become Jews.'

Then said Jesus: 'If ye had eyes to see him I would show him to you, but since ye are blind, I cannot show you him.'

The soldiers answered: 'Of a surety, the honour which this people payeth thee must have taken away thine understanding. For every one of us hath two eyes in his head, and thou sayest we are blind.'

Jesus answered: 'The carnal eyes can only see things gross and external: ye therefore will only be able to see your gods of wood and silver and gold that cannot do anything. But we of Judah have spiritual eyes, which are the fear and the faith of our God, wherefore we can see our God in every place<sup>c</sup>.'

The soldiers answered: 'Beware how | thou speakest, for an thou 167<sup>b</sup> pour contempt on our gods we will give thee into the hand of (166<sup>b</sup>) Herod, who will take vengeance for our gods, who are omnipotent.'

Jesus answered: 'If they are omnipotent as ye say, pardon me, for I will worship them.'

The soldiers rejoiced at hearing this, and began to extol their idols.

Then said Jesus: 'Herein is not need of words but of deeds; cause therefore that your gods create one fly, and I will worship them.'

The soldiers were dismayed at hearing this, and wist not what to say, wherefore Jesus said :

‘Assuredly, seeing they make not a single fly afresh, I will not for them forsake that God who hath created everything with a single word <sup>a</sup>; whose name alone affrighteth armies.’

The soldiers answered : ‘Now let us see this ; for we are fain to take thee,’ and they were fain to stretch forth their hands against Jesus.

The priests and Pharisees murmured among themselves and said : ‘He hath the wisdom of Baal and Ashtaroth, and so in the power of Satan hath he done this <sup>1</sup>.’

Jesus opened his mouth and said : ‘Our God commanded that we should not steal our neighbour’s goods <sup>2</sup>. But this single precept hath been so violated and abused that it hath filled the world with sin, and such [sin] as shall never be remitted <sup>3</sup> as other sins are remitted : seeing that for every other sin, if a man bewail it and commit it no more, and fast with prayer and almsgiving, our God, mighty and merciful, forgiveth <sup>e f g</sup>. Then said a scribe : ‘O master, how hath robbery filled all the world with sin ? Assuredly now, by the grace of God <sup>h</sup>, there are but few robbers, and they cannot show themselves but they are immediately hanged by the soldiery.’

Jesus answered : ‘Whoso knoweth not the goods, they (sic) can-

Then the Pharisees drew near to Jesus and said: 'O master, since thou alone in Israel knowest the truth, teach thou us.'

Jesus answered: 'I say not that I alone in Israel know the truth, for this word "alone" appertaineth to God alone and not to others. For he is the truth, who alone knoweth the truth<sup>a,b</sup>. 'The man, therefore, who hath honour, and life, and goods—when his possessions are stolen, the robber shall be hanged; when his life is taken, the murderer shall be beheaded. And this is just, for God hath so commanded. But when a neighbour's honour is taken away, why is not the robber crucified? Are goods, forsooth, better than honour? Hath God, forsooth, commanded that he who taketh goods shall be punished and he that taketh life with goods shall be punished, but he that taketh away honour shall go free? Surely not; | for by reason of their murmuring our fathers <sup>170<sup>a</sup></sup> entered not into the land of promise<sup>1</sup>, but only their children. He answered: 'I am he—and wherefore?'

They said: 'Now how didst thou receive thy sight?'

He answered: 'A man made clay, spitting on the ground, and this clay he placed upon mine eyes and said to me: "Go and wash thee in the pool of Siloam." I went and washed, and now I see: blessed be the God of Israel!'

When the man born blind was come again to the beautiful gate of the temple, all Jerusalem was filled with the matter. Wherefore he was brought unto the chief of the priests, who was conferring with the priests and the Pharisees against Jesus.

The high-priest asked him, saying: 'Man, wast thou born blind?'

'Yea,' he replied.

'Now give glory to God,' said the high-priest, 'and tell us what prophet hath appeared to thee in a dream and given thee light. Was it our father Abraham, or Moses the servant of God, or some other prophet? For others could not do such a thing.'

The man born blind replied: | 'Neither Abraham nor Moses, nor 173<sup>a</sup> any prophet have I seen in a dream and been healed by him, but as I sat at the gate of the temple a man made me come near to him and, having made clay of earth with his spittle, put some of that clay upon mine eyes and sent me to the pool of Siloam to wash; whereupon I went, and washed me, and returned with the light of mine eyes.'

The high-priest asked him the name of that man.

The man born blind answered: 'He told me not his name, but a man who saw him called me and said: "Go and wash thee as that man hath said, for he is Jesus the Nazarene, a prophet and an holy one of the God of Israel."'

Then said the high-priest: 'Did he heal thee perchance to-day, that is, the Sabbath?'

The blind man answered: 'To-day he healed me.'

Said the high-priest: 'Behold now, how that this fellow is a sinner, seeing he keepeth not the Sabbath!'

The Pharisees did not believe this; so they said to the high-priest: | 'Send for his father and mother, for they will tell us the <sup>173b</sup> truth.' They sent, therefore, for the father and mother of the <sup>(172b)</sup> blind man, and when they were come the high-priest questioned them saying: 'Is this man your son?'

They answered: 'He is verily our son.'

Then said the high-priest: 'He saith that he was born blind, and now he seeth; how hath this thing befallen?'

The father and mother of the man born blind replied: 'Verily he was born blind, but how he may have received the light, we know not; he is of age, ask him and he will tell you the truth.'

Thereupon they were dismissed, and the high-priest said again to the man born blind: 'Give glory to God, and speak the truth.'

(Now the father and mother of the blind man were afraid to speak, because a decree had gone forth from the Roman senate that no man might contend for Jesus, the prophet of the Jews, under pain of death: this decree had the governor obtained—wherefore they said: 'He is of age, ask him.')

The high priest, then, said to the man born blind: 'Give glory to God and speak the truth, for we know this man, whom thou sayest to have healed thee, that he is a sinner.'

The man born blind answered: | 'Whether he be a sinner, <sup>174a</sup> I know not; but this I know, that I saw not and he hath en- <sup>(173a)</sup>lightened me. Of a surety, from the beginning of the world to this hour, there hath never yet been enlightened one who was born blind; and God would not hearken to sinners<sup>a</sup>.'

Said the Pharisees: 'Now what did he when he enlightened thee?'

Then the man born blind marvelled at their unbelief, and said: 'I have told you, and wherefore ask ye me again? Would ye also become his disciples?'

The high-priest then reviled him saying: 'Thou wast altogether born in sin, and wouldst thou teach us? Begone, and become thou disciple of such a man! for we are disciples of Moses, and we know that God hath spoken to Moses, but as for this man, we know not whence he is.' And they cast him out of the synagogue and temple, forbidding him to make prayer with the clean among Israel.

For earth is not so contrary to air, water to fire, light to darkness, cold to heat, or love to hate, as is the will that God hath contrary to the will of the world.'

The disciples accordingly asked him, saying: 'Lord, great are thy words; tell us, therefore, the meaning, for as yet we understand not.'

Jesus answered: 'When ye shall know the world, ye shall see that I have spoken the truth, and so shall ye know the truth in every prophet.

'Know ye, then, that there be three kinds of worlds comprehended in a single name: the one standeth for the heavens and the earth, with water, air and fire, and all the things that are inferior to man. Now this world in all things followeth the will of God, for, as saith David<sup>4</sup>, prophet of God: "God hath given them a precept which | they transgress not."

' Have ye heard all ?' said Jesus.

The disciples answered : ' Yea, Lord.'

Whereupon Jesus said : ' Lying is indeed a sin, but murder is a greater, because the lie is a sin that appertaineth to him that speaketh, but the murder, while it appertaineth to him | that <sup>178<sup>b</sup></sup> committeth it, is such that it destroyeth also the dearest thing <sup>(177<sup>b</sup>)</sup> that God hath here upon earth, that is, man. And lying can be remedied by saying the contrary of that which hath been said ; whereas murder hath no remedy, seeing it is not possible to give life again to the dead. Tell me, then, did Moses the servant of God sin in slaying all whom he slew ?'

The disciples answered : ' God forbid ; God forbid that Moses should have sinned in obeying God who commanded him !'

Then said Jesus : ' And I say, God forbid that that angel should have sinned who deceived Ahab's false prophets with the lie ; for even as God receiveth the slaughter of men as sacrifice, so received he the lie for praise. Verily, verily, I say unto you, that even as the child erreth which causeth its shoes to be made by the measure of a giant, even so erreth he who would subject God to the law, as he himself as man is subject to the law. When, therefore, ye shall believe that only to be sin which God willeth not, ye will find the truth<sup>1</sup>, even as I have told you. | Wherefore, because God is not <sup>179<sup>a</sup></sup> composite nor changeable <sup>b</sup>, so also is he unable to will and not will <sup>(178<sup>a</sup>)</sup> a single thing ; for so would he have contradiction in himself, and consequently pain, and would not be infinitely blessed.'

Philip answered : ' But how is that saying of the prophet Amos<sup>2</sup> to be understood, that "there is not evil in the city that God hath not done" ?'

Jesus answered : ' Now here see, Philip, how great is the danger of resting in the letter, as do the Pharisees, who have invented for themselves the "predestination of God in the elect," in such wise that they come to say in fact that God is unrighteous, a deceiver and a liar and a hater of judgement (which shall fall upon them).

'Wherefore I say that here Amos the prophet of God speaketh of the evil which the world calleth evil: for if he had used the language of the righteous he would not have been understood by the world. For all tribulations are well, either for that they purge the evil that we have done, or are well because they restrain us from doing evil, or are well because they make man to know the condition of this life, in order that we may love and long for life eternal. | Accordingly, had the prophet Amos said: "There is no good in the city but what God hath wrought it," he had given occasion for despair to the afflicted, as they beheld themselves in tribulation and sinners living in prosperity. And, what is worse, many, believing Satan to have such sovereignty over man, would have feared Satan and done him service, so as not to suffer tribulation. Amos therefore did as doth the Roman interpreter, who considereth not his words [as one] speaking in the presence of the high-priest, but considereth the will and the business of the Jew that knoweth not to speak the Hebrew tongue.

'If Amos had said: "There is no good in the city but what God hath done it," as God liveth<sup>b</sup>, in whose presence my soul standeth, he would have made a grievous error, for the world holdeth not for good ought save the iniquities and sins that are done in the way of vanity<sup>c</sup>. Whereupon men would have wrought much more iniquitously, believing that there be not any sin or wickedness | "which God hath not done," at hearing whereof the earth trembleth.' And when Jesus had said this, straightway there arose<sup>(179<sup>a</sup>)</sup> a great earthquake, in so much that every one fell as dead. Jesus raised them up, saying: 'Now see if I have told you the truth.

Let this, then, suffice you, that Amos, when he said that "God hath done evil in the city," talking with the world, spake of tribulations, which sinners alone call evil.

'Let us come now to predestination, of which ye desire to know, and whereof I will speak to you near Jordan on the other side, to-morrow, if God will <sup>a</sup>.'

Jesus went into the wilderness beyond Jordan with his disciples, and when the midday prayer<sup>1</sup> was done he sat down near to a palm-tree, and under the shadow of the palm-tree his disciples sat down.

Then said Jesus: 'So secret is predestination, O brethren, that I say unto you, verily, only to one man shall it be clearly known. He it is whom the nations look for<sup>2</sup>, to whom the secrets of God are so clear that, when he cometh into the world, blessed shall they be | that shall listen to his words, because God shall overshadow them 180<sup>b</sup> with his mercy even as this palm-tree overshadoweth us. Yea, <sup>(179<sup>b</sup>)</sup> even as this tree protecteth us from the burning heat of the sun, even so the mercy of God will protect from Satan them that believe in that man.'

The disciples answered: 'O Master, who shall that man be of whom thou speakest, who shall come into the world?'

Jesus answered with joy of heart: 'He is Mohammed<sup>3</sup>, messenger of God<sup>c</sup>, and when he cometh into the world, even as the rain maketh the earth to bear fruit when for a long time it hath not rained, even so shall he be occasion of good works among men, through the abundant mercy which he shall bring. For he is a white cloud full of the mercy of God, which mercy God shall sprinkle upon the faithful like rain.'

Pharisees say that everything hath been so predestined | that he <sup>181<sup>a</sup></sup> who is elect cannot become reprobate, and he who is reprobate <sup>(180<sup>a</sup>)</sup> cannot by any means become elect; and that, even as God hath predestined well-doing as the road whereby the elect shall walk unto salvation, even so hath he predestined sin as the road by which the reprobate shall walk unto damnation. Cursed be the tongue that said this, with the hand that wrote it, for this is the faith of Satan. Wherefore one may know of what manner are the Pharisees of the present day, for they are faithful servants of Satan.

‘<sup>a</sup> What can predestination mean but an absolute will to give an end to a thing whereof one hath the means in hand? for without the means one cannot destine an end. How, then, shall he destine the house who not only lacketh stone and money to spend, but hath not even so much land as to place one foot upon? Assuredly none [could do so]. No more, then, I tell you, is predestination <sup>1</sup>, taking away the free will that God hath given to man of his pure bounty <sup>b</sup>, the law of God. Of a surety it is not | predestination but <sup>181<sup>b</sup></sup> <sup>(180<sup>b</sup>)</sup> abomination we shall be establishing.

‘That man is free the book of Moses showeth, where, when our God gave the law upon Mount Sinai, he spake thus <sup>2</sup>: “My commandment is not in the heaven that thou shouldest excuse thyself, saying: Now, who shall go to bring us the commandment of God? and who perchance shall give us strength to observe it? Neither is it beyond the sea, that in like manner thou shouldest excuse thyself. But my commandment is nigh unto thine heart, that when thou wilt thou mayest observe it.”

‘Tell me, if King Herod should command an old man to become young and a sick man that he should become whole, and when they did it not should cause them to be killed, would this be just?’

The disciples answered: ‘If Herod gave this command, he would be most unjust and impious.’

Then Jesus, sighing, said: ‘These are the fruits of human traditions, O brethren; for in saying that God hath predestinated the reprobate in such wise that he cannot become elect they blaspheme God as impious and unjust. For he commandeth the sinner | not to sin, and when he sinneth to repent; while such 182<sup>a</sup> predestination taketh away from the sinner the power not to sin, (181<sup>a</sup>) and entirely depriveth him of repentance.'

'But hear what saith God by Joel<sup>1</sup> the prophet: "As I live<sup>b</sup>, [saith] your God, I will not the death of a sinner, but I seek that he should be converted to penitence." Will God then predestinate that which he willeth not? Consider ye that which God saith, and that which the Pharisees of this present time say.

'Further, God saith by the prophet Isaiah<sup>2</sup>: "I have called, and ye would not hearken unto me." And how much God hath called, hear how he saith by the same prophet<sup>3</sup>: "All the day have I spread out my hands to a people that believe me not, but contradict me." And our Pharisees, when they say that the reprobate cannot become elect, what say they, then, but that God mocketh men, even as he would mock a blind man who should show him something white, and as he would mock a deaf man who should speak into his ears? And that the elect can | be 182<sup>b</sup> reprobated, consider what our God saith by Ezekiel<sup>4</sup> the prophet: (181<sup>b</sup>) "As I live, saith God<sup>b</sup>, if the righteous shall forsake his righteousness and shall do abominations, he shall perish, and I will not remember any more any of his righteousness; for trusting therein it shall forsake him before me and it shall not save him."

'And of the calling of the reprobate, what saith God by the prophet Hosea<sup>5</sup> but this: "I will call a people not elect, I will call them elect." God is true, and cannot tell a lie: for God being truth speaketh truth<sup>c</sup>. But the Pharisees of this present time with their doctrine contradict God altogether.'

Andrew replied: 'But how is that to be understood which God said to Moses<sup>6</sup>, that he will have mercy on whom he willeth to have mercy and will harden whom he willeth to harden?'

'If, therefore, he hardened Pharaoh he did it because he had afflicted our people and essayed to bring it to nought by destroying all the male children in Israel: whereby Moses was nigh to losing his life.

'Accordingly, I say unto you verily, that predestination hath for its foundation the law of God and human free will<sup>b</sup>. Yea, and even if God could save the whole world<sup>c</sup> so that none should perish, he would not will to do so lest thus he should deprive man of freedom, which he preserveth to him in order to do despite to Satan, in order that this [lump of] clay scorned of the spirit, even though it shall sin as the spirit did, may have power to repent and go to dwell in that place whence the spirit was cast out. Our God willeth, I say, to pursue with his mercy man's free will, and willeth not to forsake the creature with his omnipotence<sup>d</sup>. And so on the day of judgement none will be able to make any excuse for their sins, seeing | that it will then be manifest to them how much 183<sup>b</sup> God hath done for their conversion<sup>e</sup>, and how often he hath called (182<sup>b</sup>) them to repentance.

Said Peter: 'Is there written therein the glory of paradise?'

CLXIX <sup>a</sup>.

Jesus answered: 'Hearken, and I will tell you of what manner is paradise<sup>1</sup>, and how the holy and the faithful shall abide there without end, for this is one of the greatest | blessings of paradise, 185<sup>a</sup> seeing that everything, however great, if it have an end, becometh (184<sup>a</sup>) small, yea nought.

'Paradise is the home where God storeth<sup>b</sup> his delights, which are so great that the ground which is trodden by the feet of the holy and blessed ones is so precious that one drachm of it is more precious than a thousand worlds.

'These delights were seen by our father, David, prophet of God, for God showed them unto him, seeing he caused him to behold the glories of paradise: whereupon, when he returned to himself, he closed his eyes with both his hands, and weeping said: "Look not any more upon this world, O mine eyes, for all is vain, and there is no good!"

'Of these delights said Isaiah<sup>2</sup> the prophet: "The eyes of man have not seen, his ears have not heard, nor hath the human heart conceived, that which God hath prepared for them that love him<sup>c</sup>." Know ye wherefore they have not seen, heard, conceived such delights? It is because while they live here below they are not worthy to behold such things. Wherefore, albeit our father David verily saw them, I tell you that he saw them not with | human 185<sup>b</sup> eyes, for God took his soul unto himself, and thus, united with (184<sup>b</sup>) God, he saw them with light divine. As God liveth<sup>d</sup>, in whose presence my soul standeth, seeing that the delights of paradise are infinite and man is finite, man cannot contain them; even as a little earthen jar cannot contain the sea.

'Behold, then, how beautiful is the world in summer-time, when all things bear fruit! The very peasant, intoxicated with gladness by reason of the harvest that is come, maketh the valleys and mountains resound with his singing, for that he loveth his labours

‘God saith thus to the man who shall faithfully serve him: “I know thy works, that thou workest for me. As I live eternally<sup>e</sup>, thy love shall not exceed my bounty. Because thou servest me as God thy creator<sup>f</sup>, knowing thyself to be my work, and askest nought of me save grace and mercy to serve me faithfully; because thou settest no end to my service, seeing thou desirest to serve me eternally: even so will I do, for I will reward thee as if thou wert God, mine equal. For not only will I place in thy hands the abundance of paradise, but I will give thee myself as a gift<sup>g</sup>; so that, even as thou art fain to be my servant for ever, even so will I make thy wages for ever.”’

CLXXI d.

‘What think ye,’ said Jesus to his disciples, ‘of paradise? Is there a mind that could comprehend such riches and delights? Man must needs have | a knowledge as great as God’s if he would know what God willeth to give to his servants<sup>g</sup>. (185<sup>b</sup>)

Said Jesus: 'But if a poor man shall be presented to Herod what will he give to him?'

John answered: 'One or two mites.'

'Now let this be your book wherein to study the knowledge of paradise,' [said Jesus]: 'because all that God hath given<sup>a</sup> to man in this present world for his body is as though Herod should give a mite to a poor man; but what God will give<sup>a</sup> to the body and soul in paradise is as though Herod should give all that he hath, yea and his own life, to one of his servants.' -

'God saith thus to him that loveth him, and serveth him faithfully: "Go and consider the sands of the sea, O my servant, how many they are. Wherefore, if the sea should give thee one | single grain of sand, would it appear small to thee? Assuredly, 187<sup>a</sup> yea. As I, thy creator, live, all that I have given<sup>c</sup> in this world (186<sup>a</sup>) to all the princes and kings of the earth is less than a grain of sand that the sea would give thee, in comparison of that which I will give thee in my paradise."''

CLXXIII<sup>b</sup>.

'Consider, then,' said Jesus, 'the abundance of paradise. For if God hath given<sup>a</sup> to man in this world an ounce of well-being, in paradise he will give him ten hundred thousand loads. Consider the quantity of fruits that are in this world, the quantity of food, the quantity of flowers, and the quantity of things that minister to man. As God liveth<sup>d</sup>, in whose presence my soul standeth, as the sea hath still sand over and above when one receiveth a grain thereof, even so will the quality and quantity of figs<sup>1</sup> [in paradise] excel the sort of figs we eat here. And in like manner every other thing in paradise. precious than all the delights of the princes of the world which they have had and shall have even unto the judgement of God<sup>a</sup> when the world shall have an end.'

Peter answered: 'Shall, then, our body which we now have go into paradise?'

Jesus answered: 'Beware, Peter, lest thou become a Sadducee; for the Sadducees say that the flesh shall not rise again, and that there be no angels<sup>1</sup>. Wherefore their body and soul are deprived of entrance into paradise, and they are deprived of all ministry of angels in this world. Hast thou perchance forgotten Job<sup>2</sup>, prophet and friend of God, how he saith: "I know that my God liveth<sup>b</sup>; and in the last day I shall rise again in my flesh, and with mine eyes I shall see God my Saviour<sup>c</sup>"?

'But believe me, this flesh of ours shall be so purified that it shall not possess a single property of those which now it hath; seeing that it shall be purged of every evil desire, and God shall reduce it to such a condition as was Adam's before he sinned.

'Two men serve one master in one and the same work. The one alone seeth the work, and giveth orders to the second, and the second | performeth all that the first commandeth. Seemeth it <sup>188<sup>a</sup></sup> just to you, I say, that the master should reward only him who <sup>(187<sup>a</sup>)</sup> seeth and commandeth, and should cast out of his house him who wearied himself in the work? Surely not.

'How then shall the justice of God bear this? The soul and the body with the sense of man serve God: the soul only seeth and commandeth the service, because the soul, eating no bread, fasteth not, [the soul] walketh not, feeleth not cold and heat, falleth not sick, and is not slain, because the soul is immortal: it suffereth not any of those corporal pains which the body suffers at the instance of the elements. Is it, then, just, I say, that the soul alone should go into paradise, and not the body, which hath wearied itself so much in serving God?'

Peter answered: 'O master, the body, having caused the soul to sin, ought not to be placed in paradise.'

Jesus answered: 'Now how shall the body sin without the soul? Assuredly it is impossible. Therefore, in taking away God's mercy from the body, thou condemnest the soul to hell.' |

‘Now what should eat the meats of paradise, if the body go not thither? The soul? Surely not, seeing it is spirit.’

Peter answered: ‘So then, the blessed shall eat in paradise; but how shall the meat be voided without uncleanness?’ –

Jesus answered: ‘Now what blessedness shall the body have if it eat not nor drink? Assuredly it is fitting to give glory in proportion to the thing glorified. But thou errest, Peter, in thinking that such meat should be voided in uncleanness, because this body at the present time eateth corruptible meats, and thus it is that putrefaction cometh forth: but in paradise the body shall be incorruptible, impassible, and immortal, and free from every misery; and the meats, which are without any defect, shall not generate any putrefaction. |

Said Bartholomew: 'O master, shall the glory of paradise be equal for every man? If it be equal, it shall not be just, and if it be not equal the lesser will envy the greater.'

Jesus answered: 'It will not be equal, for that God is just<sup>c</sup>; and everyone shall be content, because there is no envy there. Tell me, Bartholomew: there is a master who hath many servants, and he clotheth all of those his servants in the same cloth. Do then the boys, who are clothed in the garments of boys, mourn because they have not the apparel of grown men? Surely, on the contrary, if the elders desired to put on them their larger garments they would be wroth, because, the garments not being of their size, they would think themselves mocked.

'And let this suffice you,' said Jesus, 'for the knowledge of paradise.' Whereupon Bartholomew said again: 'O master, have patience with me if I ask thee one word.'

Jesus answered: 'Say that which thou desirest.'

Said Bartholomew: 'Paradise is surely great: for, seeing there be in it such great goods, it needs must be great.'

Jesus answered: | 'Paradise is so great' that no man can measure <sup>190<sup>b</sup></sup> it. Verily I say unto thee that the heavens are nine, among which <sup>(189<sup>b</sup>)</sup> are set the planets, that are distant one from another five hundred years' journey for a man: and the earth in like manner is distant from the first heaven five hundred years' journey.

'But stop thou at the measuring of the first heaven, which is by so much greater than the whole earth as the whole earth is greater than a grain of sand. So also the second heaven is greater than the first, and the third than the second, and so on, up to the last heaven, each one is likewise greater than the next. And verily I say to thee that paradise is greater than all the earth and all the heavens [together], even as all the earth is greater than a grain of sand <sup>b</sup>.'

Then said Peter: 'O master, paradise must needs be greater than God, because God is seen within it.'

Jesus answered: 'Hold thy peace, Peter, for thou unwittingly blasphemest.'

Then said Jesus: 'Let us do reverence<sup>a</sup> to our God, who is blessed for evermore.' Thereupon they bowed their heads an hundred times and prostrated themselves to earth upon their face in prayer.

When the prayer was done, Jesus called Peter and told him and all the disciples what he had seen. And to Peter he said: 'Thy soul, which is greater than all the earth, through one eye seeth the sun, which is a thousand times greater than all the earth.'

'It is true,' said Peter.

One day, Jesus being in Solomon's porch, there drew nigh to him a scribe, one of them that made discourse to the people, and said to him: 'O master, I have many times made discourse to this people, and there is in my mind a passage of scripture which I am not able to understand.'

Jesus answered: 'And what is it?'

Said the scribe: 'That which God said to Abraham our father, "I will be thy great reward<sup>1</sup>." Now how could man merit [such reward]?''

Then Jesus rejoiced in spirit<sup>2</sup>, and said: 'Assuredly thou art not far from the kingdom of God!<sup>3</sup> Listen to me, for I will tell thee the meaning of such teaching. God being infinite, and man finite, man cannot merit God—and is this thy doubt, brother?'

Jesus answered: 'Well hast thou said, O brother; wherefore tell me, | Who created man out of nothing? Assuredly it was 192<sup>b</sup> God, who also gave him <sup>b</sup> the whole world for his benefit. But (<sup>191<sup>b</sup></sup>) man by sinning hath spent it all, for by reason of sin is all the world turned against man, and man in his misery hath naught to give to God but works corrupted by sin. For, sinning every day, he maketh his own work corrupt, wherefore Isaiah<sup>2</sup> the prophet saith: Our righteousnesses are "as a menstruous cloth."

'How, then, shall man have merit, seeing he is unable to give satisfaction? Is it, perchance, that man sinneth not? Certain it is that our God saith by his prophet David<sup>3</sup>: "Seven times a day falleth the righteous"; how then falleth the unrighteous? And if our righteousnesses are corrupt, how abominable are our unrighteousnesses! As God liveth <sup>c</sup>, there is naught that a man ought to shun more than this saying: "I merit." Let a man know, brother, the works of his hands, and he will straightway see his merit. Every good thing that cometh out of a man, verily man doeth it not, but God worketh it in him; | for his being 193<sup>a</sup> is of God who created him. That which man doeth is to (<sup>192<sup>a</sup></sup>) contradict God his creator <sup>d</sup> and to commit sin, whereby he meriteth not reward, but torment.

'Not only hath God created <sup>b</sup> man, as I say, but he created him perfect. He hath given him the whole world; after the departure from paradise he hath given him <sup>c</sup> two angels to guard him, he hath sent <sup>d</sup> him the prophets, he hath granted him the law, he hath granted <sup>e</sup> him the faith, every moment he delivereth him from Satan, he is fain to give him paradise; nay more, God willeth to give himself to man <sup>e</sup>. Consider, then, the debt, if it is great! [a debt] to cancel which ye would need to have created man of yourselves out of nothing, to have created as many prophets as God hath sent, with a world and a paradise, nay, more, with a God great and good as is our God <sup>f</sup>, and to give it all to God. So would the debt be cancelled and there would remain to you only the obligation to give thanks to God. But since ye are not able to create a single | fly, and seeing there is but one God <sup>g</sup> who is lord <sup>h</sup> of all things, how shall ye be (192<sup>b</sup>) able to cancel your debt? Assuredly, if a man should lend you an hundred pieces of gold, ye would be obliged to restore an hundred pieces of gold.

'Accordingly, the sense of this, O brother, is that God, being lord <sup>h</sup> of paradise and of everything, can say that which pleaseth him, and give whatsoever pleaseth him. Wherefore, when he said to Abraham <sup>1</sup>: "I will be thy great reward," Abraham could not say: "God is my reward," but "God is my gift and my debt." So when thou discourses to the people, O brother, thou oughtest thus to explain this passage: that <sup>2</sup> God will give <sup>e</sup> to man such and such things if man worketh well.

'When God shall speak to thee, O man, and shall say: "O my servant, thou hast wrought well for love of me; what reward seekest thou from me, thy God <sup>i</sup>?" answer thou: "Lord, seeing I am the work of thy hands, it is not fitting that there should be in me sin, which Satan loveth. The disciples and the scribe answered : 'It is most true.'

Then said Jesus : 'He who in truth of heart recognizeth God as the author of all good, | and himself as the author of sin, shall be truly humble. But whoso shall speak with the tongue as the child speaketh, and shall contradict [the same] in act, assuredly he hath false humility and true pride.

'True humility is a lowliness of the soul whereby man knoweth himself in truth ; but false humility is a mist from hell which so darkeneth the understanding of the soul that what a man ought to ascribe to himself, he ascribeth to God, and what he ought to ascribe to God, he ascribeth to himself. Thus, the man of false humility will say that he is a grievous sinner, but when one telleth him that he is a sinner he will wax wroth against him, and will persecute him.

Jesus answered: ‘Brother, it is not time that hath done this, but rather the wicked world. For in every time it is possible to serve God in truth, but by companying with the world, that is with the evil manners in each time, men become bad.

‘Now knowest thou not that Gehazi<sup>1</sup>, servant of Elisha the prophet, lying, and shaming his master, took the money and the raiment of Naaman the Syrian? And yet Elisha had a great number of Pharisees to whom God made him to prophesy.

‘Verily I say unto thee, that men are so inclined to evil working, and so much doth the world excite them thereto, and Satan entice them to evil, that the Pharisees of the present day avoid every good work and every holy example; and the example of Gehazi is sufficient for them to be reprobated of God.’

The scribe answered: ‘It is most true’: whereupon Jesus | said: ‘I would that thou wouldst narrate to me the example of Haggai and Hosea, both prophets of God, in order that we may behold the true Pharisee.’

The scribe answered: ‘O master, what shall I say? Of a surety many believe it not, although it is written by Daniel the prophet; but in obedience to thee I will narrate the truth.

Now the aged Obadiah, who knew the humility of Haggai, used him as a book wherewith to teach his disciples. Wherefore he oftentimes presented him raiment and delicate food, but Haggai ever sent back the messenger, saying:

"Go, return to the house, for thou hast made a mistake. Shall Obadiah send me such things? Surely not; for he knoweth that I am good for naught, and only commit sins."

'And Obadiah, when he had anything bad, used to give it to the one next to Haggai, in order that he might see it. Whereupon Haggai, when he saw it, would say to himself: "Now, behold, Obadiah hath certainly forgotten thee, for this thing is suited to me alone, because I am worse than all. 'When Obadiah desired to teach any one how to pray, he would call Haggai and say: "Recite here thy prayer<sup>1</sup> so that every one may hear thy words." Then Haggai would say: "Lord God<sup>b</sup> of Israel, with mercy look upon thy servant, who calleth upon thee, for that thou hast created him. Righteous Lord God, remember thy righteousness and punish the sins of thy servant, in order that I may not pollute thy work. Lord my God, I cannot ask thee for the delights that thou grantest to thy faithful servants, because I do nought but sins. Wherefore, Lord, when thou wouldst give an infirmity to one of thy servants, remember me thy servant, for thine own glory."

'For which cause he was soon left with two garments only, namely, a tunic of sackcloth and a mantle of skins. He sold, I say, his patrimony and gave it to the poor, because otherwise no one would be suffered to be called a Pharisee.

'Hosea had the book of Moses, which he read with greatest earnestness. Now one day Haggai said to him: "Hosea, who hath taken away from thee all that thou hadst?"

'He answered: "The book of Moses."

'It happened that a disciple of a neighbouring prophet was fain to go to Jerusalem, | but had not a mantle. Wherefore, having 198<sup>a</sup> heard of the charity of Hosea, he went to find him, and said (197<sup>a</sup>) to him: "Brother, I would fain go to Jerusalem to perform a sacrifice to our God, but I have not a mantle, wherefore I know not what to do."

'When he heard this, Hosea said: "Pardon me, brother, for I have committed a great sin against thee: because God hath given me a mantle in order that I might give it to thee, and I had forgotten. Now therefore accept it, and pray to God for me." The man, believing this, accepted Hosea's mantle and departed. And when Hosea went to the house of Haggai, Haggai said: "Who hath taken away thy mantle?"

'Hosea replied: "The book of Moses."

'Haggai was much pleased at hearing this, because he perceived the goodness of Hosea.

'It happened that a poor man was stripped by robbers and left naked. Whereupon Hosea, seeing him, stripped off his own tunic and gave it to him that was naked; himself being left with a little piece of goat-skin over the privy parts. Wherefore, as he came not to see Haggai, the good Haggai thought that Hosea was sick. So he went with two disciples to find him: and they | found him wrapped in palm-leaves. Then said Haggai: "Tell 198<sup>b</sup> me now, wherefore hast thou not been to visit me?" (197<sup>b</sup>)

'Hosea answered: "The book of Moses hath taken away my tunic, and I feared to come thither without a tunic." Whereupon Haggai gave him another tunic.

'It happened that a young man, seeing Hosea read the book of Moses, wept, and said: "I also would learn to read if I had a book." Hearing which, Hosea gave him the book, saying:

'There was a disciple of Haggai nigh to Hosea; and he, wishing to see if his own book was well written, went to visit Hosea, and said to him: "Brother, take thy book and let us see if it is even as mine."

'Hosea answered: "It hath been taken away from me."

"Who hath taken it from thee?" said the disciple.

'Hosea answered: "The book of Moses." Hearing which, the other went to Haggai and said to him: "Hosea hath gone mad, | for he saith that the book of Moses hath taken away from him 199<sup>a</sup> the book of Moses," (198<sup>a</sup>)

'Haggai answered: "Would to God, O brother, that I were mad in like manner, and that all mad folk were like unto Hosea!"

'Now the Syrian robbers<sup>1</sup>, having raided the land of Judaea, seized the son of a poor widow, who dwelt hard by Mount Carmel, where the prophets and Pharisees abode. It chanced, accordingly, that Hosea having gone to cut wood met the woman, who was weeping. Thereupon he straightway began to weep; for whenever he saw any one laugh he laughed, and whenever he saw any one weep he wept. Hosea then asked the woman touching the reason of her weeping, and she told him all.

'Then said Hosea: "Come, sister, for God willeth to give thee thy son."

'And they went both of them to Hebron, where Hosea sold himself, and gave the money to the widow, who, not knowing how he had gotten that money, accepted it, and redeemed her son.

'He who had bought Hosea took him to Jerusalem, where he had an abode, not knowing Hosea.

'Haggai, seeing that Hosea was not to be found, remained afflicted thereat. Whereupon the angel of God told him | how 199<sup>b</sup> he had been taken as a slave to Jerusalem. (198<sup>b</sup>)

'The good Haggai, when he heard this, wept for the absence of Hosea as a mother weepeth for the absence of her son. And having called two disciples he went to Jerusalem. And by the will of God, in the entrance of the city he met Hosea, who was

'Having recognized him, Haggai said: "Son, how is it that thou hast forsaken thine old father, who seeketh thee mourning?"

'Hosea answered: "Father, I have been sold."

'Then said Haggai in wrath: "Who is that bad fellow who hath sold thee?"

'Hosea answered: "God forgive thee, O my father; for he who hath sold me is so good that if he were not in the world no one would become holy."

' "Who, then, is he?" said Haggai.

'Hosea answered: "O my father, it was the book of Moses."

'Then the good Haggai remained as it were beside himself, and said: "Would to God, my son, that the book of Moses would sell me also with all my children, even as it hath sold thee!"

'And Haggai went with Hosea to the house of his master, who when he saw Haggai said: "Blessed be our God, who hath sent his prophet | unto my house"; and he ran to kiss his hand. And Jesus said to the scribe: 'O brother, what seekest thou to learn from me, seeing thou hast such knowledge? As God liveth<sup>b</sup>, this is sufficient for man's salvation, inasmuch as the humility of Haggai, with the charity of Hosea, fulfilleth all the law and all the prophets<sup>2</sup>.

'In that book it is not found that God eateth the flesh of cattle or sheep; in that book it is not found that God hath locked up his mercy in Israel alone, but rather that God hath mercy on every man that seeketh God his creator in truth <sup>a.1</sup>

'All of this book I was not able to read, because the high priest, in whose library I was, forbade me, saying that an Ishmaelite had written it.'

Then said Jesus: 'See that thou never again keep back the truth, because in the faith of the Messiah <sup>b</sup> God shall give <sup>c</sup> salvation to men, and without it shall none be saved <sup>d</sup>.'

And there did Jesus end his discourse. | Whereupon, as they 202<sup>b</sup> sat at meat, lo! Jesus answered: 'Where is thy house? Tell me, for I will come to pray God for his health.'

Mary answered: 'Bethany is [the home] of my brother and my sister, for my own house is Magdala <sup>3</sup>: my brother, therefore, is in Bethany.'

Said Jesus to the woman: 'Go thou straightway to thy brother's house, and there await me, for I will come to heal him. And fear thou not, for he shall not die.'

The woman departed, and having gone to Bethany found that her brother had died that day, wherefore they laid him in the sepulchre of their fathers.

سورة حقائق [حقائق حقيقات؟] الحيوت <sup>b</sup>

Said Martha: 'Lord, he stinketh, for he hath been dead four days.'

Said Jesus: 'Why then am I come hither, Martha? Believest thou not in me, that I shall awaken him?'

Then Jesus lifted up his hands to heaven, and said: 'Lord God of Abraham, God of Ishmael and Isaac, God of our fathers<sup>a</sup>, have mercy upon the affliction of these women, and give glory to thy holy name.' And when every one had answered 'Amen,' Jesus said with a loud voice:

'Lazarus, come forth!'

Whereupon he that was dead arose; and Jesus said to his disciples: 'Loose him.' For he was bound in the grave-clothes with the napkin over his face, even as our fathers were accustomed to bury [their dead].

A great multitude of the Jews and some of the Pharisees believed in Jesus, because the miracle was great. Those that remained in their unbelief departed, and went to Jerusalem and announced to the chief of the priests the resurrection of Lazarus, and how that many were become Nazarenes<sup>1</sup>; for so they called them who were brought to penitence through the word of God which Jesus preached. |

The scribes and Pharisees took counsel with the high priest to slay Lazarus<sup>2</sup>; for many renounced their traditions and believed in the word of Jesus, because the miracle of Lazarus was a great one, seeing that Lazarus had conversation with men, and ate and drank. But because he was powerful, having a following in Jerusalem, and possessing with his sisters Magdala and Bethany, they knew not what to do<sup>3</sup>.

Jesus entered into Bethany, into the house of Lazarus, and Martha, with Mary, ministered unto him<sup>4</sup>.

Mary, sitting one day at the feet of Jesus<sup>5</sup>, was listening to his words, whereupon Martha said to Jesus: 'Lord, seest thou not that my sister taketh no care for thee, and provideth not that which thou must eat and thy disciples?'

Jesus answered: 'Martha, Martha, do thou take thought for that which thou shouldst do; for Mary hath chosen a part which shall not be taken away from her for ever.'

Jesus, sitting at table with a great multitude that believed in him, spake, saying: 'Brethren, I have but little time to remain with you, for | the time is at hand that I must depart from <sup>205<sup>a</sup></sup> the world<sup>1</sup>. Wherefore I bring to your mind the words of God <sup>(204<sup>a</sup>)</sup> spoken to Ezekiel<sup>2</sup> the prophet, saying: "As I, your God, live eternally<sup>a</sup>, the soul that sinneth, it shall die, but if the sinner shall repent he shall not die but live."

'Wherefore the present death is not death, but rather the end of a long death: even as the body when separated from the sense in a swoon, though it have the soul within it, hath no other advantage over the dead and buried save this, that the buried [body] awaiteth God to raise it again, but the unconscious waiteth for the sense to return.

'Behold, then, the present life that it is death, through having no perception of God.

'They that shall believe in me shall not die eternally<sup>3</sup>, for through my word they shall perceive God within them, and therefore shall work out their salvation<sup>4</sup>.

'What is death but an act which nature doth by commandment of God? As it would be if one held a bird tied, and held the cord in his hand; when the head willeth | the bird to fly away, what <sup>205<sup>b</sup></sup> doeth it? Assuredly it commandeth naturally the hand to open; <sup>(204<sup>b</sup>)</sup> and so straightway the bird flieth away. "Our soul," as saith the prophet David<sup>5</sup>, "is as a sparrow freed from the snare of the fowler," when man abideth under the protection of God. And our life is like a cord whereby nature holdeth the soul bound to the body and the sense of man. When therefore God willeth, and commandeth nature to open, the life is broken and the soul

'Let not, then, friends weep when their friend is dead; for our God hath so willed<sup>a</sup>. But let him weep without ceasing when he sinneth, for [so] the soul dieth, seeing it separateth itself from God, the true Life.

'If the body is horrible without its union with the soul, much more frightful is the soul without union with God<sup>b</sup>, who with his grace and mercy beautifieth and quickeneth it.'

And having said this Jesus gave thanks to God; whereupon Lazarus said: 'Lord, this house belongeth to God my creator<sup>c</sup>, with | all that he hath given into my keeping, for the service 208<sup>a</sup> of the poor. Wherefore, since thou art poor, and hast a great (205<sup>a</sup>) number of disciples, come thou to dwell here when thou pleasest, and as much as thou pleasest, for the servant of God will minister to thee as much as shall be needful, for love of God.'

CXCVI.

Jesus rejoiced when he heard this, and said: 'See now how good a thing it is to die! Lazarus hath died once only, and hath learned such doctrine as is not known to the wisest men in the world that have grown old among books! Would to God that every man might die once only and return to the world, like Lazarus, in order that men might learn to live.'

John answered: 'O master, is it permitted to me to speak a word?'

'Speak a thousand,' answered Jesus, 'for just as a man is bound to dispense his goods in the service of God, so also is he bound to dispense doctrine: and so much the more is he bound [so to do] inasmuch as the word hath power | to raise up a soul to penitence, 208<sup>b</sup> whereas goods cannot bring back life to the dead. Wherefore he<sup>c</sup> is a murderer who hath power to help a poor man and when he helpeth him not the poor man dieth of hunger; but a more grievous murderer is he who could by the word of God convert the sinner to penitence, and converteth him not, but standeth, Verily I say unto thee, I am bound to listen to thee ten times for every one that thou hast listened to me. Then said John: 'O master, why hath not God granted this to men, that they should die once and return as Lazarus hath done, in order that they might learn to know themselves and their creator?'

CXCVII.

Jesus answered: 'Tell me, John; there was an householder who gave a perfect axe to one of his servants in order that he might cut down the wood which obstructed the view of his house.

'But the labourer forgot the axe, and said: "If the master would give me an old axe I should easily cut down the wood." Tell me, John, what said the master? Assuredly he was wroth, and took the old axe and struck him on the head, saying: "Fool and knave! I gave thee an axe wherewith thou mightest cut down the wood without toil, and seekest thou this axe, wherewith one must work with great toil, and all that is cut is wasted and good for nought? I desire thee to | cut down the wood in such wise 207<sup>b</sup> that thy work shall be good." Is this true?' (206<sup>b</sup>)

John answered: 'It is most true.' [Then said Jesus:] 'As I live eternally,' saith God<sup>b</sup>, 'I have given a good axe to every man, which is the sight of the burial of one dead. Whoso wield well

'O John,' said Jesus, 'how great is the advantage of him who from the fall of others learneth to stand on his feet!'

CXCVIII.

Then said Lazarus: 'Master, verily I say unto thee, I cannot conceive the penalty of which he is | worthy who time after time 208<sup>a</sup> seeth the dead borne to the tomb and feareth not God our creator <sup>a</sup>. Then said Jesus to his disciples: 'Ye call me Master, and ye do well', seeing that God teacheth you by my mouth. But how will ye call Lazarus? Verily he is here master of all the masters that teach doctrine in this world. I indeed have taught you how ye ought to live well, but Lazarus will teach you how to die well. As God liveth <sup>b</sup>, he hath received the gift of prophecy; listen therefore to his words, which are truth. And so much the more ought ye to listen to him, as good living is vain if one die badly <sup>c</sup>.'

Said Lazarus: 'O master, I thank thee that thou makest the truth to be prized; therefore will God give thee great merit.'

Then said he who writeth this: 'O master, how speaketh Lazarus the truth in saying to thee "Thou shalt have merit," whereas thou saidst to Nicodemus that man | meriteth nought but 208<sup>b</sup> punishment <sup>2</sup>? Shalt thou accordingly be punished of God?' (207<sup>b</sup>)

Wherefore I say to thee, my Barnabas, that when a man speaketh of what God shall give <sup>c</sup> to his neighbour let him say that his neighbour meriteth it: but let him look to it that, when he speaketh of what God shall give to himself, he say: “God will give me <sup>d</sup>.” And let him look to it that he say not, “I have merit,” because God is pleased to grant his mercy to his servants when they confess that they | merit hell for their sins.

‘God is so rich in mercy <sup>f</sup> that, albeit the water of a thousand seas, if so many were to be found, could not quench a spark of the flames of hell, yet a single tear of one who mourneth at having offended God quencheth the whole of hell, by the great mercy wherewith God succoureth him <sup>g</sup>. God, therefore, to confound Satan and to display his own bounty, willet to call merit in the presence of his mercy every good work of his faithful servant, and willet him so to speak of his neighbour. But of himself a man must beware of saying: “I have merit”; for he would be condemned.’

It was nigh unto the Passover of the Jews, wherefore Jesus said to his disciples: 'Let us go to Jerusalem<sup>1</sup> to eat the paschal lamb.' And he sent Peter and John<sup>2</sup> to the city, saying: 'Ye shall find an ass near the gate of the city with a colt; loose her and bring her hither; for I needs must ride thereon into Jerusalem. And if any one ask you saying, "Wherefore loose ye her?" say unto them: "The Master hath need thereof," and they will suffer thee to bring her.'

The disciples went, and found all that Jesus had told them, and accordingly they brought the ass and the colt. The disciples accordingly placed their mantles upon the colt, and Jesus rode thereon. And it came to pass that, when the men of Jerusalem heard that Jesus of Nazareth was coming, the men went forth with their children eager to see Jesus, bearing in their hands branches of palm and olive, singing: 'Blessed be he that cometh to us in the name of God<sup>a</sup>; hosanna, son of David!'

Jesus having come into | the city, the men spread out their <sup>210<sup>a</sup></sup> garments under the feet of the ass, singing: 'Blessed be he that cometh to us in the name of the Lord God<sup>b</sup>; hosanna, son of David!'

The Pharisees rebuked Jesus, saying: 'Seest thou not what these say? Cause them to hold their peace!'<sup>3</sup>

Then said Jesus: 'As God liveth<sup>c</sup> in whose presence my soul standeth, if men should hold their peace, the stones would cry out against the unbelief of malignant sinners.' And when Jesus had said this all the stones of Jerusalem cried out with a great noise: 'Blessed be he who cometh to us in the name of the Lord God!'

Nevertheless the Pharisees remained still in their unbelief, and, having assembled themselves together, took counsel to catch him in his talk<sup>4</sup>.

Jesus having entered into the temple, the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery<sup>5</sup>. They said among themselves: 'If he save her, it is contrary to the law of Moses, and so we have him as guilty, and if he condemn her it is contrary

Thereupon Jesus stooped down and with his finger made a mirror on the ground wherein every one saw his own iniquities. As they still pressed for the answer, Jesus lifted up himself and, pointing to the mirror with his finger, said: 'He that is without sin among you, let him be first to stone her.' And again he stooped down, shaping the mirror.

The men, seeing this, went out one by one, beginning from the eldest, for they were ashamed to see their abominations.

Jesus having lifted up himself, and seeing no one but the woman, said: 'Woman, where are they that condemned thee?'

The woman answered, weeping: 'Lord, they are departed; and if thou wilt pardon me, as God liveth <sup>a</sup>, I will sin no more.'

Then said Jesus: 'Blessed be God! Go thy way in peace and sin no more, for God hath not sent me to condemn thee.'

Then, the scribes and Pharisees being assembled, Jesus said to them<sup>1</sup>: 'Tell me: if one of you had an hundred sheep, and should lose one of them, would ye not | go to seek it, leaving 211<sup>a</sup> the ninety and nine? And when ye found it, would ye not lay (210<sup>a</sup>) it upon your shoulders and, having called together your neighbours, say unto them: "Rejoice with me, for I have found the sheep which I had lost"? Then with vehemence of spirit Jesus spake, saying: 'As God liveth<sup>a</sup>, your own tongues condemn your pride, inasmuch as our God is loved | more by the sinner that repenteth, knowing the great 211<sup>b</sup> mercy of God upon him, than by the righteous. For the righteous <sup>(210<sup>b</sup>)</sup> hath not knowledge of the mercy of God. Wherefore there is more rejoicing<sup>1</sup> in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine righteous persons.

'Where are the righteous in our time? As God liveth<sup>b</sup> in whose presence my soul standeth, great is the number of the righteous unrighteous; their condition being like to that of Satan.'

The scribes and Pharisees answered: 'We are sinners, wherefore God will have mercy on us.' And this they said tempting him; for the scribes and Pharisees count it the greatest insult to be called sinners.

Then said Jesus: 'I fear that ye be righteous unrighteous. For if ye have sinned and deny your sin, calling yourselves righteous, ye are unrighteous; and if in your heart ye hold yourselves righteous, and with your tongue ye say that ye are sinners, then are ye doubly righteous unrighteous.'

Accordingly the scribes and Pharisees hearing this were confounded and departed, leaving Jesus with his disciples in peace, | and they went into the house of Simon the leper<sup>2</sup>, whose leprosy 212<sup>a</sup> he [had] cleansed. The citizens had gathered together the sick <sup>(211<sup>a</sup>)</sup> unto the house of Simon and prayed Jesus for the healing of the sick.

Then Jesus, knowing that his hour was near, said: 'Call the sick, as many as there be, because God is mighty and merciful<sup>c</sup> to heal them.'

They answered: 'We know not that there be any other sick folk here in Jerusalem.'

Jesus weeping answered: 'O Jerusalem, O Israel, I weep over thee, for thou knowest not thy visitation; because I would fain have gathered thee to the love of God thy creator<sup>d</sup>, as a hen gathereth

“I will not pardon the old men or the widows, I will not pardon the children, but I will give you all to famine, the sword, and derision: and the temple, whereon I have looked with mercy, I will make desolate with the city, insomuch that ye shall be for a fable, a derision, and a proverb among the nations. While Jesus was supping with his disciples in the house of Simon the leper, behold Mary the sister of Lazarus | entered into 213<sup>b</sup> the house <sup>3</sup>, and, having broken a vessel, poured ointment over <sup>(212<sup>b</sup>)</sup> the head and garment of Jesus. Seeing this, Judas the traitor was fain to hinder Mary from doing such a work, saying: 'Go and sell the ointment and bring the money that I may give it to the poor.'

Said Jesus: 'Why hinderest thou her? Let her be, for the poor ye shall have always with you, but me ye shall not have always.'

Judas answered: 'O master, this ointment might be sold for three hundred pieces of money: now see how many poor folk would be helped.'

Jesus answered: 'O Judas, I know thine heart; have patience, therefore, and I will give thee all.'

Every one ate with fear, and the disciples were sorrowful, because they knew that Jesus must soon depart from them. But Judas was indignant, because he knew that he was losing thirty pieces of money for the ointment not sold, seeing he stole the tenth part of all that was given to Jesus.

He went to find the high priest <sup>4</sup>, who assembled in a council of priests, scribes, and Pharisees; to whom Judas spake, saying: 'What will ye give me, and I will betray into your hands Jesus, who would fain make himself king of Israel?' |

They answered: 'Now how wilt thou give him into our hand?' 214<sup>a</sup>

Jesus answered <sup>c</sup>: 'No, of a surety, I have not forgotten; for this is my confession which I shall bear before the judgement-seat of God on the day of judgement. The high priest answered: 'This I ask of thee, and I do not seek to slay thee, wherefore tell us: Who was this son of Abraham?'

Jesus answered: | 'The zeal of thine honour, O God, enflameth 216<sup>a</sup> me<sup>4</sup>, and I cannot hold my peace. Then was the high priest wroth, hearing this, and cried out: 'Let us stone this impious fellow, for he is an Ishmaelite, and hath spoken blasphemy against Moses and against the law of God.'

Whereupon every scribe and Pharisee, with the elders of the people, took up stones to stone Jesus, who vanished from their eyes and went out of the temple. And then, through the great desire that they had to slay Jesus, blinded with fury and hatred, they struck one another in such wise that there died a thousand men; and they polluted the holy temple. The disciples and believers, who saw Jesus go out of the temple (for from them he was not hidden), followed him to the house of Simon.

Thereupon Nicodemus came thither and counselled Jesus to go out of Jerusalem beyond the brook Cedron, saying: 'Lord, I have a garden with a house beyond the brook Cedron, I pray thee, therefore, go thither with | some of thy disciples, to tarry 216<sup>b</sup> there until this hatred of our priests be past; for I will minister (215<sup>b</sup>) to you what is necessary. When the confusion in the temple ceased by the departure 217<sup>a</sup> of Jesus, the high priest ascended on high, and having beckoned (216<sup>a</sup>) for silence with his hands he said: 'Brethren, what do we? And in such wise did the high priest speak that many forsook Jesus, wherefore the secret persecution was converted into an open one, insomuch that the high priest went in person to Herod, and to the | Roman governor, accusing Jesus that he 217<sup>b</sup> desired to make himself king of Israel, and of this they had (216<sup>b</sup>) false witnesses.

in one decree<sup>1</sup> it was forbidden, on pain of death, that any one should call Jesus of Nazareth, the prophet of the Jews, either God or Son of God; in the other<sup>2</sup> it forbade, under capital sentence, that any one should contend concerning Jesus of Nazareth, prophet of the Jews. Wherefore, for this cause, there was a great division among them. Some desired that they should write again to Rome against Jesus; others said that they should leave Jesus alone, regardless of what he said, as of a fool; others adduced the great miracles that he wrought.

The high priest therefore spake that under pain of anathema none should speak a word in defence of Jesus; and he spake to Herod, and to the governor, saying: 'In any case we have an ill venture in our hands, | for if we slay this sinner we have acted 218<sup>a</sup> contrary to the decree of Caesar, and, if we suffer him to live (217<sup>a</sup>) and he make himself king, how will the matter go?' Then Herod arose and threatened the governor, saying: 'Beware lest through thy favouring of that man this country be rebellious: for I will accuse thee before Caesar as a rebel.' Then the governor feared the Senate and made friends with Herod<sup>3</sup> (for before this they had hated one another unto death), and they joined together for the death of Jesus, and said to the high priest: 'Whenever thou shalt know where the malefactor is, send to us, for we will give thee soldiers.' This was done to fulfil the prophecy of David who had foretold of Jesus, prophet of Israel, saying<sup>4</sup>: 'The princes and kings of the earth are united against the holy one of Israel, because he announceth the salvation of the world.'

Thereupon, on that day, there was a general search for Jesus throughout Jerusalem. |

The day having come for eating the lamb, Nicodemus sent the lamb secretly to the garden for Jesus and his disciples, announcing all that had been decreed by Herod with the governor and the high priest.

Whereupon Jesus rejoiced in spirit, saying: ‘Blessed be thy holy name, O Lord, because thou hast not separated me from the number of thy servants that have been persecuted by the world and slain. I thank thee, my God, because I have fulfilled thy work.’ And turning to Judas<sup>h</sup>, he said to him: ‘Friend, wherefore tarriest thou? something for the day | of the Passover; but Jesus knew that 220<sup>b</sup> Judas was betraying him, wherefore, desiring to depart from the (219<sup>b</sup>) world, he so spake.

Judas answered: 'Lord, suffer me to eat, and I will go.'

'Let us eat,' said Jesus, 'for I have greatly desired<sup>1</sup> to eat this lamb before I am parted from you.' And having arisen<sup>2</sup>, he took a towel and girded his loins, and having put water in a bason, he set himself to wash his disciples' feet. Beginning from Judas, Jesus came to Peter. Said Peter: 'Lord, wouldst thou wash my feet?'

Jesus answered: 'That which I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter.'

Peter answered: 'Thou shalt never<sup>3</sup> wash my feet.'

Then Jesus rose up, and said: 'Neither shalt thou come in my company on the day of judgement.'

Peter answered: 'Wash not only my feet, Lord, but my hands and my head.'

When the disciples were washed and were seated at table to eat, Jesus said: 'I have washed you, yet are ye not all clean, forasmuch as [all] the water of the sea will not wash him that believeth me not.' This said Jesus, because he knew who was betraying him. | The disciples were sad at these words, when Jesus 221<sup>a</sup> said again: 'Verily I say unto you<sup>4</sup>, that one of you shall betray me, (220<sup>a</sup>) insomuch that I shall be sold like a sheep; but woe unto him, for he shall fulfil all that our father David said of such an one<sup>5</sup>, that "he shall fall into the pit which he had prepared for others."'

Whereupon the disciples looked one upon another, saying with sorrow: 'Who shall be the traitor?'

Judas then said: 'Shall it be I, O Master?'

Jesus answered: 'Thou hast told me who it shall be that shall betray me.' And the eleven apostles heard it not.

When the lamb was eaten, the devil came upon the back of Judas, and he went forth from the house, Jesus saying to him again: 'Do quickly that which thou must do.'

The high priest answered: 'How much seekest thou?'

Said Judas, 'Thirty pieces of gold.'

Then straightway the high priest counted unto him the money, and sent a Pharisee to the governor to fetch soldiers, and to Herod, and they gave a legion of them, because they feared the people; wherefore they took their arms, and with torches and lanterns upon staves went out of Jerusalem.

CCXV.

When the soldiers<sup>2</sup> with Judas drew near to the place where Jesus was, Jesus heard the approach of many people, wherefore in fear he withdrew into the house. And the eleven were sleeping.

They God, seeing<sup>3</sup> the danger of his servant, commanded Gabriel, Michael, Rafael, and Uriel<sup>3</sup>, his ministers, to take Jesus out of the world.

The holy angels came and took Jesus out by the window that looketh toward the South. They bare him and placed him in the third heaven in the company of angels blessing God for evermore. |

CCXVI.

Judas entered impetuously before all into the chamber whence 222<sup>a</sup> Jesus had been taken up. And the disciples were sleeping. (221<sup>a</sup>) Whereupon the wonderful God acted wonderfully, insomuch that Judas was so changed in speech and in face to be like Jesus that we believed him to be Jesus. And he, having awakened us, was seeking where the Master was. Whereupon we marvelled, and answered: 'Thou, Lord, art our master; hast thou now forgotten us?'

And he, smiling, said: 'Now are ye foolish, that know not me to be Judas Iscariot!'

And as he was saying this the soldiery entered, and laid their hands upon Judas, because he was in every way like to Jesus.

We having heard Judas' saying, and seeing the multitude of soldiers, fled as beside ourselves.

And John, who was wrapped in a linen cloth, awoke and fled, and when a soldier seized him by the linen cloth he left the linen cloth and fled naked<sup>1</sup>. For God heard the prayer<sup>2</sup> of Jesus, and saved the eleven from evil<sup>3</sup>. |

CCXVII.

The soldiers took Judas and bound him<sup>4</sup>, not without derision. 222<sup>b</sup> For he truthfully denied that he was Jesus; and the soldiers, (221<sup>b</sup>) mocking him, said: 'Sir<sup>5</sup>, fear not, for we are come to make thee king of Israel, and we have bound thee because we know that thou dost refuse the kingdom.'

Judas answered: 'Now have ye lost your senses! Ye are come to take Jesus of Nazareth, with arms and lanterns as [against] a robber; and ye have bound me that have guided you, to make me king!'

Then the soldiers lost their patience, and with blows and kicks they began to flout<sup>6</sup> Judas, and they led him with fury into Jerusalem.

John and Peter followed the soldiers afar off; and they affirmed to him who writeth that they saw all the examination that was made of Judas by the high priest, and by the council of the Pharisees, who were assembled to put Jesus to death. | Where- 223<sup>a</sup> upon Judas spake many words of madness, insomuch that<sup>7</sup> every one was filled with laughter, believing that he was really Jesus, and that for fear of death he was feigning madness. Whereupon the scribes bound his eyes with a bandage, and mocking him said: 'Jesus, prophet of the Nazarenes'<sup>8</sup> (for so they called them who believed in Jesus), 'tell us, who was it that smote thee?'<sup>9</sup> And they buffeted him and spat in his face.

When it was morning there assembled the great council of scribes and elders of the people; and the high priest with the Pharisees sought false witness against Judas, believing him to be Jesus: and they found not that which they sought<sup>9</sup>. And why say I that the chief priests believed Judas to be Jesus? Nay, all the disciples, with him who writeth, believed it; and more, the poor virgin mother of Jesus, with his kinsfolk and friends, believed it, insomuch that the sorrow of every one was incredible. As God liveth, he who writeth forgot all that Jesus had said<sup>1</sup>: how that he should be taken up from the world, and that he should suffer in a third person, and that he should not die until near | the end of the world. Wherefore he went with the mother of Jesus and with John to the cross. 223<sup>b</sup> (222<sup>b</sup>)

The high priest caused Judas to be brought before him bound, and asked him of his disciples and his doctrine.

Whereupon Judas, as though beside himself, answered nothing to the point. The high priest then adjured him<sup>2</sup> by the living God<sup>3</sup> of Israel that he would tell him the truth.

Judas answered: 'I have told you that I am Judas Iscariot, who promised to give into your hands Jesus the Nazarene; and ye, by what art I know not, are beside yourselves, for ye will have it by every means that I am Jesus.'

The high priest answered: 'O perverse seducer, thou hast deceived all Israel, beginning from Galilee even unto Jerusalem here<sup>3</sup>, with thy doctrine and false miracles: and now thinkest thou to flee the merited punishment that becometh thee by feigning to be mad? As God liveth<sup>2</sup>, thou shalt not escape it!' And having said this he commanded his servants to smite him with buffetings and kicks, so that his understanding might come back into his head. The derision which he then suffered at the hands of the high priest's servants is | past belief. For they zealously 224<sup>a</sup> devised new inventions to give pleasure to the council. So they (223<sup>a</sup>) attired him as a juggler, and so treated him with hands and feet that it would have moved the very Canaanites to compassion if they had beheld that sight.

But the chief priests and Pharisees and elders of the people had their hearts so exasperated against Jesus that, believing Judas to be really Jesus, they took delight in seeing him so treated.

Afterwards they led him bound to the governor, who secretly loved Jesus. Whereupon he, thinking that Judas was Jesus, made him enter into his chamber, and spake to him, asking him for what cause the chief priests and the people had given him into his hands.

Judas answered: 'If I tell thee the truth, thou wilt not believe me<sup>1</sup>; for perchance thou art deceived as the (chief) priests and the Pharisees are deceived.'

The governor answered (thinking that he wished to speak concerning the Law): 'Now knowest thou not that I am not a Jew?<sup>2</sup> but the (chief) priests and the elders of thy | people have 224<sup>b</sup> given thee into my hand; wherefore tell us the truth, that I may do what is just. For I have power to set thee free and to put thee to death<sup>3</sup>.'

Judas answered: 'Sir, believe me, if thou put me to death, thou shalt do a great wrong, for thou shalt slay an innocent person; seeing that I am Judas Iscariot, and not Jesus, who is a magician, and by his art hath so transformed me.'

When he heard this the governor marvelled greatly<sup>4</sup>, so that he sought to set him at liberty. The governor therefore went out, and smiling said: 'In the one case, at least, this man is not worthy of death, but rather of compassion.' 'This man saith,' said the governor, 'that he is not Jesus, but a certain Judas who guided the soldiery to take Jesus, and he saith that Jesus the Galilean hath by his art magic so transformed him. Wherefore, if this be true, it were a great wrong to kill him, seeing that he were innocent. But if he is Jesus and denieth that he is, assuredly he | hath lost his understanding, and it were impious 225<sup>a</sup> to slay a madman.' (224<sup>b</sup>)

Then the chief priests and elders of the people, with the scribes and Pharisees, cried out with shouts, saying: 'He is Jesus of Nazareth, for we know him; for if he were not the malefactor we would not have given him into thy hands. Nor is he mad; but rather malignant, for with this device he seeketh to escape from our hands, and the sedition that he would stir up if he should escape would be worse than the former.'

Pilate (for such was the governor's name), in order to rid himself of such a case, said: 'He is a Galilean, and Herod<sup>5</sup> is king of Galilee: wherefore it pertaineth not to me to judge such a case, so take ye him to Herod.'

Accordingly they led Judas to Herod, who of a long time had desired that Jesus should go to his house. But Jesus had never been willing to go to his house, because Herod was a Gentile, and adored the false and lying gods, living after the manner of the unclean Gentiles. | Now when Judas had been led thither, Herod 225<sup>b</sup> (224<sup>b</sup>) asked him of many things, to which Judas gave answers not to the purpose, denying that he was Jesus.

Then Herod mocked him, with all his court, and caused him to be clad in white as the fools are clad, and sent him back to Pilate, saying to him, 'Do not fail in justice to the people of Israel!'

And this Herod wrote, because the chief priests and scribes and the Pharisees had given him a good quantity of money. The governor having heard that this was so from a servant of Herod, in order that he also might gain some money, feigned that he desired to set Judas at liberty. Whereupon he caused him to be scourged by his slaves, who were paid by the scribes to slay him under the scourges. But God, who had decreed<sup>a</sup> the issue, reserved Judas for the cross, in order that he might suffer that horrible death to which he had sold another. He did not suffer Judas to die under the scourges, notwithstanding that | the soldiers 226<sup>a</sup> scourged him so grievously that his body rained blood. There- (225<sup>a</sup>) upon, in mockery they clad him in an old purple garment, saying: 'It is fitting to our new king to clothe him and crown him': so they gathered thorns and made a crown<sup>1</sup>, like those of gold and precious stones which kings wear on their heads. And this crown of thorns they placed upon Judas' head, putting in his hand a reed for sceptre, and they made him sit in a high place. And the soldiers came before him, bowing down in mockery, saluting him as King of the Jews. And they held out their hands to receive gifts, such as new kings are accustomed to give; and receiving nothing they smote Judas, saying: 'Now, how art thou crowned, foolish king, if thou wilt not pay thy soldiers and servants?'

The chief priests with the scribes and Pharisees, seeing that Judas died not by the scourges, and fearing lest Pilate should set him at liberty, made a gift of money to the governor, who | having received it gave Judas to the scribes and Pharisees as 226<sup>b</sup> guilty unto death<sup>2</sup>. Whereupon they condemned two robbers with (225<sup>b</sup>) him to the death of the cross.

So they led him to Mount Calvary, where they used to hang malefactors, and there they crucified him naked, for the greater ignominy.

Judas truly did nothing else but cry out: 'God, why hast thou forsaken me<sup>1</sup>, seeing the malefactor hath escaped and I die unjustly?'

Verily I say that the voice, the face, and the person of Judas were so like to Jesus, that his disciples and believers entirely believed that he was Jesus<sup>2</sup>; wherefore some departed from the doctrine of Jesus, believing that Jesus had been a false prophet, and that by art magic he had done the miracles which he did: for Jesus had said that he should not die till near the end of the world; for that at that time he should be taken away from the world.

But they that stood firm in the doctrine of Jesus were so encompassed with sorrow, seeing | him die who was entirely 227<sup>a</sup> like to Jesus, that they remembered not what Jesus had said. (226<sup>a</sup>) And so in company with the mother of Jesus they went to Mount Calvary, and were not only present at the death of Judas, weeping continually, but by means of Nicodemus and Joseph of Abarimathia<sup>3</sup>, they obtained from the governor the body of Judas, to bury it. Whereupon, they took him down from the cross with such weeping as assuredly no one would believe, and buried him in the new sepulchre of Joseph; having wrapped him up in an hundred pounds of precious ointments.

They returned each man to his house. He who writeth, with John and James his brother, went with the mother of Jesus to Nazareth.

Those disciples<sup>4</sup> who did not fear God went by night [and] stole the body of Judas and hid it, spreading a report that Jesus was risen again; whence great confusion arose. | The high priest 227<sup>b</sup> then commanded, under pain of Anathema, that no one should talk (226<sup>b</sup>) of Jesus of Nazareth. And so there arose a great persecution, and many were stoned and many beaten, and many banished from the land, because they could not hold their peace on such a matter.

The news reached Nazareth how that Jesus, their fellow-citizen, having died on the cross was risen again. Whereupon, he that writeth prayed the mother of Jesus that she would be pleased to leave off weeping, because her son was risen again. Hearing this, the Virgin Mary, weeping, said: 'Let us go to Jerusalem to find my son. I shall die content when I have seen him.'

The Virgin returned to Jerusalem with him who writeth, and James and John, on that day on which the decree of the high priest went forth.

Whereupon, the Virgin, who feared God, albeit she knew the decree of the high priest | to be unjust, commanded those who 228<sup>a</sup> dwelt with her to forget her son. Then how each one was <sup>(227<sup>a</sup>)</sup> affected!—God who discerneth <sup>b</sup> the heart of men knoweth that between grief at the death of Judas whom we believed to be Jesus our master, and the desire to see him risen again, we, with the mother of Jesus, were consumed.

So the angels that were guardians of Mary ascended to the third heaven, where Jesus was in the company of angels, and recounted all to him.

Wherefore Jesus prayed God that he would give him power to see his mother and his disciples. Then the merciful God <sup>c</sup> commanded his four favourite angels <sup>1</sup>, who are Gabriel, Michael, Rafael, and Uriel, to bear Jesus into his mother's house, and there keep watch over him for three days continually, suffering him only to be seen by them that believed in his doctrine.

Jesus came, surrounded with splendour, to the room where | abode Mary the Virgin with her two sisters, and Martha and 228<sup>b</sup> Mary Magdalen, and Lazarus, and him who writeth, and John <sup>(227<sup>b</sup>)</sup> and James and Peter. Whereupon, through fear they fell as dead. And Jesus lifted up his mother and the others from the ground, saying: 'Fear not, for I am Jesus; and weep not, for I am alive and not dead.' They remained every one for a long time beside himself at the presence of Jesus, for they altogether believed that Jesus was dead. Then the Virgin, weeping, said: 'Tell me, my son, wherefore God, having given thee power <sup>d</sup> to raise the dead,

Jesus replied, embracing his mother <sup>b</sup>: 'Believe me, mother, for verily I say to thee that I have not been | dead at all; for God 229<sup>a</sup> hath reserved me <sup>c</sup> till near the end of the world.' And having <sup>(228<sup>a</sup>)</sup> said this he prayed the four angels that they would manifest themselves, and give testimony how the matter had passed.

Thereupon the angels manifested themselves like four shining suns, insomuch that through fear every one again fell down as dead.

Then Jesus gave four linen cloths to the angels that they might cover themselves, in order that they might be seen and heard to speak by his mother and her companions. And having lifted up each one, he comforted them, saying: 'These are the ministers of God: Gabriel, who announceth God's secrets; Michael, who fighteth against God's enemies; Rafael, who receiveth the souls of them that die; and Uriel, who will call every one to the judgement of God <sup>d</sup> at the last day.'

Then the four angels narrated to the Virgin how God had sent for Jesus, and had transformed Judas, that he might suffer the punishment to which he had sold another.

Then said he who writeth: 'O Master, is it | lawful for me to 229<sup>b</sup> question thee now, as it was lawful for me when thou dwelledst <sup>(228<sup>b</sup>)</sup> with us?'

Jesus answered: 'Ask what thou pleasest, Barnabas, and I will answer thee.'

Then said he who writeth: 'O Master, seeing that God is merciful <sup>e</sup>, wherefore hath he so tormented us, making us to believe that thou wert dead? and thy mother hath so wept for thee that she hath been nigh to death; and thou, who art an holy one of God, on thee hath God suffered to fall the calumny that thou wert slain amongst robbers on the Mount Calvary?'

Jesus answered: 'Believe me, Barnabas, that every sin, however small it be, God punisheth <sup>a</sup> with great punishment, seeing that God is offended at sin. Wherefore, since my mother and my faithful disciples that were with me loved me a little with earthly love, the righteous God hath willed to punish <sup>b</sup> this love with the present grief, in order that it may not be punished in the flames of hell. And though I have been innocent in the world, since men have called me "God," and "Son of God," God, in order that I be not mocked of the demons on the day | of judgement, hath willed 230<sup>a</sup> that I be mocked of men in this world by the death of Judas, <sup>(229<sup>a</sup>)</sup> making all men to believe that I died upon the cross. And this mocking shall continue until the advent of Mohammed, the messenger of God <sup>c</sup>, who, when he shall come, shall reveal this deception to those who believe in God's law.'

Having thus spoken, Jesus said: 'Thou art just, O Lord our God <sup>d</sup>, because to thee only belongeth honour and glory without end.'

CCXXI.

And Jesus turned himself to him who writeth, and said: 'See, Barnabas, that by all means thou write my gospel concerning <sup>1</sup> all that hath happened through my dwelling in the world. And write in like manner that which hath befallen Judas, in order that the faithful may be undeceived, and every one may believe the truth <sup>2</sup>.'

Then answered he who writeth: 'All will I do, if God will <sup>e</sup>. O Master; but how it happened unto Judas, I know not, for I saw not all.' |

Jesus answered: 'Here are John and Peter who have seen all, 230<sup>b</sup> and they will tell you all that has passed.' <sup>(229<sup>b</sup>)</sup>

And then Jesus commanded us to call his faithful disciples that they might see him. Then did James and John call together the seven disciples with Nicodemus and Joseph, and many others of the seventy-two, and they ate with Jesus.

The third day Jesus said: 'Go to the Mount of Olives with my mother, for there will I ascend again unto heaven, and ye will see who shall bear me up.'

So there went all, saving twenty-five of the seventy-two disciples, who for fear had fled to Damascus. And as they all stood in prayer, at mid-day came Jesus with a great multitude of angels who were praising God: and the splendour of his face made them sore afraid, and they fell with their faces to the ground. But Jesus lifted them up, comforting them, and saying: 'Be not afraid, I am your master.'

And he reproved many who believed him to have died and risen again, | saying: 'Do ye then hold me and God for liars? for God <sup>231<sup>a</sup></sup> hath granted <sup>a</sup> to me to live almost unto the end of the world, even <sup>(230<sup>a</sup>)</sup> as I said unto you <sup>b</sup>. Verily I say unto you, I died not, but Judas the traitor. Beware, for Satan will make every effort to deceive you, but be ye my witnesses in all Israel, and throughout the world, of all things that ye have heard and seen.'

And having thus spoken, he prayed God for the salvation of the faithful, and the conversion of sinners. And, his prayer ended, he embraced his mother, saying: 'Peace be unto thee, my mother, rest thou in God who created <sup>c</sup> thee and me.' And having thus spoken, he turned to his disciples, saying: 'May God's grace and mercy be with you.'

Then before their eyes the four angels carried him up into heaven.

CCXXII.

After Jesus had departed, the disciples scattered through the different parts of Israel and of the world, and the truth, | hated of <sup>231<sup>b</sup></sup> Satan, was persecuted, as it always is, by falsehood. For certain <sup>(230<sup>b</sup>)</sup> evil men, pretending to be disciples, preached that Jesus died and rose not again. Others preached that he really died, but rose again. Others preached, and yet preach, that Jesus is the Son of God, among whom is Paul deceived <sup>1</sup>. But we, as much as I have written, that preach we to those who fear God, that they may be saved in the last day of God's Judgement <sup>d</sup>. Amen.

INDEX OF SCRIPTURE REFERENCES

(a) In this index it has been found impossible to classify the references, distinguishing between direct and indirect citations and closer and more remote allusions. For the distinctions observed in the footnotes themselves, see p. lxxvii.

(b) The Pentateuch is almost always quoted as 'Moses,' the Psalms always as 'David,' the Proverbs and other Wisdom-Books usually as 'Solomon.' Where Barnabas misquotes, the name he gives is here added in brackets after the true reference: e.g. 1 Sam. viii. 7 ('Moses').

(c) Where matter preserved in two or more of the Gospels is quoted by Barnabas or used as his foundation, the reference given in the footnotes (and reproduced here) is to the particular Gospel which he seems to have had in mind: and where data for a decision are lacking the reference is assigned to St. Matthew.

(d) The reference-numbers in this index are to the pages of the MS.
